Chapter XI—Office of Price Administration

PART 1499—COMMODITIES AND SERVICES

[RMPR 165, Supp. Service Reg. 71]

REPAIR SERVICES ON BUSINESS MACHINES

A statement of the considerations involved in the issuance of this supplementary service regulation, issued simultaneously herewith, has been filed with the Division of the Federal Register. For the reasons set forth in that statement and under the authority vested in the Price Administrator by the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, the Stabilization Act of 1942, as amended, and Executive Orders Nos. 9250, 9328, 9599, and 9651, Supplementary Service Regulation No. 71 is hereby issued.

§ 1499.712 Services covered. (a) This regulation applies to any manufacturer of business machines who is also engaged in the repair or maintenance of such machines.

(b) Applicability of other regulations. Except as provided herein to the contrary, all provisions of RMPR 165 and any other applicable service regulation shall apply to the services subject to this regulation.

(c) Maximum price determination. A manufacturer of business machines who is also engaged in the repair or maintenance of such machines is authorized to adjust his customers' hourly rate in accordance with the results of his computations specified in the Computation Table below. In making the calculations, careful attention must be paid to subparagraphs (1), (2), (3), and (4) below, and also the definitions in paragraph (f).

COMPUTATION TABLE

Line
1.	March 1942 customers' hourly rate	$----
2.	1941 hourly direct labor cost	----
3.	1941 gross margin (line 1 minus line 2)	----
4.	One-half of amount shown in line 1	----
5.	Line 3 or line 4, whichever is smaller	----
6.	Current hourly direct labor cost	----
7.	Line 5 plus line 6	----
8.	Permissible maximum hourly rate (line 7 rounded to nearest nickel)	----
9.	Permissible increase factor (line 8 divided by line 1; carry dividend to three decimal points)	----

(1) If a manufacturer has different customers' hourly rates for different classes of customers, he must insert in Line 1 of the table the weighted average customers' hourly rate charged for all work done on a time and materials basis during the identical period for which the current hourly direct labor cost in Line 6 is computed.

(2) If a manufacturer sells different services at varying rates, and a separate group of mechanics is employed for each, a computation must be made for each service. In such cases the figures in Lines 2 and 6 must reflect only the hourly direct labor cost of the particular service.

(3) If the figure in Line 8 is lower than the manufacturer's present hourly rate, no increase can be allowed.

(4) If the figure in Line 8 is the average adjusted customers' hourly rate (i. e. if the figure in Line 1 is an average rate) and is higher than the manufacturer's present average adjusted customers' hourly rate, the difference between the figures in Line 7 and Line 1 shall be added to each customers' hourly rate to obtain a new group of adjusted rates. These rates must be rounded to the nearest nickel.

(d) Adjustment of fixed charges. If a manufacturer has established fixed charges for certain services under RMPR 165, and has a "permissible increase factor" (as determined in Line 9), he may increase such fixed charges by his "permissible increase factor." The adjusted fixed charges must be rounded to the nearest nickel. A fixed charge means a charge not computed by means of a customer's hourly rate.

(e) Filing. Each manufacturer wishing to qualify for increases under this regulation must submit his computation table to the Service Trades Branch, Office of Price Administration, Washington, D. C., for approval. In addition, a statement shall be submitted with the computation table that the hourly direct labor cost figure shown in line 6 is based on wage rates in effect on February 14, 1946; or in case the figure reflects rates higher than those in effect on that date, a copy of the National Wage Stabilization Board's approval of the higher rates.

(1) Adjusted prices shall be considered approved 20 days after receipt of the filing unless the manufacturer is advised within that time of disapproval or a request is made for additional information.

(2) Upon approval of price adjustments, a statement shall be prepared by the manufacturer showing the new hourly rates, the adjusted schedule of flat charges, and a notation that such adjusted prices have been approved by the Service Trades Branch, Office of Price Administration, Washington, D. C., in accordance with the provisions of this regulation.

(3) Within 30 days of the approval of increased prices, a copy of the statement required in subparagraph (2) shall be filed with the Service Trades Branch, Office of Price Administration, Washington, D. C., and with each OPA District Office within the jurisdiction of which the manufacturer maintains a branch or service outlet.

(4) When new outlets are established, proper amendments to the original statement must be filed. If the outlet is in a District where a statement has not been previously filed, a complete statement must be filed within ten days after the opening of the outlet.

(f) Definitions. As used in this regulation the term:

"Business machine" means any machine listed in Appendix A.

"Customers' hourly rate" means the established maximum per hour charge for labor. The term as used in this regulation refers to the rate before adoption of overtime increases permitted by Supplementary Service Regulation 21, or any other previously authorized increases.

"Weighted average customers' hourly rate" means the figure derived by dividing total labor sales (i. e. services sold on a time and material basis) by the total hours sold.

"Hourly direct labor cost" means the weighted average straight-time hourly wage paid to productive mechanics regularly engaged in repair or maintenance work, including apprentices and trainees but excluding foremen, service managers, and other supervisory personnel.

"Gross margin" means the difference between the customers' hourly rate and the hourly direct labor cost.

"Dollar-and-cents increase in hourly direct labor cost" means the actual dollar-and-cents difference between hourly direct labor cost in the year 1941 and that in the most recent month preceding the effective date of this regulation, or any other current month which reflects the wage cost of approved wage rates.

MANUFACTURERS' MAXIMUM AVERAGE PRICE FOR WOOL CIVILIAN APPAREL FABRICS

A statement of the considerations involved in the issuance of this amendment, issued simultaneously herewith, has been filed with the Division of the Federal Register.

Revised Supplementary Order No. 113 is amended in the following respect:

Section 6 (d) is amended to read as follows:

(d) Election and change of election. A manufacturer's election of the class or category basis (and of the categories he desires to use, if he elects the latter basis) shall be indicated in his "new base period report" (see paragraph (a) of section 14) or in the "application by other manufacturers" (see paragraph (a) of section 8), whichever is applicable. A manufacturer who makes an election subsequent to December 31, 1945 must file such new election (together with an appropriately changed "new base period report" or "application by other manufacturers", whichever is applicable, and appropriately changed quarterly reports for all quarters subsequent to July 1, 1945 reflecting his new election) with the Office of Price Administration, Washington 25, D. C. Any new election made after December 31, 1945 shall become effective, but only for the purpose of establishing the seller's credit or surcharge position at the time of election, as of the beginning of the third quarter of 1945. If a manufacturer is subject to the makeup rule at the time of the filing of his new election, or was so subject at any time prior thereto, the filing of such new election shall not excuse or eliminate any violations of the makeup rule which occurred prior to the date of filing of such election. Furthermore, credits earned by a manufacturer previous to the date of his new election and as a result thereof are to be applied only against surcharges incurred before that date. However, only an election made on or subsequent to the effective date of this amendment is subject to this credit restriction.

This amendment shall become effective June 24, 1946.

NOTE: The reporting provisions of this amendment have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

Issued this 18th day of June 1946.

A statement of the considerations involved in the issuance of this amendment, issued simultaneously herewith, has been filed with the Division of the Federal Register.

Maximum Price Regulation 535–1 is amended in the following respects:

1. Section 11 (1) (4) is amended to read as follows:

(4) Truck delivery provisions. If wood produced in any part of Zone 464–VI except the state of Missouri is delivered to the mill by truck, $2.00 per cord may be added to the f. o. b. cars price. If wood produced in the state of Missouri is delivered to the mill by truck, the buyer and seller shall determine the total distance that wood has been hauled as well as the distance from the wood cutting operations to the nearest rail shipping point. The buyer may then add 5 cents per cord of 128 cubic feet for each load mile that the wood is hauled in excess of the distance to the nearest rail shipping point. (Thus, if wood is hauled 30 miles to a mill from a zone of operations which is 10 miles from a rail siding, the buyer may pay a trucking addition for the distance in excess of the distance to the rail siding or for 20 miles).

ARTICLE I—SCOPE OF THE REGULATION

DEFINITIONS

SECTION 1. Explanation of the regulation. Except for those sales exempt under section 2, this regulation establishes maximum prices for purchases of "milk" from producers for use in (a) manufactured dairy and food products, and (b) commercial or industrial milk products.

SEC. 2. Exempt transactions. This regulation shall not apply to the following:

(a) Purchases of fluid milk from producers which are covered in Maximum Price Regulation 329.

(b) Sales and deliveries of fluid milk in glass or paper containers at wholesale or retail as defined and covered under the General Maximum Price Regulation or any regional order issued thereunder.

(c) Sales and deliveries of fluid milk in bulk at wholesale to stores, hotels, restaurants and institutions covered under Maximum Price Regulation No. 280.

SEC. 3. Geographical applicability. The provisions of this regulation apply to the 48 States of the United States of America and the District of Columbia.

SEC. 4. Definitions. When used in this regulation, the term:

(a) "Milk" means liquid cow's milk in a raw, unprocessed state, regardless of whether it meets local and municipal health standards for milk for human consumption in bottled form, purchased from producers in bulk for use in whole or in part in (1) any manufactured dairy or food product, including, but not limited to such products as butter, cheese, evaporated or condensed milk, powdered milk, casein, ice cream, and bakery products and candy, and for use in (2) commercial or industrial products.

(b) "Producer" means a farmer, or other person or representative who owns, superintends, manages, or otherwise controls the operation of a farm on which "milk" is produced. A farmers' cooperative is a producer with regard to all sales of "milk" except "milk" processed by it or for it in a milk receiving or processing plant, owned, leased, or contracted for by the cooperative.

(c) (1) "Purchaser" means any person who buys "milk" from a producer. Each branch, division, subsidiary, affiliate, or portion of a business organization, whether corporate or otherwise, purchasing "milk" from producers in a particular market, as distinguished from purchases or other operations in different markets, is a separate purchaser.

(2) For the purposes of this regulation, "purchaser" includes a farmers' cooperative, whether or not it takes title, with respect to "milk" received by it from a member or non-member producer, which "milk" is processed by it or for it in a milk receiving or processing plant, owned, leased, or contracted for by the cooperative.

(d) "Person" means an individual, corporation, partnership, association, or other organized group of persons, or any legal successor or representative of any of the foregoing, and includes the United States or any agency thereof, any other government, or any of its political subdivisions or agencies.

(e) Unless the context manifestly otherwise requires, the definitions set forth in section 302 of the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, and the General Maximum Price Regulation, issued by the Office of Price Administration, shall apply to other terms herein.

ARTICLE II—PRICING PROVISIONS

SEC. 5. Maximum prices. (a) The maximum price for "milk" shall be the average paying price each purchaser of "milk" from a producer paid that producer during the month of November 1945 plus the following amounts:

Where a purchaser customarily buys on a:

(1) Per cwt. basis—40¢ per cwt. for "milk" of 3.5% butterfat content; in addition he may add 1¢ per point for butterfat to his existing butterfat differential over or under the butterfat base upon which he purchases "milk."

(2) Gallonage basis—4¢ per gallon.

(3) Butterfat basis—11.5¢ per lb. butterfat.

(b) If the minimum producer's price for "milk" has been increased under an applicable order, agreement or license issued pursuant to the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended, that price shall become the maximum price which a purchaser may pay for "milk" under this regulation.

(c) The maximum prices established in paragraph (a) above are subject to the following provisions:

(1) For "milk" of 3.5% butterfat or its equivalent, if delivered in:

(e) If, during the month of November 1945, a purchaser bought milk meeting local and municipal health standards for human consumption in bottled form, and paid the same price to a producer for all such milk regardless of its ultimate utilization, but such price was below that established under Maximum Price Regulation No. 329, the purchaser shall apply to the Office of Price Administration, Washington, D. C., for a maximum price which he may now pay that producer for the proportion of such milk which is to be used for manufacturing purposes.

(f) If, during the twelve months preceding November 1945 a purchaser of "milk" paid a producer a customary differential or premium for such "milk", depending upon seasonal factors or otherwise, he may continue to pay that customary differential or premium.

(g) If a purchaser did not purchase "milk" from a particular producer during the base period of November 1945, but subsequently purchases from that producer, the maximum price he may pay shall be the average price which any purchaser paid that producer for milk received during the period November 1945, adjusted to reflect customary butterfat differentials plus 40¢ per cwt., or 4¢ per gallon, or 11.5¢ per pound butterfat depending on his customary method of purchase, and subject to the pricing provisions of section 5.

(h) In case a producer did not sell "milk" for use in manufactured dairy or food products or in commercial or industrial products during November 1945, but subsequently makes such sales, the purchaser's maximum price to that producer shall be the average purchasing price the purchaser paid for "milk" received at his plant in November 1945, adjusted to reflect customary butterfat differentials, plus 40¢ per cwt., or 4¢ per gallon, or 11.5¢, depending on his customary method of purchase, and subject to the pricing provisions of section 5.

NOTE: In the case of a purchaser who was not engaged in the business of purchasing "milk" for use in manufactured dairy or food products and commercial or industrial milk products during November 1945, and subsequently engages in such business without purchasing an existing establishment, the maximum price at which he may purchase "milk" from producers will be determined under paragraph (g) above in the case of purchases from producers engaged in the production during November 1945 of "milk" for use in manufactured dairy and food products and commercial or industrial milk products, and will be determined under paragraph (h) above in the case of purchases from producers not so engaged.

SEC. 6. Customary discounts, allowances and practices. (a) No purchaser shall participate in any change of customary allowances, discounts, price differentials or other trade practices applicable to purchasers made by him if such change results in his paying higher than the maximum price.

(b) No purchaser shall pay a larger proportion of transportation costs incurred in the delivery or supply of "milk" than he paid on deliveries during November 1945, from the particular producer.

SEC. 7. Federal and State taxes. Any tax incident to the sale, delivery or processing of any product covered by this regulation, imposed by statute or ordinance of the Federal government or of a State or any of its political subdivisions, shall be treated as follows in determining the maximum price for such product, and in preparing records and reports required by this regulation:

(a) Transportation tax. The purchaser may not pay the producer the increase of 3% provided for in the tax on transportation of property imposed by Section 620 of the Revenue Act of 1942, if the maximum price is established f. o. b. the purchaser's processing plant or receiving station, but where the maximum price is established f. o. b. producer's farm or ranch, the buyer may pay the increase of 3% in the tax. Where, however, a producer changes his sales from f. o. b. farm or ranch to f. o. b. processing plant or receiving station, the purchaser may pay the producer the increase of 3% in the tax, but where the change is from f. o. b. processing plant or receiving station to f. o. b. farm or ranch, the purchaser may not pay the producer an amount which exceeds the price f. o. b. processing plant or receiving station minus the full amount of the transportation charges, including the 3% increase in the tax.

(b) Statement and collection of tax or tax increase. (1) If a seller during November 1945, did not customarily state and collect the amount of tax separately from the purchase price, he may not now collect such amount in addition to the maximum price.

(2) In all other cases the purchaser may pay the producer the amount of any tax or tax increase which the producer actually pays, Provided, The producer separately states and collects it, and Provided further, That the statute or ordinance allows him to do so; except that an increase since November 1945, in a tax in effect during that period may be paid by a purchaser to a producer who did not separately state and collect it during November 1945, to the extent of the increase, Provided, The producer separately states and collects the amount of such increase, and Provided further, That the statute or ordinance allows him to do so.

ARTICLE III—GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 8. Records and reports—(a) Base period records. Every person who purchases "milk" from a producer shall preserve for examination by the Office of Price Administration, so long as the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, remains in effect, all his existing records relating to prices paid for "milk" received during November 1943, together with the name and address of each producer, and shall prepare, on the basis of available information or records, and keep for examination by the Office of Price Administration a statement showing:

(1) The average price paid each producer for "milk" received during November 1945; and

(2) The customary allowances, discounts, and other price differentials applicable to his own purchases during November 1945.

(b) Current records. Every person who purchases "milk" from a producer shall keep and make available for examination by the Office of Price Administration, so long as the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, remains in effect, records of the same kind that he customarily kept relating to prices which he paid to producers for "milk" received during and subsequent to November 1945.

(c) Audit of reports. The Administrator may approve or disapprove reports filed with him and require any purchaser to correct and resubmit a report which does not comply with reporting requirements.

SEC. 9. Transfer of business or stock in trade—(a) Purchasers. If the business, assets or stock in trade of any purchaser subject to this regulation are sold or otherwise transferred on or after November 1945, the maximum prices for purchases by the transferee shall be the same as those to which his transferor would have been subject if no transfer had occurred, and his obligation to keep records sufficient to verify such prices shall be the same. The transferor shall either preserve and make available, or turn over to the transferee all records of transaction prior to the transfer which are necessary to enable the latter to maintain records required by the regulation.

(b) Producers. If the business, stock in trade, or assets of any producer of "milk" are sold or otherwise transferred after November 1945, the maximum prices which a purchaser may pay the transferee shall be the same as the maximum prices which the purchaser could pay the transferor, as if no transfer had occurred.

SEC. 10. Compliance with this regulation—(a) Buying above maximum prices. On or after June 17, 1946, regardless of any contract or obligation, no purchaser in the course of trade or business, shall buy or receive "milk" from any producer at a price higher than the maximum price established in this regulation. Prices lower than the maximum may be paid.

(b) Evasion. No person shall evade the maximum prices established under this regulation directly or indirectly, in connection with any commission, service, transportation, or other charge or discount, premium or privilege, tying agreement or trade understanding, or change in any business or trade practice, or in any other way.

SEC. 11. Petitions for amendment. Any purchaser seeking a general modification of this regulation may file a petition for amendment in accordance with Revised Procedural Regulation No. 1, issued by the Office of Price Administration.

SEC. 12. Adjustable pricing. Any purchaser may agree to purchase at a price which may be increased up to the maximum price in effect at the time of delivery. But no person may, unless authorized by the Office of Price Administration, purchase or receive "milk" from producers at prices to be adjusted upwards in accordance with action taken by the Office of Price Administration after delivery.

This regulation shall become effective June 17, 1946.

"A seller" also includes any person who resells farm separated cream, other than to a butter manufacturer.

ARTICLE II—PRICING PROVISIONS

SEC. 5. Maximum prices; base period. (a) the maximum price for sales of cream covered by this regulation, by a seller, is the highest price per pound butterfat charged by the seller during the base period May 1–15, 1946, inclusive, f. o. b. the seller's place of business, to a purchaser of the same class for the same cream.

(b) Sales by a handler other than the first seller. The maximum price for sales of cream by a handler, purchased by him from the first seller, shall be the actual price per lb. butterfat paid by such handler to the first seller, plus such handler's customary mark-up during the period May 1–15, 1946, on his sales to a purchaser of the same class for the same cream. The maximum price of all subsequent handlers shall be their suppliers' maximum price.

(c) Sales in more than one container size. Where a seller made base period sales in more than one container size, and the price per pound butterfat differed between container sizes, the seller shall maintain his base period price for each container size as his maximum price.

(d) The maximum prices established in paragraphs (a) and (c) above are subject to the provisions of Table A below:

TABLE A

(1) Cream per pound of butterfat. F. o. b. seller's place of business:

SEC. 6. When unable to price under section 5. (a) Where a seller is unable to price under section 5 above, he shall file an application with the Office of Price Administration, Washington, D. C., requesting approval of a proposed maximum price. The Price Administrator may, by written order, disapprove or revise any proposed maximum price reported so as to bring it into line with the level of maximum prices otherwise established by this regulation.

(b) No sale of cream for which a maximum price is proposed under this paragraph may be made until the price has been approved by the Price Administrator. The proposed price shall be deemed to be approved 30 days after mailing the application subject to the pricing provisions of Table A in section 5 (d) above (or 30 days after mailing all information required to complete the application) unless, within that time, the Office of Price Administration notifies the seller that his proposed price has been disapproved or revised.

(c) The application shall set forth the following:

(1) Name and location of the applicant;

(2) Complete description of the cream to be priced, including a statement of the butterfat content; and a statement of the seller's method of business, i. e., whether he himself separates cream or is a handler.

(3) Description of the market or markets where the cream is to be sold and delivered.

(4) The method used in figuring the proposed maximum price; and

(5) Reasons why he believes the proposed maximum price is in line with the level of maximum prices otherwise established pursuant to this regulation.

(6) The Price Administrator may at any time modify, amend, or revoke subject to the prior written approval of the Secretary of Agriculture, when such approval is required by law, any maximum price for cream covered by this regulation established under this regulation.

SEC. 7. Customary discounts, allowances and practices. (a) No seller shall change any trade practice, or any customery discount, allowance or other price differential to a purchaser or class of purchasers, if the change results in a price higher than the maximum price established for that purchaser or class of purchasers.

(b) Brokerage fees. Each broker shall be considered as the agent of the seller and not the agent of the buyer. In each case, the amount paid by the buyer to the seller plus any amount paid by the buyer to the broker shall not exceed the seller's maximum price.

(c) No seller whose maximum price is f. o. b. purchased's plant shall charge a larger proportion for transportation costs incurred in the delivery of cream than he charged to a purchaser or class of purchasers during the base period.

SEC. 8. Federal and State taxes. Any tax incident to the sale, delivery or processing of any product covered by this regulation, imposed by statute or ordinance of the Federal government or of a State or any of its political subdivisions, shall be treated as follows: in determining the maximum price for such product, and in preparing records and reports required by this regulation:

(a) Transportation tax. The seller may not collect the increase of 3% provided for in the tax on transportation of property imposed by Section 620 of the Revenue Act of 1942, if his maximum price is established f. o. b. the purchaser's premises or place of business; but where the maximum price is established f. o. b. seller's place of business, the buyer may pay the increase of 3% in the tax. Where, however, a seller changes his sales from f. o. b. seller's place of business to f. o. b. purchaser's premises or place of business, he may collect the increase of 3% in the tax from the purchaser; but where he changes his sales from f. o. b. purchaser's premises or place of business to f. o. b. seller's place of business, he must deduct from his price f. o. b. purchaser's premises or place of business the full amount of transportation charges including the 3% increase in tax.

(b) Statement and collection of tax or tax increase. (1) If a seller during the base period did not customarily state and collect the amount of tax separately from the purchase price, he may not now collect such amount in addition to the maximum price.

(2) In all other cases any seller may collect the amount of any tax or tax increase which he actually pays, Provided, He separately states and collects it, and Provided further, That the statute or ordinance allows him to do so; except that an increase since the base period may be collected by a seller who did not separately state and collect it during the base period, to the extent of the increase, Provided, The seller separately states and collects the amount of such increase, and Provided further, That the statute or ordinance allows him to do so.

ARTICLE III—GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 9. Records and reports—(a) Base period records. Each seller shall:

(1) Collect and thereafter keep for examination by the Office of Price Administration for so long as the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, remains in effect, all his existing records relating to prices for cream delivered or offered for delivery during the period May 1–15, 1946 inclusive, and

(2) Prepare and thereafter keep for examination by any person during ordinary business hours (unless already prepared and kept for examination), for so long as the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, remains in effect, a statement on the basis of available information and records showing:

(i) The highest prices which he charged for cream delivered or offered for delivery during the period May 1–15, 1946, inclusive, together with an appropriate description and identification of such cream, and

(ii) All his customary allowances, discounts, and other price differentials.

(3) Any person, instead of making the statement in subparagraph (2) above available to any person, may file it with the District Office of the Office of Price Administration within the geographical jurisdiction where the major portion of his sales of cream are made. The information will not be publicized or disclosed unless it is contrary to the purposes of this regulation to withhold it.

(b) Current records. Each seller shall make and preserve for examination by the Office of Price Administration for so long as the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, remains in effect, all records of the same kind as he customarily kept, relating to prices now being charged and those charged for cream during the period from May 1–15, 1946, inclusive, and, in addition, records showing as precisely as possible the basis upon which he determined such prices, together with an appropriate description and identification of such cream.

SEC. 10. Sales of slips and receipts. Any seller who has customarily given a purchaser a sales slip or similar receipt shall continue to do so. Upon request from the purchaser, any seller, regardless of previous custom, shall give the purchaser a receipt showing the date, the name and address of the seller, and amount of cream sold and the price received for it.

SEC. 11. Transfer of business or stock in trade. If the business, assets or stock in trade of a seller are sold or otherwise transferred after the base period, and the transferee carries on the business or continues to deal in cream in the same competitive area and in an establishment separate from any other establishment previously owned or operated by him, the maximum prices of the transferee for cream sold from such separate establishment shall be the same as those to which his transferor would have been subject if no such transfer had taken place, and his obligation to keep records sufficient to verify such prices shall be the same. The transferor shall either preserve and make available, or turn over to the transferee, all records of transactions prior to the transfer which are necessary to enable the transferee to comply with this regulation.

SEC. 12. Filing of maximum prices. Within 10 days after the first sale of cream covered by this regulation each seller shall file with the appropriate District Office a statement showing his maximum prices, the basis upon which he determined it, and an appropriate description and identification of his product, or products, including the trade name, if any.

SEC. 13. Compliance with this regulation—(a) Selling or buying above maximum prices. Regardless of any contract or obligation, no person shall sell or deliver, or buy or receive in the course of trade or business, cream at a price higher than the maximum price established under this regulation. Prices lower than the maximum price may be charged and paid. This paragraph shall not apply to purchases by war procurement agencies in the United States and others exempted under Supplementary Order No. 7, issued by the Office of Price Administration.

(b) Evasion. No person shall exceed a maximum price directly or indirectly, whether by commission, brokerage fees, service, transportation charges, or other charge or discount, premium or other privilege, tying agreement or other trade understanding, any business practice relating to labeling or packaging, or in any other way, including but not limited to:

(1) Reducing the quality of cream without a corresponding reduction in the established maximum price; or

(2) Compelling a person purchasing a given quantity of cream to accept delivery in the form of two or more smaller containers mixes at the higher prices applicable to such sizes.

(c) Penalties; actions and suits; damages. Any person violating a provision of this regulation is subject to the criminal penalties, civil enforcement actions, license suspension provisions, and suits for treble damages provided by the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended.

(d) Licensing. The provisions of Licensing Order No. 1,[1] licensing all persons who make sales under price control are, applicable to all sellers subject to this regulation. A seller's license may be suspended for violations of the license or one or more applicable price schedules or regulations. A person whose license is suspended may not, during the period of suspension, make any sale for which his license has been suspended.

SEC. 14. Petitions for amendment. Any person seeking a general modification of this regulation may file a petition for amendment in accordance with Revised Procedural Regulation No. 1 issued by the Office of Price Administration.

Effective date. This Maximum Price Regulation No. 613 shall become effective June 17, 1946.

PART 1389—APPAREL

[MPR 605,[1] Amdt. 2]

MANUFACTURERS' PRICES FOR SHIRTS, SHORTS, PAJAMAS AND RELATED ITEMS

A statement of the considerations involved in the issuance of this amendment has been issued simultaneously herewith and filed with the Division of the Federal Register.

Maximum Price Regulation 605 is amended in the following respects:

1. The second undesignated paragraph of section 3 (a), preceding the "Form to be used in obtaining the general division factor (Form I)", is amended to read as follows:

The form below (Form I) and the accompanying instructions give you specific directions how to calculate a "general division factor" based upon your own past experience. From your 1943 profit and loss statement, you find a division factor for your items covered by this regulation. Then you increase this division factor by one-tenth of the difference between it and 100% (except that if 75% or more of your net sales during 1943 were made to individual ultimate consumers, you increase this division factor by one twenty-fifth of the difference between it and 100%). The resultant figure is your general division factor under the regulation.

2. An asterisk (*) is added before the numeral "5" in line 5 of Form I, which follows the second undesignated paragraph of section 3 (a).

3. The second paragraph of Instruction No. 2 to the form in section 3 (a) is amended to read as follows:

Materials and trimmings may be valued according to any accepted accounting method of inventory valuation you ordinarily use. (Enter your method of valuation at the top of the form.) Deduct all discounts received. If your operations in 1943 were integrated (i. e., if you fabricated or processed any materials used in the items which you manufactured) you must value such materials as follows:

(a) For wool or part-wool fabrics (containing 25% or more of wool fibre by weight), value such materials at the actual net cost of the elements which entered into their fabrication (e. g., wool or wool tops, dyeing, spinning, weaving).

(b) For all other fabrics:

(1) If you purchased the fabric in the greige and then finished it (or had it finished by another), value such materials at the actual invoice cost of the greige goods plus the actual finishing cost.

(2) If you fabricated the greige goods, value such material by adding the actual finishing cost to the maximum prices which you could have charged for the greige goods under the terms of the price schedules and maximum price regulations of the Office of Price Administration in effect on July 1, 1943.

4. In the instructions to Form I, which follows the second undesignated paragraph of section 3 (a), Instruction No. 5 is added after Instruction No. 2, to read as follows:

5. If during 1943 75% or more of your net sales of items covered by the regulation were made to individual ultimate consumers, take 1/95 of the entry in line 4 instead of 1/10.

5. The table in section 7 (c) is amended to read as follows:

Group No.	Temporary division factor for sales to wholesalers, chain stores,[1] and mail-order houses	Temporary division factor for sales to all other purchasers (except sales to individual ultimate consumers)	Temporary division factor for sales to individual ultimate consumers
1	0.781	0.721	0.511
3	.762	.702	.500
4	.748	.688	.491
5	.781	.721	.511
6	.745	.685	.488
7	.767	.707	.503
9	.793	.733	.519

[1] For purposes of this section a "chain store" is an organization of four or more stores owned and operated jointly, maintaining a centralized buying office, with total annual sales of $4,000,000 or more; or such an organization of eight or more stores regardless of the volume of sales.

6. A note is added to paragraph (e) of Appendix A following Group No. 9 to read as follows:

NOTE: Two-piece pajamas which have a knitted top are not covered by this regulation if sold by a person who knitted the top to shape.

7. In the third undesignated paragraph of paragraph (b) of Appendix D, Rule 2 is amended to read as follows:

Rule 2. For any group of items, the same construction and finish of material may not be listed on more than one Form III.

8. A sentence is added at the end of Step 1 (a) in paragraph (b) (1) of Appendix D to read as follows: "If you have on inventory materials received prior to October 1, 1945, include yardage of such materials."

9. The second paragraph of footnote 16, which relates to Step 1 (a) in paragraph (b) (1) of Appendix D, is amended to read as follows:

If your operations are integrated (i. e., if you fabricate or process any material used in the garments which you manufacture):

(1) For wool or part-wool fabrics (containing 25% or more of wool fibre by weight), net cost means the actual net cost of the elements which entered into the fabrication of the materials (e. g., wool or wool tops, dyeing, spinning, weaving). The cost of these elements must not exceed the net maximum prices established for them under the terms of the Office of Price Administration price schedules and maximum price regulations operative on the effective date of this regulation. Moreover, if your operations were integrated in 1943, the same elements of cost must be included in this valuation as were included in determining material cost under section 3.

(2) For all other fabrics:

(i) If you purchased the fabric in the greige and then finished it (or had it finished by another), net invoice cost means the sum of the actual finishing cost plus the invoice cost (after deducting all discounts available), for the greige goods (but in no event shall the invoice cost of the greige goods exceed the maximum price in effect on January 1, 1946).

(ii) If you fabricated the greige goods, net invoice cost means the sum of the actual finishing cost plus the net maximum price which you could have charged for such greige goods under the terms of the Office of Price Administration price schedules and maximum price regulations in effect on January 1, 1946, had you sold it to a converter.

10. Subdivision (iii) of paragraph (d) (2) of Appendix D is redesignated paragraph (d) (3) and is amended to read as follows:

(3) Contractors' services. For items fabricated by a contractor, figure as direct labor cost an amount equal to 80% of the contractor's net service charge for direct labor, markup on direct labor and trim furnished by the contractor. If the contractor's charge has been increased, to reflect a wage increase granted since August 18, 1945, you must subtract the amount attributable to the wage increase and take 80% of the reduced figure.

11. A new subparagraph (4) is added to paragraph (d) of Appendix D to read as follows:

(4) "Same item" fabricated at different labor costs. If the same item is fabricated both in your own plant and by a contractor, or is fabricated by two or more contractors, or is fabricated in two or more of your own plants, you may combine the direct labor costs of the item and obtain a weighted average cost. To do this, weight each direct labor cost by your estimated production from each source during the next three months period. At the end of that period you must reweight by your actual production during the period, and, if the actual weighted average direct labor cost is less than 98% of the estimated weighted average cost, you are in violation of the regulation The amount of overcharge is the difference between the total dollar amount which you actually charged and the total dollar amount which you could have charged had your maximum prices been based on the actual weighted average direct labor cost For each three months period, you must follow the same procedure.

This amendment shall become effective June 24, 1946.

PAUL A. PORTER,

a. A new paragraph (q) is added to read as follows:

(q) Recomputation of maximum prices. (1) Each manufacturer of a cheese food or cheese spread containing cheddar cheese, for which a maximum base price has been established by letter order under the provisions of section 35, may recompute his maximum price as follows: Multiply the percentage of cheddar cheese per pound of finished product by $0.05. Carry this computation out to four decimal points. Add this sum to the price per pound established by the letter order. The result must be reported by registered mail addressed to the Dairy Products Price Branch, Office of Price Administration, Washington 25, D. C., in an affidavit setting out the following:

(i) The number and date of each letter order in effect on the date of the affidavit and the items covered by it which contain cheddar cheese.

(ii) The detailed computation showing the amount of increase in the base price.

(iii) The new maximum base price.

Ten days after mailing this affidavit, each manufacturer may begin to sell at the new maximum prices so computed but until ten days have elapsed, after such affidavit has been mailed in accordance with the requirements of this paragraph (q), no sales shall be made at maximum prices in excess of those previously established by the letter orders then in effect. The Administrator may, by order, at any time, revise the maximum prices so established if he finds that they have been erroneously computed or that they are not in line with the general level of prices set by this regulation. Notification of any change in a manufacturer's base price shall be made to wholesalers and retailers in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (e) (5) of this section 35.

(2) Upon application by any manufacturer of cheese foods and cheese spreads whose prices have not been established by letter order, the Administrator may, by order, in conformity with the method described in paragraph (d) (2), establish a new maximum base price which will reflect the increased maximum price for cheddar cheese permitted under the provisions of section 19 (q). The price so established may be in excess of the maximum price determined under the provisions of § 1351.803 of Maximum Price Regulation 280 and may be modified to bring it in line with the level of prices otherwise established under this regulation.

This amendment shall become effective June 17, 1946.

NOTE: All reporting and record-keeping requirements of this regulation have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

1946 EMERGENCY BARLEY PURCHASE PROGRAM

The Secretary of Agriculture has, by letter dated June 14, 1946, requested my approval of an emergency barley purchase program to be carried out by Commodity Credit Corporation. Barley will be purchased from grain merchandisers and malsters and allocated to feed deficit areas. To obtain an adequate supply of barley, it appears that it will be necessary to purchase approximately 1,200,000 bushels of barley at the malting barley price ceiling. Commodity Credit Corporation, in purchasing such barley at the malting barley price ceiling and selling it at the feed barley price ceiling, will be obliged to absorb a loss of 15 cents per bushel. The purchase program is more fully described in the copy of the memorandum from the Director, Grain Branch, Production and Marketing Administration, enclosed with the Secretary of Agriculture's letter.

Pursuant to the authority vested in me by the Stabilization Act of 1942, as amended, and by Executive Order 9250 of October 3, 1942 (7 F.R. 7871), Executive Order 9328 of April 8, 1943 (8 F.R. 4681), Executive Order 9599 of August 18, 1945 (10 F.R. 10155), Executive Order 9651 of October 30, 1945 (10 F.R. 13487), Executive Order 9697 of February 14, 1946 (11 F. R. 1691), and Executive Order 9699 of February 21, 1946 (11 F.R. 1929); It is hereby ordered:

The Department of Agriculture is authorized and directed to carry out, through the Commodity Credit Corporation, the program described in the Secretary of Agriculture's letter and the memorandum enclosed therewith.

Issued and effective this 17th day of June 1946.

Director.

Corrections or withdrawals of prior declarations of surplus personal property shall be submitted to the appropriate disposal agency on WAA Form 1001.1 "Adjustment of Prior Declaration of Surplus Personal Property" as attached hereto (formerly Form SPB–1.1) in accordance with the instructions accompanying such form. Disposal agencies are authorized to correct or adjust a declaration on WAA Form 1001 after verification of the declaration and inspection of the property. When the disposal agency makes such correction or adjustment without the submission by the owning agency of a WAA Form 1001.1 covering such correction or adjustment the submission of such WAA Form 1001.1 by the owning agency shall not be required.

2. Each owning agency shall declare such personal property surplus to the War Assets Administrator on WAA Form 1002 "Summary of Declarations of Surplus Property", as attached hereto, (formerly Form SPB–2) in accordance with the instructions accompanying such form.

3. Owning agencies shall declare surplus real property located within the continental United States, its territories and possessions, to the War Assets Administrator on WAA Form 1005 "Declaration of Surplus Real Property", as attached hereto, (formerly Form SPB–5) in accordance with the instructions accompanying such form.

4. WAA Form 1001.2 "Declaration of Surplus Personal Property to Disposal Agency", as attached hereto, (formerly Form SPB–1.2) may be used by the War Department and the Navy Department as a substitute for WAA Form 1001 in declaring to the War Assets Administration surplus property located within the continental United States, its territories and possessions, resulting from contractor inventory. WAA Form 1001.3 "Listing Sheet", as attached hereto, (formerly Form SPB–1.3) may be used as the detailed listing sheet in support of WAA Form 1001.2 as a substitute for WAA Form 1001 "Continuation Sheet". WAA Forms 1001.2 and 1001.3 will be prepared in accordance with the instructions accompanying such forms.

5. The War Assets Administration may correct or adjust a declaration previously made on WAA Forms 1001.2 and 1001.3 by the War Department or the Navy Department to conform to the property thereafter delivered to or upon the order of the War Assets Administration. When the War Assets Administration makes such correction or adjustment without the submission by the owning agency of a WAA Form 1001.1 covering such correction or adjustment, the submission of such WAA Form 1001.1 may be omitted.

6. In making declarations of Government-owned personal property furnished contractors under a facilities contract, lease, rental agreement, or other contract or contract provision specifically governing the acquisition, use or disposition of such property, the Navy Department may use Navy Department Form S & A 269 and Office of Contract Settlement Form 5a for reporting items of machinery or equipment in the same major (2-digit) group of the Standard Commodity Classification at a single location. A WAA Form 1001 shall, however, be used as a cover sheet. A one line description shall be shown on WAA Form 1001 and continuation sheets for each Navy Department Form S & A 269 attached, and there shall be included on both the WAA Form 1001 and the Navy Department Form S & A 269 a proper cross-reference to identify each Navy Department Form S & A 269 with the related one line listing on WAA Form 1001. Not more than ninety-nine (99) Navy Department Forms S & A 269 or Office of Contract Settlement Forms 5a shall be attached to a single covering WAA Form 1001.

7. In making declarations of Government-owned personal property located in Government-owned plants operated by contractors under cost-plus-a-fixed-fee contracts, the War Department may use existing records including inventory listings and inventory cards, Provided, That a WAA Form 1001 or WAA Form 1001.2 is used as a cover sheet and Provided further, That all of the information required by the WAA Form 1001 or WAA Form 1001.2 is shown either on the WAA Form 1001 or WAA Form 1001.2 or on the supporting documents.

8. In making declarations of personal property located in complete Reconstruction Finance Corporation-owned plants the Reconstruction Finance Corporation may use existing records, including photostatic copies of the Asset Property Record covering such property, Provided, That a WAA Form 1001 is used as a cover sheet and Provided further, That all of the information required by the WAA Form 1001 is shown either on the form or on the supporting documents. Not more than ninety-nine (99) of such records shall be attached to a single covering WAA Form 1001.

9. WAA Forms 1001, 1001.1, 1001.2, 1001.3, 1002 and 1005 may be reproduced by the owning agencies, Provided, That the formats are identical with those on file with the Division of the Federal Register, sample copies of which may be obtained from the Administrator. WAA Forms 1001 and 1001.1 should allow for a 1" margin on the left. WAA Form 1001.1 should be reproduced on yellow paper so as to distinguish it readily from WAA Form 1001.

10. Owning agencies may continue to use Forms SPB–1, SPB–1.1, the continuation sheets for each of these forms, Forms SPB–1.2, SPB–1.3 and SPB–5 until their stocks of these forms are exhausted. Wherever in these forms or the instructions to the forms the words "Surplus Property Board" or "Board" appear, they shall be deemed to refer to the War Assets Administrator.

NOTE: All reporting requirements of this part have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

[P. & S. Docket No. 308]

MARKET AGENCIES AT UNION STOCK YARDS, SIOUX CITY, IOWA

NOTICE OF PETITION FOR MODIFICATION

By an order entered on July 25, 1931, pursuant to the provisions of the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended (7 U.S.C. 181 et seq.), the Acting Secretary of Agriculture prescribed rates and charges for the services of the respondent market agencies buying and selling livestock on a commission basis at the Sioux City Stock Yards, Sioux City, Iowa. Other orders have been entered from time to time, temporarily suspending and modifying the provisions of the order of July 25, 1931. The market agencies are now operating under an order dated December 26, 1945 (4 A. D. 991) which continued in effect the order of December 27, 1944 (3 A. D. 1070) as modified by the orders of September 19, 1945 (4 A. D. 739, 741), the order dated September 28, 1945 (4 A. D. 745) and the order dated December 12, 1945 (4 A. D. 977).

By petition the respondents now request that the provisions of the order of December 26, 1945, be continued in effect and that certain modifications in Supplement 3 of the existing schedule (Tariff No. 14) be authorized. The effect of such proposed modifications, if granted, would be to increase the selling charges for cattle and sheep and the buying charges for stocker and feeder cows and calves. Such increases in buying and selling charges would produce additional revenue to the respondents and, therefore, notice is hereby given to the public of the filing of the petition.

All interested persons who desire to be heard upon the matter requested in said petition for modification shall notify the Hearing Clerk, Office of the Solicitor, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., within fifteen days from the date of the publication of this notice.

Copies hereof shall be served upon the respondents by registered mail or in person.

Done at Washington, D. C., this 14th day of June 1946.

Assistant Administrator, Production and Marketing Administration.

[P. & S. Docket No. 344]

UNION STOCK YARDS CO. OF OMAHA, LTD.

NOTICE OF PETITION FOR MODIFICATION

By a document filed on May 27, 1946, the respondent requested a modification of the rate schedule now in effect at its stockyard, which schedule was prescribed by an order dated March 1, 1933, as modified by supplemental orders dated October 6, 1937, and March 22, 1946.

Respondent seeks permission to publish and file with the Secretary an amendment to its tariff making effective the following extra service charge:

Driving livestock to railroad chutes for outbound shipment, the following charges will apply

Cattle and calves	$2.00 per car.
Hogs	$1.00 per deck.
Sheep or goats	$1.00 per deck.
Horses or mules	$2.00 per car.

NOTE: This charge will not apply to livestock stopped for feed, water, and rest, or to try the market and is forwarded without change of ownership.

Effect of proposed modification. The effect of such proposed modification, if granted, would result in additional revenue to the respondent and, accordingly, it appears that public notice should be given to all interested persons, including patrons of the respondent, so that they may have an opportunity to manifest their desire to be heard on this matter.

Therefore, notice is hereby given to the public and to all interested persons of the request of the respondent for a modification of the above orders and for the purpose of affording the respondent and all other interested persons, including patrons of the respondent, an opportunity to be heard on the matters covered in the petition for modification.

All persons who desire to be heard on this matter shall notify the Hearing Clerk, Office of Solicitor, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., within fifteen days from the date of the publication of this order.

Copies hereof shall be served on the respondent by registered mail, or in person.

Done at Washington, D. C., this 14th day of June 1946.

JOHN MINDER & SONS, INC.

ORDER DEBARRING FURTHER GRADING SERVICE ON EGGS

John Minder & Son, Inc., is a corporation which is engaged in the packaging and distribution of eggs for sale at its plant located at 101 Barclay Street, New York, New York, and has been receiving grading service on its eggs at such plant through the facilities of the United States Department of Agriculture.

On the basis of a stipulation as to the facts which was entered into on May 15, 1946, between Benjamin Heller for Kreutzer, Hauser and Selman, 32 Broadway, New York, New York, attorneys for such corporation, and James A. O'Donnell, 150 Broadway, New York, New York, an attorney for the United States Department of Agriculture, which stipulation was admitted in evidence and made a part of the record in a debarment hearing against such corporation which was held at 641 Washington Street, New York, New York, on May 16 and 17, 1946, as well as on the basis of other evidence adduced at the aforesaid hearing:

It is hereby found and determined, that, during October 1945, such corporation knowingly and wilfully violated certain provisions of the regulations (7 CFR, Cum. Supp., 55.1 et seq., as amended in 7 CFR, 1943 Supp., 55.19, 55.35, 55.37, 55.38, 55.39, 55.41—generally referred to as Service and Regulatory Announcements No. 137, as revised) issued under the authority contained in the so-called Farm Products Inspection Act (59 Stat. 136 (158), Pub. L. No. 52, 79th Cong., 1st Sess.) in that it, through one of its employees, Jacob Cooper, who was fully authorized by the corporation to act for it in the matter, did:

(a) On or about October 17, 1945, sell to the American Export Lines, Inc., New York, New York, in its capacity as general agent for the War Shipping Administration in the operation of certain vessels controlled by the latter, and deliver on board the S. S. Tagknot, one of such vessels, 20 cases of eggs, of which 5 cases were not the same eggs which had previously been inspected, graded, and passed by the United States Department of Agriculture, the contents of all such 5 cases of eggs also being below the minimum acceptable standards prescribed by the War Shipping Administration;

(b) On or about October 23, 1945, sell to the American Export Lines, Inc., New York, New York, in its capacity as general agent for the War Shipping Administration in the operation of certain vessels controlled by the latter, and deliver on board the S. S. Fairwind, another of such vessels, 20 cases of eggs which failed to meet the minimum acceptable standards prescribed by the War Shipping Administration, which eggs were delivered in substitution for 20 cases of eggs which were not, in fact, either inspected or approved by the United Department of Agriculture for that purpose at the premises of such corporation, or identified and earmarked by such corporation for delivery aboard such vessel until several hours after the actual delivery of the substituted cases of inferior eggs;

(c) On or about October 26, 1945, sell to the American Export Lines, Inc., New York, New York, in its capacity as general agent for the War Shipping Administration in the operation of certain vessels controlled by the latter, and deliver on board the S. S. Pontotoc Victory, another of such vessels, 127 cases of eggs, 15 of which bore no official United States Department of Agriculture inspection marks whatever, and 66 of which contained eggs which did not meet the minimum acceptable standards prescribed by the War Shipping Administration. Prior to the delivery of the aforesaid 127 cases of eggs, graders of the United States Department of Agriculture had inspected, stamped, and passed 127 cases of eggs which did meet the minimum acceptable requirements of the War Shipping Administration, and which were identified and earmarked for delivery to the said vessel on or about October 26, 1945; and

It is hereby further found and determined, that during October, 1945, all sales and deliveries of eggs to the American Export Lines, Inc., New York, New York, in its capacity as general agent for the War Shipping Administration in the operation of vessels controlled by the latter, were made subject to the terms and conditions of Food Control Regulation No. 14 (including Supplement No. 1 and Supplement No. 2 thereto), issued on behalf of the War Shipping Administration, a part of such terms and conditions being as follows: (1) such eggs must be at least of U. S. Grade "A" (Consumer) or of grades U. S. Procurement I or II; (2) such eggs must have been inspected, graded, and passed as meeting the requirements for grade and quality by the Office of Distribution, War Food Administration (now Production and Marketing Administration, United States Department of Agriculture); (3) cases containing such eggs delivered to the vessels as aforesaid must bear official Government grading stamps indicating that the contents had been officially inspected and graded, and the date of such inspection and grading; and (4) the seller must place a certificate on each invoice covering such a sale of eggs to the effect that the eggs delivered, and covered by such invoice, are a part of the same eggs covered by a specified Government inspection certificate executed as a result of an inspection of eggs for such delivery. James M. Rogers, the Secretary of the Corporation, and the official of such corporation who had general supervision and control over such corporation's egg business, has admitted: (i) all sales and deliveries of eggs which were made by the corporation to the American Export Lines, Inc., New York, New York, in its capacity as general agent for the War Shipping Administration, as aforesaid, including the sales and deliveries referred to in paragraphs (a), (b), and (c) above, were knowingly made subject to the terms and conditions referred to in the preceding sentence of this paragraph; and (ii) that payments to the corporation for such eggs were made on the basis, and at the rates prescribed for, the grades of eggs as shown on the official Government inspection certificates, whereas, as indicated in paragraphs (a), (b), and (c) above, some of such cases of eggs were actually of grades inferior to the grades indicated on such official Government certificates. While also admitting that the aforesaid wrongful acts were committed, Mr. James M. Rogers contended that the employee, Jacob Cooper, acted in the matter without his (Mr. Roger's) knowledge or consent. Even on the basis of such a contention, the corporation must still be held responsible for the violations on the grounds that Jacob Cooper was fully authorized by the corporation to act for it in the matter, and, Mr. James M. Rogers, Mr. Cooper's business supervisor, failed to exercise the degree of supervision and control over Mr. Cooper's business activities as might usually and normally be expected under such a relationship.

Obtaining inspections and certifications of farm products by disinterested graders is a privilege which is conferred by the United States Government, through the United States Department of Agriculture, in an effort to aid commerce by providing marks of quality upon which all may rely. Those who receive the service are benefited by the reliance placed on those marks by customers and prospective customers. Such benefits do not accrue without corresponding responsibilities. On those who are privileged to receive grading service, there is an obligation to see that they and all their officers, employees, and agents do nothing which might have the effect of lessening the faith which is justly placed in certificates of grade and quality issued by the United States Government.

In view of the foregoing, It is hereby ordered, That:

(1) During the period from May 6, 1946, to October 6, 1946, both inclusive, John Minder and Son, Inc., 101 Barclay Street, New York, New York, is debarred from having its eggs graded and certified as to grade by any official grader of the United States Department of Agriculture: Provided, That any restoring of such privilege to the said corporation on and after the latter date shall be subject to all official rules and regulations which are applicable in that connection; and

(2) A copy of this order shall be filed with the Federal Register Division, for publication.

and such other times and places as subsequently may be found necessary.

Pursuant to notice to all concerned dated March 5, 1946, the respondents and interested parties were permitted to file with the Commission on or before April 15, 1946, subsequently postponed to May 15, 1946, memoranda or briefs containing their views as to the interpretation that should be placed upon any of the provisions of section 409 of the Interstate Commerce Act, as amended, including the form, substance, and character of the terms and conditions to be prescribed and any rules and regulations which should be made by the Commission under section 403 (a) of the act.

Certain respondents and other interested persons filed briefs or memoranda containing various proposals as indicated below:

PART I. Proposal of Freight Forwarders Institute in behalf of 21 forwarders. 1.

[1] Filed as part of the original document.

That the Commission prescribe by order that no charge be made by a motor carrier and paid by a forwarder for the utilization of the motor carrier service which shall be less than the motor carrier's full cost of providing that service, including overhead.

2. That the Commission prescribe a distance scale of prima facie reasonable minimum compensation for assembling and distribution service, placing the burden upon the forwarder and the motor carrier desiring to maintain a lower basis to show that such lower basis is just and reasonable, in view of the peculiar conditions surrounding the movement; and that a reasonable minimum scale would be the contemporaneous official territory third-class scale of rates per 100 pounds less in each instance one-half of the terminal portion of the rate or 11 cents per 100 pounds, resulting in the following proposed scale of compensation:

Miles:	Cents	Miles:	Cents
5	13	100	36
10	14	110	38
15	16	120	39
20	17	130	41
25	19	140	42
30	20	150	44
35	21	160	45
45	23	180	48
50	24	190	49
55	27	200	50
60	27	300	62
65	29	400	72
70	30	500	83
75	31	600	93
80	32	700	104
85	33	800	112
95	35	1,000	129

PART II. Proposal of American Trucking Association, Inc. 1. That any rules, regulations, or practices which the Commission may prescribe in this proceeding to govern the transportation by motor carriers of forwarder traffic should, among other things, provide:

(a) The amount of compensation to be received by the motor carriers for such transportation, and all other terms and conditions thereof, shall be filed with the Commission and open to public inspection.

(b) For the establishment and enforcement of consistent standards and practices by forwarders in connection with handling of loss and damage claims, payment of motor carrier settlement, claim liability, and similar matters.

2. That with respect to the basis of compensation to be paid by forwarders to motor carriers for either assembling or distribution service or for terminal-to-terminal service the lowest basis should reflect the difference in the cost to the motor common carriers rendering the service to the forwarders and to others but in no event should the basis of compensation be less than 85 percent of the motor common carrier's local rates.

PART III. Proposal of the National Industrial Traffic League. That under section 409 as amended:

1. The Commission may require that the compensation which forwarders pay motor carriers for their services shall be stated in tariff form rather than being reflected in divisions of published joint rates.

2. No motor carrier and no freight forwarder may be required to enter into joint rates; and any joint rates or terms of utilization of service other than the terms open to all shippers under the tariffs of motor carriers are only such as voluntarily may be agreed to by the motor carrier.

3. That in any and all particular situations, the bona fide benefits of forwarder service ought to be measured against or in connection with the costs incurred. Where there is a saving or improvement of service in the consolidation of shipments between the consolidating and the break-bulk point, such benefits should fairly be extended to traffic originating prior and terminating subsequent to such consolidating and break-bulk points, but this should be without need for concessions in the compensation by carriers for the assembling and distribution services which do not represent any operating economies of the carrier.

4. As a general principle, when freight forwarding is regarded as essentially a function of consolidating smaller shipments, the savings of underlying costs ought not to be augmented by carrier discounts below their proper rates not reflecting any savings in the costs of physical service. For this would be burdening other motor carrier traffic, at the ultimate cost of shippers by highway.

5. Arrangements by which motor carrier services are utilized by freight forwarders shall be uniform, and there shall be no discrimination therein as between or among freight forwarders or others.

PART IV. Various proposals of The New England Motor Rate Bureau, Inc., Detroit Board of Commerce, Middlewest Motor Freight Bureau, Chicago Suburban Motor Carriers Association, Inc., Chicago-Milwaukee Motor Carriers Conference, Southern Wisconsin Motor Carriers Conference, The Chicago Association of Commerce, Atlanta Freight Bureau, Central Package Car Company, Anderson Motor Service Company, Consolidated Forwarding Company, Inc., Husman & Loper Freight Lines, Inc., Lee Transportation Company, Western Trucking Company, Inc., Shein's Express, Overseas Transportation Co., Inc., and New York, New Brunswick Auto Express Co., Inc., may be briefly summarized as follows:

1. That the present arrangements between forwarders and motor common carriers should not be disturbed.

2. That all agreements respecting compensation, rules, regulations and practices between forwarders and motor common carriers be filed in tariff form with the Commission and (a) should be open to public inspection; (b) should not be open to public inspection; (c) should apply uniformly to all forwarders and motor common carriers so as to provide a uniform and equal treatment for motor common carriers in groups rather than permitting individual or different arrangements between individual forwarders and individual motor common carriers.

3. Bases of compensation to be paid by forwarders to motor common carriers: (a) should be left to agreements between the forwarders and motor common carriers; (b) should be left to agreements between forwarders and motor common carriers when the services are within commercial zones defined by the Commission; (c) should fully compensate the motor common carriers for the use of their facilities; (d) should be the full local rates of the motor common carriers; (e) should reflect the difference in cost to the motor common carriers rendering the service to the forwarders and others; (f) should be not less than 85 percent of the local rates of the motor common carriers; and (g) should be not less than 85 percent of the local rates of the motor common carriers between points that the traffic is physically transported but not less than the applicable fourth-class rate except when articles are rated or classified lower than fourth class, such lower rate or charge to be observed as maximum compensation for the motor common carrier.

PART V. The Commission desires that the respondent motor carriers and freight forwarders, or other interested parties, develop upon the record at the hearings as complete information as possible concerning differences if any in service performed by motor carriers for freight forwarders and that performed for others, and in the cost thereof, also variations in the service performed for freight forwarders, on (a) traffic handled in assembly or distribution service and (b) traffic handled in line-haul or terminal-to-terminal service in truckload lots, and any other facts pertinent to the question of the level of the compensation to be paid by freight forwarders to motor carriers; whether in prescribing terms and conditions, including terms and conditions governing the determination and fixing of the compensation to be paid by freight forwarders, the Commission should deal with forwarder-motor carrier relations on territorial bases, and if so what the territorial designations should be; and any other information pertinent to the above proposals or any other proposals which may be submitted.

[Nos. 29555, MC-C-542, 29556, MC-C-543]

PICK-UP AND DELIVERY SERVICES AND CHARGES ON SMALL SHIPMENTS BY RAILROADS AND MOTOR CARRIERS

JUNE 13, 1946.

At a general session on June 10, 1946, the Commission upon its own motion instituted investigations into the reasonableness and lawfulness otherwise of charges, rules, regulations, and practices of Class I common carriers by railroad and rules, regulations and practices of Class I common carriers by motor vehicle subject to the Interstate Commerce Act, affecting pick-up and delivery services in connection with transportation in interstate or foreign commerce by said carriers.

At the same time investigations were likewise instituted into the reasonableness and the lawfulness otherwise of the rates, charges, rules, regulations and practices affecting the transportation in interstate or foreign commerce by common carriers by railroad and by common carriers by motor vehicle subject to the Interstate Commerce Act of small shipments not exceeding 300 pounds each in weight.

For a more detailed statement of the issues in these proceedings reference is made to the orders of investigation.

Considered and denied at the same general session of the Commission were the petitions dated February 4, 1946, and March 9, 1946, respectively, of American Truck Associations, et al., "for investigation and order with respect to rail and forwarder less-carload and any-quantity exceptions ratings and commodity rates lower than classification bases and to corresponding motor common carrier exceptions ratings and commodity rates" and of Middlewest Motor Freight Bureau, et al., "For Rule to Show Cause" why certain pick-up and delivery rates should not be increased. It appeared that the matters covered in the first petition are now in major part under consideration in Ex Parte No. 162, Increased Railway Rates, Fares and Charges, 1946, and Docket No. 28310, Consolidated Freight Classification, and to some extent in the small shipments investigation mentioned above. It also appeared that the action sought by the second petition was taken in broader scope in the pick-up and delivery services investigations mentioned above.

Public hearings, in which State commissions will be invited to participate will be assigned in these proceedings at times and places to be hereafter announced.

In Nos. 29556 and MC-C-543 a prehearing conference will be held at the office of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, D. C., on July 15, 1946, beginning at 10:00 o'clock a. m. Commissioner Alldredge will preside, assisted by Examiners H. G. Cummings, L. J. Kassel, and G. B. Vandiver. At that time proposals will be considered bearing upon times and places of the hearings, nature of evidence to be submitted, exchange of exhibits and all other matters pertinent to the investigations as described in Rule 68 of the General Rules of Practice.

OFFICE OF PRICE ADMINISTRATION

[SO 133, Order 53]

MYRTLE DESK CO.

ADJUSTMENT OF MAXIMUM PRICES

For the reasons set forth in an opinion issued simultaneously herewith and filed with the Division of the Federal Register, and pursuant to Supplementary Order No. 133, it is ordered:

(a) Manufacturer's maximum prices. The Myrtle Desk Company, High Point, North Carolina, may increase by 4.7 percent, its current maximum prices (exclusive of any permitted increases) for sales of wood office furniture which it manufactures.

(b) Maximum prices of purchasers for resale. Resellers of any article which the manufacturer has sold at an adjusted ceiling price determine under this order shall determine their maximum prices as follows:

A reseller who had a properly established maximum price in effect before this order was issued for an article covered by this order may add to that maximum price an adjustment charge in the same dollar-and-cents amount as the adjustment charge authorized by this order for, and which he has paid to, his supplier.

If the reseller did not have a properly established maximum price for the article in effect before this order was issued he shall first determine a maximum price (exclusive of adjustment charges), and to that price he may add an adjustment charge in the same dollar-and-cents amount as the adjustment authorized by this order for, and which he has paid, to his supplier. To find his maximum price (exclusive of adjustment charges) for this purpose the reseller shall add to his invoice cost, less an adjustment charge stated on that invoice, the same percentage markup which he has on the "most comparable article" for which he has a properly established ceiling price. For this purpose the "most comparable article" is the one which meets all of the following tests:

(1) It belongs to the narrowest trade category which includes the article being priced.

(2) Both it and the article being priced were purchased from the same class of supplier.

(3) Both it and the article being priced belong to a class of articles to which, according to customary trade practices, an approximately uniform percentage markup is applied.

(4) Its net replacement cost is nearest to the net cost of the article being priced.

The determination of a ceiling price in this way need not be reported to the Office of Price Administration; however, each seller must keep complete records showing all the information called for by OPA Form 620-759 with regard to how he determined his ceiling prices, for so long as the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, remains in effect.

If the maximum resale price cannot be determined under the above method the reseller shall apply to the Office of Price Administration for the establishment of a ceiling price under § 1499.3 (c) of the General Maximum Price Regulation. Ceiling prices established under that section will reflect the supplier's prices as adjusted in accordance with this order.

(c) Terms of sale. Maximum prices adjusted by this order are subject to each seller's terms, discounts, allowances, and other price differentials, in effect during March, 1942, or which have been properly established under the applicable OPA regulation.

(d) Notification. At the time of, or prior to the first invoice to a purchaser for resale showing a maximum price adjusted in accordance with the terms of this order, the seller shall notify such purchaser in writing of the methods established in paragraph (b) for determining adjusted maximum prices for sales of the articles covered by this order. This notice may be given in any convenient form.

(e) Reports. The manufacturer shall file the report described in Section 5 of Supplementary Order No. 133 with the Office of Price Administration, Washington 25, D. C.

(f) Revocation or amendment. This order may be revoked or amended by the Price Administrator at any time.

(g) The provisions of Supplementary Order No. 153 shall not apply to resale prices of articles covered by this order.

(h) Effective date. This order shall become effective on the 18th day of June 1496.

Issued this 17th day of June 1946.

[SO 133, Order 52]

ALMA DESK CO.

ADJUSTMENT OF MAXIMUM PRICES

For the reasons set forth in an opinion issued simultaneously herewith and filed with the Division of the Federal Register, and pursuant to Supplementary Order No. 133, it is ordered:

(a) Manufacturer's maximum prices. The Alma Desk Company, High Point, North Carolina, may increase by 7.0 percent, its current maximum prices (exclusive of any permitted increases) for sales of wood office desks and tables which it manufactures.

(b) Maximum prices of purchasers for resale. Resellers of any article which the manufacturer has sold at an adjusted ceiling price determined under this order shall determine their maximum prices as follows:

A reseller who had a properly established maximum price in effect before this order was issued for an article covered by this order may add to that maximum price an adjustment charge in the same dollar-and-cents amount as the adjustment charge authorized by this order for, and which he has paid to, his supplier.

If the reseller did not have a properly established maximum price for the article in effect before this order was issued he shall first determine a maximum price (exclusive of adjustment charges), and to that price he may add an adjustment charge in the same dollar-and-cents amount as the adjustment authorized by this order for, and which he has paid, to his supplier. To find his maximum price (exclusive of adjustment charges) for this purpose the reseller shall add to his invoice cost, less an adjustment charge stated on that invoice, the same percentage markup which he has on the "most comparable article" for which he has a properly established ceiling price. For this purpose the "most comparable article" is the one which meets all of the following tests:

(i) It belongs to the narrowest trade category which includes the article being priced.

(ii) Both it and the article being priced were purchased from the same class of supplier.

(iii) Both it and the article being priced belong to a class of articles to which, according to customary trade practices, an approximately uniform percentage markup is applied.

(iv) Its net replacement cost is nearest to the net cost of the article being priced.

The determination of a ceiling price in this way need not be reported to the Office of Price Administration; however, each seller must keep complete records showing all the information called for by OPA Form 620-759 with regard to how he determined his ceiling prices, for so long as the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, remains in effect.

If the maximum resale price cannot be determined under the above method the reseller shall apply to the Office of Price Administration for the establishment of a ceiling price under § 1499.3 (c) of the General Maximum Price Regulation. Ceiling prices established under that section will reflect the supplier's prices as adjusted in accordance with this order.

(c) Terms of sale. Maximum prices adjusted by this order are subject to each seller's terms, discounts, allowances, and other price differentials, in effect during March 1942, or which have been properly established under the applicable OPA regulation.

(d) Notification. At the time of, or prior to, the first invoice to a purchaser for resale showing a maximum price adjusted in accordance with the terms of this order, the seller shall notify such purchaser in writing of the methods established in paragraph (b) for determining adjusted maximum prices for sales of the articles covered by this order. This notice may be given in any convenient form.

(e) Reports. The manufacturer shall file the report described in section 5 of Supplementary Order No. 133 with the Office of Price Administration, Washington 25, D. C.

(f) Revocation or amendment. This order may be revoked or amended by the Price Administrator at any time.

(g) The provisions of Supplementary Order No. 153 shall not apply to resale prices of articles covered by this order.

(h) Effective date. This order shall become effective on the 18th day of June 1946.

Administrator.

SCOVILL MFG. CO.

DETERMINATION OF MAXIMUM PRICES

Order No. 259 Under Revised Supplementary Order No. 119. Scovill Manufacturing Company, Sturgis, Michigan. Docket No. 6123-RSO 119-112.

For the reasons set forth in an opinion issued simultaneously herewith and filed with the Division of the Federal Register and pursuant to section 13 of Revised Supplementary Order No. 119; it is ordered:

(a) Maximum prices for Scovill Manufacturing Company, Sturgis, Michigan. (1) The above manufacturer may determine his maximum prices for his line of water closet tank fittings by increasing by 23.8 percent his prices on these items in effect on October 1, 1941 to each class of purchaser.

(2) Since the provisions of this order are not intended to reduce properly established maximum prices, the manufacturer may continue to use as his maximum prices to each class of purchaser his properly established prices in effect under Maximum Price Regulation No. 591 in the event that such prices exceed the prices in effect to each class of purchaser on October 1, 1941 plus the increase provided for in (1) above.

(3) The maximum prices set forth above shall be subject to discounts and allowances including transportation allowances and price differentials which are at least as favorable as those the manufacturer extended or rendered or would have extended or rendered to each class of purchaser on commodities in the same general category March 1942.

(b) Resellers' maximum prices. All resellers of the commodities covered by this order (but not manufacturers who purchase such items for use in the manufacture of other products) may add to their presently established maximum prices the actual dollars-and-cents increase in cost resulting from the adjustment granted the manufacturer by this order.

(c) Notification to all purchasers. The manufacturer shall send the following notice to every purchaser of the commodities covered by this order at or before the time of the first invoice after the adjustment granted by this order is put into effect:

Order No. 259 under Revised Supplementary Order No. 119 authorizes a 23.8 percent increase in October 1, 1941 net prices for sales of water closet tank fittings manufactured by this company.

Resellers (but not manufacturers who purchase such items for use in the manufacture of other products) may add to their existing maximum prices the actual dollars-and-cents increase in cost resulting from the adjustment granted by Order No. 259.

(d) All prayers for relief not granted herein are denied.

(e) This order may be amended or revoked by the Price Administrator at any time.

This order shall become effective June 18, 1946.

Administrator.

SOLID FUELS IN BAY CITY, MICH., AREA

In the drafting of Revised Order No. G–44 under Revised Maximum Price Regulation No. 122, issued on October 4, 1945 as an adopting order under Regional Basic Order No. G–74 under Revised Maximum Price Regulation No. 122, an error was made in the maximum price established for Lump and Egg Coal, Size Groups Nos. 1 and 2, and mined in Producing District No. 7.

This error appears in Part III, A, of the price schedule contained in paragraph (e) (1) of the said Revised Order No. G–44. The maximum price is therein erroneously listed at $10.25. It was intended that the price be set forth as $11.25.

(3) Special raw or special pasteurized fluid milk with less than 4.2% butterfat content. The maximum price for sales of special raw or special pasteurized fluid milk with less than 4.2% butterfat content in the summer resort areas listed in Appendices A and B of this order in quart or pint packages; to subdealers, at wholesale into-store, into-rooming house, into-restaurant and hotel, at retail out-of store, out-of-rooming house and to-the home; in bulk, at wholesale to stores, hotels, restaurants and institutions, shall be the seller's maximum price in March 1942 for such milk for the same type of sale and delivery in the same type and size of container, plus the appropriate figure for his area set forth in Table A of Sec. 4.

SEC. 6. Calculations. Where the adjusted maximum price is a unit figure containing a fraction of a cent, the seller must multiply such fractional unit figure by the total number of units in each sale or series of sales for which a single collection is made. Where the resulting amount contains a fraction of a cent, or where only one unit is sold, the seller shall adjust the maximum price to the nearest full cent, except that if the fraction should be a half cent, the seller shall adjust the maximum price to the next higher full cent (for example, a maximum price of 4½¢ for one unit shall be adjusted to 5¢ for one unit, 9¢ for two units, 14¢ for three units, etc.).

SEC. 7. Geographical applicability. The provisions of this order shall apply to all sales and deliveries of Grade A pasteurized and raw fluid milk, special and premium fluid milk in packages in the summer resort areas described in Appendix A hereof; to all sales and deliveries of Grade A pasteurized and raw fluid milk, special and premium fluid milk in bulk in the summer resort areas described in Appendices B and C hereof.

SEC. 8. Appendices. Appendices A, B and C, are set forth on pages 8, 9 and 10, respectively, of this order.

Effective period. This Order No. G 12–A shall become effective June 15th, 1946, and shall terminate on September 30, 1946, unless earlier revoked.

This Order No. G–12A may be amended at any time.

JAMES L. MEADER,
Regional Administrator.

Approved: June 14, 1946.

For the reasons set forth in an opinion issued simultaneously herewith and filed with the Division of the Federal Register and under the authority vested in the Regional Administrator of Region II by the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942 as amended, by General Order No. 68, as amended, and by Revised Procedural Regulation No. 1, which authority has been duly delegated by such Regional Administrator to the District Director, Newark District Office, it is hereby ordered,

SECTION 1. What this order covers. This adopting order under Basic Order No. 1 as amended under General Order 68, as amended, covers sales by all persons to ultimate users or to purchasers for resale on an installed basis of Ready-Mix Concrete of the types and compositions set forth in Schedule A, hereto annexed. All provisions of Basic Order No. 1, as amended under General Order No. 68 as amended are adopted in this order and are just as much a part of this order as if specifically set forth herein. If said Basic Order No. 1 as amended is further amended in any respect the provisions of said order, as amended, shall likewise without further action become part of this order. All persons subject to this adopting order are also subject to Basic Order No. 1, as amended, under General Order 68 as amended and should be familiar with the provisions of said order.

SEC. 2. Territory covered by this order. The geographical area covered by this order consists of the counties of Bergen, Essex, Hudson, Passaic, and Union, in the Northern New Jersey Area, all in the State of New Jersey.

SEC. 3. Maximum prices. The maximum prices for Ready-Mix Concrete covered by this order are set forth in Schedule A hereto annexed and made a part of this order.

The maximum prices fixed by this order supersede any maximum price or pricing method previously established by Maximum Price Regulation 592 or by any other applicable regulation or order. Except to the extent that they are inconsistent with the provisions of this order, all other provisions of Maximum Price Regulation 592 or any other applicable regulation or order shall remain applicable to sales covered by this order.

SEC. 6. Posting of maximum prices. Every seller making sales covered by this order shall post a copy of the applicable list of maximum prices fixed by this order in each of his places of business within any of the counties covered by this order.

(b) Maximum prices for insufficiently described items. Where the seller's records or sales slip upon a sale of Ready-Mix Concrete in the area covered by this order, do not contain a sufficiently complete description to identify the type of mix and the nature of the aggregate and thus determine the maximum price fixed by the applicable schedule of the order, the maximum price applicable to such sale shall be the maximum price of the lowest priced type of mix and aggregate listed in the applicable schedule to which the incomplete description could apply. In the absence of any description, the maximum price shall be the lowest price that can be computed under the applicable schedule of this order.

PORTLAND GAS & COKE CO.

NOTICE OF FILING AND ORDER FOR HEARING

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the City of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, on the 14th day of June A. D. 1946.

Notice is hereby given that an application has been filed with this Commission pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 by Portland Gas & Coke Company ("Portland"), a gas utility subsidiary of American Power & Light Company ("American"), a registered holding company subsidiary of Electric Bond and Share Company, also a registered holding company. The filing seeks approval, pursuant to section 11 (e) and other applicable sections of the act, of a program by Portland (1) to refund its presently outstanding mortgage bonds and provide $1,753,000 for new construction and (2) to reclassify its presently outstanding 6% and 7% preferred stocks, $100 par value, and no par value common stock into a new class of common stock.

All interested persons are referred to said document which is on file in the office of this Commission for a statement of the transactions therein proposed, which are summarized below.

Portland is an Oregon corporation principally engaged in the manufacture and distribution of gas in Oregon and Washington. It also sells by-products obtained in connection with the manufacture of gas.

Of the securities of Portland outstanding, American is the owner and holder of all of the common stock (with the exception of ten directors' qualifying shares); such common stock represents 83% of the voting power of the company.

As an initial step in carrying out the program described above, Portland proposes to issue and sell, pursuant to the competitive bidding requirements of Rule U-50, $10,000,000 principal amount of thirty-year-% First Mortgage Bonds to be dated July 1, 1946 and to be issued under a Mortgage and Deed of Trust. The interest rate of said bonds (to be a multiple of ⅛ of 1%) and the price to be received by Portland (to be not not less than 100% of principal amount and not in excess of 102¾% of such principal amount) are to be determined by competitive bidding. Portland also proposes to enter into a loan agreement with certain banks and, pursuant thereto, to borrow at 1¾% interest the sum of $500,000. Repayment of said loans will be made semi-annually in the amount of $50,000, the last payment to be made in 1951.

The proceeds from the sale of the First Mortgage Bonds and the proposed bank loans are to be used (1) to redeem Portland's First and Refunding Mortgage 5% Gold Bonds due 1940 (extended to January 1, 1950) outstanding in the principal amount of $5,751,000, at 100% of principal amount thereof and accrued interest; to redeem its First Lien and General Mortgage Gold Bonds, Series of "4½% due 1940" (extended to January 1, 1950) outstanding in the principal amount of $2,625,000, at 100% of principal amount thereof and accrued interest, and to retire Portland Gas Company's non-callable First Mortgage 5% Gold Bonds due 1951, assumed by Portland, at 100% of principal amount thereof ($371,000) plus interest to maturity, and (2) to provide additional funds for construction requirements and expansion of its facilities during 1946 and 1947.

Upon consummation of the initial step described above, and for the purpose of fairly and equitably distributing voting power among its security holders and to complete the simplification of its capital structure in order to meet the standards of section 11 (b) (2), Portland proposes to reclassify its outstanding 7% and 6% preferred stocks and common stock into a single class of common stock. The details of such reclassification of preferred and common stocks of Portland into a new class of common stock will be the subject of a subsequent amendment to the filing herein.

Portland requests that the order of the Commission herein contain recitals that the issuance of bonds and notes are necessary or appropriate to effectuate the provisions of section 11 (b) of the act in accordance with the meaning and requirements of the Internal Revenue Code, as amended, including section 1808 (f) and Supplement R thereof.

It appearing to the Commission that it is appropriate in the public interest and in the interest of investors and consumers that a hearing be held with respect to said application and that said application shall not be granted except pursuant to further order of the Commission:

It is ordered, That a hearing on said application under the applicable provisions of the Act and the Rules of the Commission thereunder be held on June 25, 1946 at 10:00 a. m., e. d. s. t., in the offices of the Securities and Exchange Commission, 18th and Locust Streets, Philadelphia 3, Pennsylvania. On such day the hearing room clerk in Room 318 will advise as to the room in which such hearing will be held. The applicants have designated sections 6 (b), 11 (b) and 11 (e) of the act and Rule U-42 thereunder as applicable to the proposed transactions.

It is further ordered, That Richard Townsend or any other officer or officers of the Commission designated by it for that purpose shall preside at such hearing. The officer so designated to preside at such hearing is hereby authorized to exercise all powers granted to the Commission under section 18 (c) of said act and to a Trial Examiner under the Commission's rules of practice.

It is further ordered, That the hearing to be convened on June 25, 1946 be confined to a consideration of the proposed issue and sale of first mortgage bonds and note proposed to be issued and sold by the applicant. Thereafter, at such time as an amendment shall be filed with respect to the proposed reclassification of the outstanding preferred and common stocks of Portland, hearings will be reconvened and appropriate notice thereof will be duly given.

It is further ordered, That the Secretary of the Commission shall serve, by registered mail, a copy of this order on the applicant herein and on the Public Utility Commission of the State of Oregon and the Department of Public Utilities of the State of Washington; and that said notice of hearing be given to all other persons by publication of this order in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Any person desiring to be heard in connection with these proceedings, or proposing to intervene herein, shall file with the Secretary of the Commission on or before June 25, 1946 his request or application therefor, as provided by Rule XVII of the rules of practice of the Commission.

It is further ordered, That, without limiting the scope of issues presented by said application, particular attention will be directed at said hearing to the following matters and questions:

(1) Whether the proposed issue and sale of the new bonds and notes are solely for the purpose of financing the business of Portland and have been expressly authorized by the State regulatory authorities of the states in which it is organized and doing business.

(2) Whether the fees, commissions, or other remunerations to be paid in connection with the proposed transactions are for necessary services and are reasonable in amount.

(3) What terms or conditions, if any, with respect to the proposed transactions should be prescribed in the public interest or for the protection of investors or consumers.

(4) Generally, whether the proposed transactions comply with the applicable provisions of the act and the rules, regulations and orders promulgated thereunder.

By the Commission.

Assistant to the Secretary.

To this end American in May 1946, acting through a broker, undertook to purchase under the exemption afforded by paragraph (a) (6) of Rule U-40 of the Rules and Regulations promulgated pursuant to said act, such stock as was owned by the general public, offering $18 for each share of no par common stock and $180 for each share of common stock of the par value of $100 per share. Under this offer 3,230 shares have so far been acquired. In making such offer American agreed that if within 3 years from May 7, 1946 it should resell any shares purchased at prices in excess of the prices stated above or should purchase from any other holder of any such common stock any shares thereof at prices in excess of the prices stated above, the maximum excess over the above prices so received or paid by American would be paid to all sellers for each share purchased as a result of the offer, with appropriate adjustments for contributions, if any, made after May 7, 1946 by American to Washington. Any distribution of Washington's common stock to American's stockholders was not to be considered a sale within the meaning of the foregoing.

American is informed that 490 shares of no par common stock of such minority interest are owned by officers and directors of Washington and states that by reason of the positions held by such officers and directors they are, under the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, affiliates of Washington. American states further that the acquisition by it of said shares of common stock of Washington from such officers and directors is not within the exemption provided by paragraph (a) (6) of Rule U-40. American accordingly requests authority, in the present filing to acquire such shares from such officers and directors for the consideration and on the basis set forth above. Such consideration would amount to a total of $8 820 for the 490 shares held by said officers and directors.

American has requested that the Commission enter an order permitting said declaration to become effective by July 6, 1946. The company has designated sections 9 (a), 10 and 12 (f) of the act as applicable to the proposed transactions.

By the Commission.

All interested persons are referred to said document which is on file in the offices of this Commission for a statement of the transactions therein proposed, which are summarized as follows:

The Commission, in its order of January 24, 1944, issued pursuant to section 11 (b) (1) of the act in the matter of The Middle West Corporation and its Subsidiary Companies (Holding Company Act Release No. 4846), directed American, among other things, to dispose of its interest in the electric, ice and water properties of West Texas Utilities Company in the Dalhart and Texline areas located in the counties of Ballam, Hartley, Sherman and Moore in the State of Texas. West Texas, a public utility company, proposes to sell its electric, ice and water properties located in the Dalhart and Texline areas to Southwestern Public Service Company, a public utility company, for a base price of $2,135,000, of which $1,310,000 shall be for the electric properties, $650,000 for the water properties, and $175,000 for the ice properties. West Texas proposes to deposit the proceeds of the sale in the first instance with the Trustee under the company's mortgage dated August 1, 1943, and to withdraw such proceeds pursuant to the provisions of the mortgage. Thereupon, the proceeds, or an amount equivalent to such proceeds, will be expended for the purchase of the 25,643 shares of West Texas' preferred stock now owned by American, and the balance will be invested in electric utility plant or will be expended for such other purposes as are specified in section 372 of the Internal Revenue Code.

It appearing to the Commission that it is appropriate in the public interest and in the interest of investors and consumers that a hearing be held with respect to said declaration and that said declaration shall not be permitted to become effective except pursuant to further order of the Commission:

AUTHORITY: § 415.101 to § 415.142, inclusive, issued under secs. 506 (e), 507 (c), 508, 509, and 516 (b) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act, as amended: 52 Stat. 73, 52 Stat. 835, 58 Stat. 918; 7 U.S.C. 1506 (e), 1507 (c), 1508, 1509, 1516 (b).

MANNER OF OBTAINING INSURANCE

§ 415.101 Availability of flax crop insurance. (a) Flax crop insurance will be provided on the flax crop planted for harvest in 1947 in accordance with this subpart. Flax crop insurance against loss in yields will be offered only in States or counties where the Corporation determines that sufficient data are available to enable the Corporation to establish flax yields and premium rates. The coverage per acre of flax crop insurance shall not exceed 75 percent of the average yield of flax for the farm.

(b) Insurance will not be provided in any county unless written applications for insurance on crops authorized to be insured are filed, which, together with contracts in force, cover at least fifty farms, or one-third of the farms normally producing these crops, except that insurance may be provided for producers on farms situated in a local producing area bordering on a county with a crop insurance program.

§ 415.102 Application for insurance. Application for insurance, on a form entitled "Application for Flax Crop Insurance," may be made by any person to cover his interest as landlord, owner-operator, or tenant, in a flax crop. An application shall cover the applicant's interest in the flax crop on all insurance units considered for crop insurance purposes to be located in the county or, where applicable, on all insurance units in the local producing area, in which the applicant has an interest at the time of the seeding of the flax crop to be harvested in 1947: Provided, however, That an application executed by any person as an individual shall not cover his interest as a partner in a crop produced by a partnership. Applications shall be submitted to the office of the county association on or before the applicable closing date shown in § 415.141.

§ 415.103 Acceptance of applications by the Corporation. (a) Upon acceptance of an application by a duly authorized representative of the Corporation, the insurance contract shall be in effect, provided such application is submitted in accordance with this subpart. The applicant's copy of the accepted application shall be mailed to him.

(b) The Corporation reserves the right to reject any application for insurance with respect to any one or more of the insurance units covered by the application, or to limit the insurance on the applicant's interest in any insurance unit covered by the application to any available coverage per acre lower than the one applied for.

(c) Insurance contracts covering farms situated in a local producing area shall be handled in the office of the county association of an adjoining county with a crop insurance program.

INSURANCE COVERAGE

§ 415.104 Insurable and non-insurable farms. Any farm or part thereof which is designated on the crop insurance listing sheet as "non-insurable," because of the insurance risk involved, shall not be considered in any manner whatsoever under the insurance contract, except as provided in § 415.116 (b) and § 415.136. The Corporation may determine that a farm or part thereof is non-insurable and so designate it on the listing sheet at any time before the applicable calendar closing date for the filing of applications for insurance. Any farm or part thereof not so designated is insurable.

§ 415.105 Determination of insured acreage and interest. (a) Promptly after seeding a flax crop the insured shall submit to the Corporation, on a form entitled "Flax Crop Insurance Acreage Report," a report over his signature of the acreage seeded to flax on each insurance unit in which he has an interest at the time of seeding and his interest at the time of seeding in the flax seeded for harvest as seed. This report submitted by the insured shall be considered final and not subject to change by the insured.

(b) The insured acreage with respect to each insurance unit shall be the acreage of flax seeded for harvest as seed as reported by the insured or as determined by the Corporation, whichever the Corporation shall elect; Provided, however, That the Corporation reserves the right to limit the acreage to be insured: Provided, further, That insurance shall not attach with respect to any acreage seeded to flax which is destroyed or substantially destroyed and which can be reseeded before it is too late to reseed flax, as determined by the Corporation, and such acreage is not reseeded to flax.

(c) The insured interest with respect to each insurance unit shall be the insured's interest in the crop at the time of seeding as reported by the insured or the interest which the Corporation determines as the insured's actual interest at the time of seeding, whichever the Corporation shall elect: Provided, however, That for the purpose of determining loss, the insured interest shall not exceed the insured's actual interest at the time of loss.

§ 415.106 Insurance period. Insurance with respect to any insured acreage shall attach at the time the flax is seeded. Insurance shall cease with respect to any portion of the flax crop covered by the insurance contract upon threshing or removal from the insurance unit, but in no event shall the insurance remain in effect later than October 31, 1947, unless such time is extended in writing by the Corporation.

§ 415.107 Insured production. The insured production for each insurance unit under the contract shall be the number of bushels of flax determined by multiplying the insured acreage by the coverage per acre, and by the insured interest in the crop at the time of seeding. If different coverages per acre are applicable to parts of the insurance unit, the insured production shall be computed separately, using the applicable acreage for each coverage per acre, and the total of such computed amounts shall be the insured production for the insurance unit.

§ 415.108 Causes of loss insured against. The insurance contract shall cover loss in yield of flax due to unavoidable causes including drought, flood, hail, wind, frost, winter-kill, lightning, fire, excessive rain, snow, wildlife, hurricane, tornado, insect infestation, plant disease, and such other unavoidable causes as may be determined by the Board of Directors of the Corporation: Provided, however, That the Board of Directors may determine that for any county or area the insurance contract shall provide that loss in yield of flax due to any of the foregoing causes is not insured.

Where insurance is written on an irrigated basis, the insurance contract shall cover loss in yield due to failure of the water supply from natural causes that could not be prevented by the insured, lowering of the water level in pump wells adequate at the beginning of the growing season to the extent that either deepening the well or drilling a new well would be necessary to obtain an adequate supply of water, failure of public power used for pumping or failure of an irrigation district or water company to deliver water where such failure is not within the control of the insured, or the collapse of casing in wells where such collapse could not have been foreseen and prevented by the insured.

§ 415.109 Causes of loss not insured against. The contract shall not cover damage to quality in any case, or loss in yield caused by:

(a) Neglect or malfeasance of the insured or of any person in his household or connected with the farm as tenant, or wage hand;

(b) Theft;

(c) Domestic animals or poultry;

(d) Poor farming practices, including but not limited to the use of defective or unadapted seed, overseeding or underseeding, failure properly to prepare the land for seeding and failure properly to seed, care for, or harvest and thresh the insured crop;

(e) Following different fertilizer or farming practices than those considered in establishing the average yield, or seeding on land of poorer average quality for the production of flax than the average quality of the land considered in establishing the average yield for the farm or part thereof;

(f) Failure to reseed the flax under circumstances where the Corporation determines it is practicable to reseed;

(g) Seeding flax under conditions of immediate hazard;

(h) Inability to obtain labor, seed, fertilizer, machinery, repairs or insect poisons;

(i) Breakdown of machinery or failure of equipment due to mechanical defects;

(j) Failure properly to apply irrigation water to flax in proportion to the amount of water available for all irrigated crops; or

(k) Failure to provide adequate casing or properly to adjust the pumping equipment in the event of a lowering of the water level in pump wells where such adjustments can be made without deepening the well.

PREMIUM FOR INSURANCE CONTRACT

§ 415.110 Amount of premium. The premium for each insurance unit under the contract shall be the number of bushels of flax determined by multiplying the insured acreage of flax for the insurance unit by the premium rate per acre and by the insured interest in the crop at the time of seeding. If more than one premium rate is applicable to the insurance unit, a premium shall be computed separately using the applicable acreage for each rate, and the total of the amounts so computed shall be the premium for the insurance unit. The premium for the insurance contract shall be the total of the premiums computed for the insured for all insurance units covered by the contract. The premium with respect to any insured acreage shall be regarded as earned when the flax crop on such acreage is seeded. The minimum premium payable by the insured with respect to any insurance contract shall be two bushels of flax.

§ 415.111 Manner of payment of premium. (a) By executing a form entitled "Application for Flax Crop Insurance", the applicant executes a premium note. This note represents a promise to pay to the Corporation, on or before the maturity date specified in § 415.142, the total premium for all insurance units covered by the insurance contract. Such note or unpaid portion thereof shall bear interest after maturity at the rate of one-half of one percent for each calendar month or fraction thereof, except that no interest shall be charged on any amount paid within two calendar months after maturity.

(b) Payment on any such note made before maturity may be made in flax or cash, or both. In connection with any such payment there shall be credited on the note the number of bushels of flax computed by dividing the payment made (the proceeds of the sale of flax if flax is paid) by the cash equivalent price per bushel for the date of payment. Later payments may be made only in cash. The cash equivalent of any premium or portion thereof which is not paid before maturity shall be established on the basis of the cash equivalent price in effect on the maturity date. Payments in cash shall be made by means of cash or by check, money order, or bank draft payable to the order of the Treasurer of the United States. All checks and drafts will be accepted subject to collection, and payments tendered shall not be regarded as paid unless collection is made. When a payment is made in flax, it shall be by means of a negotiable warehouse receipt or other instrument acceptable to the Corporation representing saleable flax.

(c) Any unpaid amount of any such note (either before or after the date of maturity) may be deducted from any indemnity payable under the contract by the Corporation, from the proceeds of any commodity loan to the insured, and from any payments made to the insured under the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act, as amended, or any other act of Congress or program administered by the United States Department of Agriculture. Where any such deduction is made before the date of maturity, the cash equivalent of the deduction will be based on the cash equivalent price used in computing the indemnity payment or the cash equivalent price determined by the Corporation to be in effect on the day the county committee approves such loan or other payment, whichever is applicable. Such price shall also be used in determining the number of bushels of flax to be credited on the note.

LOSS

§ 415.112 Notice of loss or damage of flax crop. Unless otherwise provided by the Corporation, if a loss is probable, notice in writing shall be given to the Corporation at the office of the county association immediately after any material damage to the insured crop and before the crop is harvested, removed, or any other use is made of it. Any such notice shall be given in time to allow the Corporation to make appropriate inspection.

§ 415.113 Released acreage. Any insured acreage on which the flax crop has been destroyed or substantially destroyed may be released by the Corporation for planting a substitute crop or to be put to another use. The flax crop shall be deemed to have been substantially destroyed if the Corporation determines that it has been so badly damaged that farmers generally in the area where the farm is located and on whose farms similar damage occurred would not further care for the crop or harvest any portion thereof.

Before any acreage is released it shall be inspected and an appraisal made of the yield that would be realized if the crop on such acreage remained for harvest. Any such appraisal shall be subject to the minimum set forth in § 415.116 (a).

On any acreage where the flax has been partially destroyed but not released by the Corporation, proper measures shall be taken to protect the crop from further damage. There shall be no abandonment of any crop or portion thereof to the Corporation.

§ 415.114 Time of loss. Loss, if any, shall be deemed to have occurred at the end of the insurance period as set forth in § 415.106, unless the Corporation determines that the flax crop was destroyed or substantially destroyed earlier, in which event the loss shall be deemed to have occurred on the date so determined by the Corporation.

§ 415.115 Proof of loss. If a loss is claimed, the insured shall submit to the Corporation a form entitled "Statement in Proof of Loss", containing such information regarding the manner and extent of the loss as may be required by the Corporation. The statement in proof of loss shall be submitted not later than 60 days after the time of loss, unless the time for submitting the claim is extended in writing by the Corporation. It shall be a condition precedent to any liability under the insurance contract that the insured establish that any loss for which claim is made has been directly caused by one or more of the hazards insured against by the insurance contract during the term of the contract, and that the insured further establish that the loss has not arisen from or been caused by, either directly or indirectly, any of the hazards not insured against by the insurance contract. If a loss is claimed, any flax acreage which is not to be harvested shall be left intact until the Corporation makes an inspection.

§ 415.116 Amount of loss. (a) The amount of loss with respect to any insurance unit will be the amount of the insured production under the contract for such insurance unit, less the product of the insured interest and the total production for such unit: Provided, however, That, if the seeded acreage on the insurance unit exceeds the insured acreage on such unit, as determined by the Corporation, the loss for which indemnity will be payable shall be computed by apportioning the production on the seeded acreage to determine the production applicable to the insured acreage: Provided, further, That, if separate yields or rates are established for parts of the insurance unit or if the insured has different shares in parts of the flax on the insurance unit, such apportionment may, if the Corporation so elects, be made on the basis of the ratio of the premium computed for the insured acreage to the premium computed for the seeded acreage. Such total production shall include:

(1) Flax produced from any acreage of the flax crop which was threshed;

(2) The appraised production for any acreage of the flax crop which is released by the Corporation and seeded to a substitute crop, but not less than the product of (i) such acreage and (ii) fifty percent of the coverage per acre (rounded after each computation in accordance with § 415.140);

(3) The appraised production for any acreage of flax that is not harvested (except the acreage covered in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph), but not less than the product of (i) such acreage and (ii) twenty percent of the coverage per acre (rounded after each computation in accordance with § 415.140);

(4) The appraised production for any portion of the insured flax acreage that is planted to a substitute crop or put to another use without the consent of the Corporation, but not less than the product of (i) such acreage and (ii) the coverage per acre (rounded in accordance with § 415.140);

(5) The appraised number of bushels by which production on any acreage has been reduced solely because of any cause not insured against, but not less than the product of (i) such acreage and (ii) the coverage per acre (rounded in accordance with § 415.140), minus any quantity of flax harvested from such acreage; and

(6) The appraised number of bushels by which production on any acreage has been reduced because of any cause not insured against, where damage on such acreage has resulted from a cause insured against and a cause not insured against.

Any damage to the flax crop caused by the seeding of perennial or biennial legumes or perennial grasses with the flax, or in the growing flax crop, shall be subject to an appraisal as a damage resulting from a cause not insured against. This appraisal shall be included under subparagraphs (5) or (6) of this paragraph, whichever is applicable.

(b) Where the insured fails to establish and maintain separate records, satisfactory to the Corporation, of acreage or production for the component parts of two or more insurance units or portions thereof, the insurance with respect to such units may be voided by the Corporation and the premium forfeited by the insured: Provided, however, That, if all the component parts of the combination are insured, the total of the insured production for the component parts shall be considered as the insured production for the combination, and any loss for such combination shall be determined as outlined in paragraph (a) of this section. Where the insured fails to establish and maintain separate records, satisfactory to the Corporation, of acreage or production for non-insurable acreage and for one or more insurance units or portions thereof, any production from the non-insurable acreage which is commingled with the production from the insured acreage shall be considered to have been produced on the insured acreage, or the insurance with respect to such unit(s) under the contract may be voided by the Corporation and the premium forfeited by the insured.

PAYMENT OF INDEMNITY

§ 415.117 When indemnity payable. The amount of loss for which the Corporation may be liable with respect to any insurance unit covered by the insurance contract shall be payable within 30 days after satisfactory proof of loss is approved by the Corporation. However, if payment of any indemnity is delayed for any reason beyond the time specified, the Corporation shall not be liable for interest or damages on account of such delay.

§ 415.118 Indemnity payment. (a) Any indemnity due under the insurance contract will be paid by the issuance of a certificate of indemnity which shall bear an expiration date. Settlement under such certificate will be made in cash or flax, as determined by the Corporation, in accordance with this subpart. Such certificate may also be used to obtain a loan from the Commodity Credit Corporation, if loans on certificates of indemnity are available.

(b) In case of a cash settlement under a certificate of indemnity, the cash equivalent of the indemnity shall be the number of bushels of flax specified in the certificate of indemnity multiplied by the cash equivalent price per bushel for the day the certificate of indemnity or other request of the insured for cash settlement or for determining the cash equivalent is received in the branch office of the Corporation, or the expiration date of the certificate, whichever occurs first. If the insured has not returned the certificate for cash settlement before the expiration date, the cash equivalent shall be established on the basis of the price in effect on the expiration date of the certificate and a check shall be issued in settlement of the indemnity claim, except where the certificate is used to secure a Commodity Credit Corporation loan. A cash settlement under a certificate of indemnity made more than 14 days after the issuance of the certificate shall be subject to a deduction for a reasonable charge for storage and handling and the schedule of such charges shall be shown on the certificate of indemnity.

(c) Any indemnity payable under an insurance contract shall be paid to, and settlement under the certificate of indemnity made with, the insured or such other person as may be entitled to the benefits of the insurance contract under the provisions of this subpart, notwithstanding any attachment, garnishment, receivership, trustee process, judgment, levy, equity or bankruptcy directed against the insured or such other person, or against any indemnity alleged to be due to such person; nor shall the Corporation or any officer, employee, or representative thereof be a proper party to any suit or action with reference to such indemnity or the proceeds thereof, nor be bound by any judgment, order, or decree rendered or entered therein. No officer, agent, or employee of the Corporation shall, because of any such process, order, or decree, pay or cause to be paid, to any person other than the insured or other person entitled to the benefits of the insurance contract, any indemnity payable, or any amount due in settlement of any certificate of indemnity in accordance with the provisions of the insurance contract. Nothing herein contained shall excuse any person entitled to the benefits of the insurance contract from full compliance with, or performance of, any lawful judgment, order, or decree with respect to the disposition of any sums paid thereunder as an indemnity.

(d) The Corporation shall provide for the posting annually in each county at the county courthouse of a list of indemnities paid for losses on farm in such county.

§ 415.119 Adjustment in connection with indemnity payments. Where an adjustment is made in the amount of an indemnity, settlement for such adjustment may be made on the basis of a cash equivalent price per bushel other than that used in making settlement under the certificate of indemnity originally issued.

§ 415.120 Other insurance. If the insured has or acquires any other insurance against substantially all the risks that are insured against by the Corporation under the insurance contract on the crop or portion thereof covered in whole or in part by such insurance contract, regardless of whether such other insurance is valid or collectible, the liability of the Corporation shall not be greater than its share would be if the amount of its obligations were divided equally between the Corporation and such other insurer. In any case where an indemnity is paid to the insured by another Government agency because of damage to the flax crop, the Corporation reserves the right to determine its liability under the insurance contract taking into consideration the amount paid by such other agency.

§ 415.121 Subrogation. The Corporation may require from the insured an assignment of all rights of recovery against any person(s) for loss or damage to the extent that payment therefor is made by the Corporation, and the insured shall execute all papers required and shall do everything that may be necessary to secure such rights.

§ 415.122 Creditors. An interest existing by virtue of a debt, lien, mortgage, garnishment, levy, execution, bankruptcy, or any other process shall not be considered an interest in an insured crop within the meaning of these regulations in this subpart.

PAYMENT OF INDEMNITY TO PERSONS OTHER THAN ORIGINAL INSURED

§ 415.123 Indemnities subject to all provisions of insurance contract. Indemnities payable to any person shall be subject to all provisions of the insurance contract, including the right of the Corporation to deduct from any such indemnity the unpaid amount of the earned premium or any other obligation of the insured to the Corporation: Provided, however, That in case of a transfer of an interest in an insured crop, such deduction to be made from an indemnity payable to the transferee shall not exceed the premium due on the insurance unit or units involved in the transfer, plus the unpaid amount of any other obligation of the transferee to the Corporation. Any indemnity payable to any person other than the original insured as a result of a transfer, or otherwise, shall be subject to any collateral assignment of the insurance contract by the original insured.

§ 415.124 Collateral assignment of right under insurance contract. The right to an indemnity under an insurance contract may be assigned by the original insured as collateral security for a loan or other obligation of such insured. Such assignment shall be made by the execution of a form entitled "Collateral Assignment," and, upon approval thereof by the Corporation, the interest of the assignee will be recognized if an indemnity is payable under the insurance contract, to the extent of the amount determined to be the unpaid balance of the amount (including interest and other charges) for which such assignment was made as collateral security: Provided, however, That (a) payment of any indemnity will be subject to all conditions and provisions of the insurance contract and to any deductions authorized under § 415.123 and (b) payment of the indemnity may be made by check payable jointly to all persons entitled thereto and such payment shall constitute a complete discharge of the Corporation's obligation with respect to any loss under the insurance contract. The Corporation's approval of an assignment shall not create in the assignee any right other than that derived from the assignor. The Corporation shall in no case be bound to accept notice of any assignment of the insurance contract, and nothing contained in any assignment shall give any right against the Corporation to any person other than the insured, except to an assignee approved by the Corporation. Only one such assignment will be recognized, but if an assignment is released, a new assignment may be made.

§ 415.125 Payment to transferee. In the event of a transfer of all or a part of the insured interest in a flax crop before the beginning of harvest or the time of loss, whichever occurs first, the transferor shall immediately notify the Corporation thereof in writing at the office of the county association. The transferee under such a transfer shall be entitled to the benefits of the insurance contract with respect to the interest so transferred, subject to any assignment made by the original insured in accordance with § 415.124: Provided, however, That an involuntary transfer of an insured interest in a flax crop solely because of the existence of a debt, lien, mortgage, garnishment, levy, execution, bankruptcy, or other process shall not entitle any holder of any such interest to any benefits under the insurance contract: Provided, further, That the Corporation shall not be liable for a greater amount of indemnity in connection with the insured crop than would have been paid if the transfer had not taken place. If as a result of any such transfer, diverse interests appear with respect to any insurance unit, the indemnity, if any, payable with respect to such unit may be paid jointly to all persons having the insured interest in the crop at the time harvest is commenced or the time of loss, whichever occurs first, or to one of such persons on behalf of all such persons, and payment in any such manner shall constitute a complete discharge of the Corporation's liability with respect to such unit under the insurance contract.

§ 415.126 Death, incompetence, or disappearance of insured. (a) If the insured dies, is judicially declared incompetent, or disappears, before the time of loss, and his insured interest in a flax crop is a part of his estate at such time, or if the insured dies, is judicially declared incompetent, or disappears, subsequent to such time, the indemnity, if any, shall be paid to the legal representative of his estate, if one is appointed or is duly qualified. If no such representative is or will be so qualified, the indemnity shall be paid to the person(s) beneficially entitled to share in the insured's interest in the crop or to any one or more of such persons on behalf of all such persons: Provided, however, That if the indemnity represents a number of bushels of flax, the cash equivalent of which exceeds $500, the Corporation may withhold the payment of the indemnity until a legal representative of the insured's estate is duly qualified to receive such payment.

(b) If the insured dies, is judicially declared incompetent, or disappears before the time of loss, and his interest in the crop is not a part of his estate at such time, the indemnity, if any, shall be paid to the person(s) who succeeded to his interest in the crop in the manner provided for in § 415.125.

(c) If an applicant for insurance dies or is judicially declared incompetent less than 15 days before the applicable calendar closing date for the filing of applications but before any flax crop intended to be covered by insurance is seeded, whoever succeeds him on the farm with the right to seed the flax crop as his heir or heirs, administrator, executor, guardian, committee, or conservator shall be substituted for the original applicant upon filing with the office of the county association, within 15 days (unless such period is extended by the Corporation) after the date of such death or judicial declaration, or before the date of the beginning of seeding, whichever is earlier, a statement in writing in the form and manner prescribed by the Corporation, requesting such substitution and agreeing to assume the obligations of the original applicant arising out of such application. If no such statement is filed, as required by this paragraph, the original application shall be void.

(d) The insured shall be deemed to have disappeared within the meaning of this subpart if he fails to file with the county committee written notice of his new mailing address within 180 calendar days after any communication by or on behalf of the Corporation is returned undeliverable at the last known address of the insured.

§ 415.127 Fiduciaries. Any indemnity payable under an insurance contract, entered into in the name of a fiduciary who is no longer acting in such capacity at the time for the payment of indemnity, and settlement under the certificate of indemnity will be made to the succeeding fiduciary upon appropriate application and proof satisfactory to the Corporation of his incumbency. If there is no succeeding fiduciary, payment of the indemnity shall be made to, and settlement under the certificate of indemnity shall be made with, the persons beneficially entitled under this subpart to the insured interest in the crop, to the extent of their respective interests, upon proper application and proof of the facts: Provided, however, That the settlement may be made with any one or more of the persons so entitled, and payment may be made to such person or persons in behalf of all the persons so entitled, whether or not the person to whom payment is made has been authorized by the other interested persons to receive such payment.

§ 415.128 Determination of person to whom indemnity shall be paid. In any case where the insured has transferred his interest in all or a portion of the flax crop on any insurance unit, or has ceased to act as a fiduciary, or has died, has been judicially declared incompetent or has disappeared, payment in accordance with the provisions of these regulations in this subpart will be made only after the facts have been established to the satisfaction of the Corporation. The determination of the Corporation as to the existence or non-existence of a circumstance in the event of which payment may be made and of the person(s) to whom such payment will be made shall be final and conclusive. Payment of any indemnity under this section shall constitute a complete discharge of the Corporation's obligation with respect to the loss for which such indemnity is paid and settled and shall be a bar to recovery by any other person.

REFUNDS OF EXCESS NOTE PAYMENTS

§ 415.129 Refunds of excess note payments. The Corporation shall not be required to make a refund of any excess payment made on a note until the acreage planted to flax on all insurance units covered by the insurance contract has been determined. If a refund is to be made of any excess payment received before maturity the cash equivalent of such refund shall be determined on the basis of the number of bushels of flax to be refunded and the cash equivalent price for the appropriate grade of such flax effective for the date such payment was submitted to the Corporation. If more than one payment is made on the note, the payments shall be applied in the order of submittal to the Corporation. In computing the amount of any refund, the payments shall be considered in their inverse order and each such payment or portion thereof shall be regarded as a separate payment in determining the cash equivalent of the refund. Refunds of excess payments received on or after the maturity of the note shall be refunded in the actual amount of money paid to the Corporation in excess of that determined to be necessary to pay such note.

There shall be no refund of an amount less than $1.00, with respect to payments made either before or after the maturity of the note, unless written request for such refund is received by the Corporation within one year after the date of the maturity of the note.

§ 415.130 Assignment or transfer of claims for refunds not permitted. No claim for a refund, or any part or share thereof, or any interest therein, shall be assignable or transferable, notwithstanding any assignment of the insurance contract or any transfer of interest in any flax crop covered by the insurance contract. Refund of any excess note payment will be made only to the person who made such payment, except as provided in § 415.131.

§ 415.131 Refund in case of death, incompetence, or disappearance. In any case where a person who is entitled to a refund of a payment has died, has been judicially declared incompetent, or has disappeared, the provisions of § 415.126 with reference to the payment of indemnities in any such case shall be applicable with respect to the making of any such refund.

ESTABLISHMENT OF AVERAGE YIELDS AND PREMIUM RATES

§ 415.132 Determination of farm average yields of flax per acre. The Corporation shall establish average yields of flax for farms or parts of farms on the basis of the recorded or appraised yields for a representative period of years and shall, where necessary, adjust such yields so that the average yields for farms or parts of farms in the same area which are subject to the same conditions shall be fair and just.

§ 415.133 Determination of premium rates. The Corporation shall establish premium rates for all farms or parts of farms (except those which are designated on the crop insurance listing sheet as non-insurable) for which average yields are established and such rates shall be those deemed adequate to cover claims for flax crop losses and to provide a reasonable reserve against unforseen losses.

GENERAL

§ 415.134 Meaning of terms. For the purpose of the 1947 Flax Crop Insurance Program, the term:

(a) "Average yield" means the average yield of flax per acre established by the Corporation for each farm or part thereof as shown on the approved 1947 Crop Insurance listing sheet.

(b) "Cash equivalent price per bushel" means the net price per bushel of flax established by the Corporation for the area in which the insurance unit is located on the basis of the price of flax at the basic market designated by the Corporation for the area, with differentials, where applicable, for the location of the area in which the insurance unit is situated.

(c) "Corporation" means the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation.

(d) "County" means the area commonly designated as such, whether organized or not.

(e) "County association" means the County Agricultural Conservation Association in the county.

(f) "County committee" means the County Agricultural Conservation Committee for the county.

(g) "Coverage per acre" means the insured percentage (50 or 75 percent) of the average yield or a fixed number of bushels, whichever the contract provides for.

(h) "Crop insurance listing sheet" means the form prescribed by the Corporation for the purpose of maintaining a record of farms or parts thereof, average yields, premium rates, and any other related information with respect to such farms or parts thereof. The crop insurance listing sheet, when approved by the Corporation, shall be on file in the office of the county association and may be inspected by any producer whose farm is listed thereon.

(i) "Farm" means all adjacent or nearby farm land under the same ownership which is operated by one person, including also: (1) any other adjacent or nearby farm land which the county committee determines is operated by the same person as part of the same unit with respect to the rotation of crops and with workstock, farm machinery, and labor substantially separate from that for any other land; and (2) any field-rented tract (whether operated by the same or another person) which, together with any other land included in the farm constitutes a unit with respect to the rotation of crops: Provided, however, That, for the purpose of determining the minimum participation for a crop insurance program in any county, the term "farm" means that acreage of land which constitutes an insurance unit, except that where a landlord and all of his tenants file applications for insurance and all of the landlord's flax acreage is worked by tenants, the number of farms to be counted shall be one less than the number of insurance units.

A farm shall be regarded as located in the county if it is listed on the 1947 crop insurance listing sheet originally approved for such county. However, if a farm is not listed on the crop insurance listing sheet for a county before the applicable closing date for accepting applications in the county, the farm shall be regarded as located in the county in which the principal dwelling is situated, or, if there is no dwelling thereon, it shall be regarded as located in the county in which the major portion of the farm is located.

(j) "Flax crop" means all flax seeded for harvest as seed, but does not include (1) volunteer or self-seeded flax, (2) flax seeded with any other crop except perennial grasses or legumes other than vetch, and (3) flax seeded for purposes other than for harvest as seed.

(k) "Insurance contract" means the contract of insurance entered into between the applicant and the Corporation by virtue of the application for insurance and these regulations in this subpart and any amendments thereto.

(l) "Insurance unit" means all or that portion, as the case may be, of the farm (considered for the purpose of establishing the average yield(s) and premium rate(s)) in which the insured has an interest as a flax producer at the time of seeding, except that (1) any irrigable land on the farm to which irrigation water can be delivered from existing irrigation facilities and any contiguous small tracts shall constitute one insurance unit and the remainder shall constitute another insurance unit if so designated on the approved crop insurance listing sheet, (2) when separate yields and rates have been established for widely separated parts of a farm, such parts of the farm shall constitute separate insurance units: Provided, however, That all or any part of such land which is designated on the crop insurance listing sheet as "non-insurable" shall not constitute an insurance unit or any part thereof and shall not be considered in any manner whatsoever under the insurance contract, except as provided in § 415.116 (b) and 415.136.

(m) "Local producing area" means any area approved by the Corporation for the purposes of § 415.101 (b).

(n) "Person" means an individual, partnership, association, corporation, estate, or trust, or other business enterprise or other legal entity and, wherever applicable, a State, a political subdivision of a State, or any agency thereof.

(o) "Premium rate" means the premium rate per acre established by the Corporation for each farm or part thereof as shown on the approved crop insurance listing sheet.

(p) "State committee" means the State PMA Committee (formerly the State Agricultural Conservation Committee) for the State.

(q) "State Director" means the representative of the Corporation in the operation of the crop insurance program in the State.

(r) "Substitute crop" means any crop, except biennial and perennial legumes and perennial grasses, planted on released acreage before harvest of flax becomes general in the county as determined by the Corporation. Biennial and perennial legumes and perennial grasses seeded with the flax or with the growing flax crop shall not be considered a substitute crop.

(s) "Tenant" means a person who rents land from another person (for cash, a fixed commodity payment, or a share of the crop or proceeds therefrom), and is entitled under a written or oral lease or agreement to receive all or a share of the crop or proceeds therefrom produced on such land.

§ 415.135 Restriction on purchase and sale of flax by the Corporation. The restriction on the purchase and sale of flax, as provided in section 508 (d) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act, as amended, reads in part as follows:

Insofar as practicable, the Corporation shall purchase the agricultural commodity only at the rate and to a total amount equal to the payment of premiums in cash by farmers or to replace promptly the agricultural commodity sold to prevent deterioration; and shall sell the agricultural commodity only to the extent necessary to cover payments of indemnities and to prevent deterioration: Provided, however, That nothing in this section shall prevent prompt offset purchases and sales of the agricultural commodity for convenience in handling. Nothing in this section shall prevent the Corporation from accepting, for the payment of premiums, notes payable in the commodity insured, or the cash equivalent, upon such security as may be determined pursuant to subsection (b) of this section, and from purchasing the quantity of the commodity represented by any of such notes not paid at maturity.

§ 415.136 Records and access to farm. For the purpose of enabling the Corporation to determine the loss, if any, that may have occurred under the insurance contract, the insured shall keep, or cause to be kept, for one year after the time of loss, records of the harvesting, storage, shipment, sale, or other disposition, of all flax produced on each insurance unit covered by the insurance contract, and on non-insurable acreage on each farm in the county in which he has an interest. Such records shall be made available for examination by the Corporation, and as often as may reasonably be required, any person or persons designated by the Corporation shall have access to the farm.

§ 415.137 Review of determinations of State and county committees. Any determination by a State or county committee shall be subject to review and approval or revision by duly authorized representatives of the Corporation.

§ 415.138 Applicant's warranties; voidance for fraud. In applying for insurance the applicant warrants that the information, data, and representations submitted by him in connection with the insurance contract are true and correct, and are made by him, or by his authority, and shall be taken as his act. The insurance contract may be voided and the premium forfeited to the Corporation without the Corporation's waiving any right or remedy, including its right to collect the amount of the note executed by the insured, whether before or after maturity, if at any time the insured has concealed any material fact or made any false or fraudulent statements relating to the insurance contract, the subject thereof, or his interest in the flax crop covered thereby, or if the insured shall neglect to use all reasonable means to produce, care for or save the flax crop covered thereby, whether before or after damage has occurred, or if the insured fails to give any notice, or otherwise fails to comply with the terms of the contract, including the note, at the time and in the manner prescribed.

§ 415.139 Modification of insurance contract. No notice to any county committee or representative of the Corporation or knowledge possessed by any such county committee or representative or by any other person shall be held to effect a waiver of or change in any part of the insurance contract or to estop the Corporation from asserting any right or power under such contract; nor shall the terms of such contract be waived or changed except as authorized in writing by a duly authorized offier or representative of the Corporation; nor shall any provision or condition of the insurance contract or any forfeiture be held to be waived by any delay or omission by the Corporation in exercising its rights and powers thereunder or by any requirement, act, or proceeding, on the part of the Corporation or of its representatives relating to appraisal or to any examination herein provided for.

§ 415.140 Fractional units. Fractions of yields per acre, coverages per acre, and premium rates shall be rounded to the nearest tenth of a bushel. Fractions of acres representing total acres of flax shall be rounded to the nearest tenth of an acre. Computations shall be carried to one digit beyond the digit that is to be rounded. If the extra digit computed is 1, 2, 3, or 4, the rounding shall be downward. If the extra digit computed is 6, 7, 8, or 9 the rounding shall be upward. If the extra digit computed is 5, the computation shall be carried to another digit. If the two extra digits are 50, the rounding shall be downward, and if the two extra digits are 51 or any higher figure, the rounding shall be upward.

§ 415.141 Closing dates. Closing dates for submission of applications to cover the 1947 flax crop shall be the earlier of: (a) The date of the beginning of seeding of the flax crop, or (b) September 28, 1946, for Texas; November 2, 1946 for Arizona and for Fresno, Imperial, Kern, Kings, Madera, Merced, Riverside, San Joaquin and Tulare Counties in California; February 15, 1947, for Oklahoma; March 15, 1947, for all other States and counties.

§ 415.142 Maturity dates for payment of premium notes. The maturity dates by States for the payment of premium notes shall be as follows: June 30, 1947, for Arizona, California, Oklahoma and Texas; July 31, 1947, for Iowa and Kansas; August 31, 1947, for all other States.

NOTE: The record keeping requirements of these regulations have been approved by, and subsequent reporting requirements will be subject to the approval of, the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

PART 418—WHEAT CROP INSURANCE

INSURANCE CONTRACTS COVERING 1947, 1948 AND 1949 CROP YEARS

Section 418.57 of the Wheat Crop Insurance Regulations for Insurance Contracts Covering the 1947, 1948 and 1949 Crop Years (11 F.R. 5531, 5645) is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 418.57 Determination of insured acreage. (a) Promptly after seeding a wheat crop the insured shall submit to the Corporation, on a form entitled "Wheat Crop Insurance Acreage Report", a report of the acreage seeded to wheat on each insurance unit in which he has an interest at the time of seeding and his interest at the time of seeding in the wheat seeded for harvest as grain. The insured acreage with respect to each insurance unit shall be either the acreage of wheat seeded for harvest as grain as reported by the insured or as determined by the Corporation, whichever the Corporation shall elect: Provided, however, That the Corporation reserves the right to limit the acreage to be insured in any year: Provided, further, That insurance shall not attach with respect to any acreage seeded to wheat which is destroyed or substantially destroyed and which can be reseeded before it is too late to reseed to wheat, as determined by the Corporation, and such acreage is not reseeded to wheat.

(b) If the insured seeds only a part of his wheat for harvest as grain in any year of the contract he shall submit to the county committee with his acreage report of wheat seeded, a designation of any acreage seeded for purposes other than harvest as grain. Upon receipt of this designation and with the approval of the Corporation, the acreage used in computing the premium and insured production will not include such acreage. However, the total production from any wheat threshed from such acreage shall be considered as wheat produced on the insured acreage in determining a loss under the contract.

PART 3270—CONTAINERS

CANS

The fulfillment of requirements for the defense of the United States has created a shortage in the supply of materials entering into the manufacture of cans for defense, for private account and for export, and the following order is deemed necessary and appropriate in the public interest and to promote the national defense.

§ 3270.31 Conservation Order M-81—(a) What this order does. This order establishes the sequence of manufacture and delivery, and limits the use of cans made of tinplate, terneplate or blackplate. The order lists in Schedule I the only products which may be packed in tinplate, terneplate, or blackplate cans. Certain exceptions are stated in paragraphs (h), (i), (j), and (k).

(b) Definitions. For the purpose of this order:

(1) "Can" means any unused container made in whole or in part of tinplate, terneplate, or blackplate, which is suitable for packing any product. The term includes any container which has a closure or fitting, made in whole or in part of tinplate, terneplate or blackplate, but does not include a glass container having such a closure or fitting. The term does not include fluid milk shipping containers.

(2) "Tinplate" means steel sheets coated with tin (including primes and seconds) and includes (i) electrolytic tinplate in which the tin coating is applied by electrolytic deposition, and (ii) hot dipped tinplate in which the tin coatings are applied by immersion in molten tin. The term includes hot dipped tinplate waste-waste, but not electrolytic tinplate waste-waste or tinplate waste.

(3) "Terneplate" means steel sheets coated with terne metal (including primes and seconds). The term does not include terneplate waste-waste or terneplate waste. "Terne metal" means the lead-tin alloy used as the coating for terneplate but does not include lead recovered from secondary sources which contains not more than 2½ percent residual tin.

(4) "SCMT" means special coated manufacturers' terneplate.

(5) "Waste" means scrap tinplate and terneplate (including strips and circles) produced in the ordinary course of manufacturing cans and tinplate and terneplate strips produced in the ordinary course of manufacturing tinplate and terneplate. The term also includes tinplate and terneplate parts recovered from used cans.

(6) "Waste-waste" means hot dipped or electrolytic tin-coated steel sheets or steel sheets coated with terne metal which have been rejected during processing by the producer because of imperfections which disqualify such sheets from sale as primes or seconds.

(7) "Blackplate" means steel sheets (other than tinplate or terneplate) 29 gauge or lighter. The term includes "blackplate rejects", chemically treated blackplate (CTB), electrolytic tinplate waste-waste, terneplate waste-waste, tinplate waste, and terneplate waste. The term does not include hot dipped tinplate waste-waste.

RESTRICTIONS ON CAN MANUFACTURERS

(c) General restrictions on sale, manufacture and delivery. No person shall sell, manufacture or deliver any cans which he knows, or has reason to believe, will be accepted or used in violation of any provision of this order.

(d) Manufacturing and delivery preferences for certain types of cans. (1) Can manufacturers must disregard preference ratings (except AAA) in accepting and filling orders for cans.

(2) Every can manufacturer must regard each of his requirements contracts as an order calling for delivery of cans in the quantities and at the times he reasonably anticipates will be requested under the contract, based on past experience under the same or similar contracts. (A "requirements contract" is a contract under which a purchaser of cans agrees to buy his entire requirements of cans from a certain can manufacturer for a stated period without specifying the delivery dates on which the cans will be required or the quantities which will be required.) So far as practicable every can manufacturer shall schedule his operations (including his ordering of tinplate, terneplate and blackplate) so as to permit delivery of cans in the quantities and at the times he reasonably anticipates will be requested. Where he is unable to schedule all orders for cans for delivery at the time he anticipates will be requested, he should schedule his operations and select the orders to be placed in his production schedule according to the following preference:

(i) Anticipated requirements for cans to pack products designated with the letter A in Column 2 of Schedule I, or cans for home canning made under paragraph (j).

(ii) Anticipated requirements for cans to pack products designated with the letter B in Column 2 of Schedule I.

(iii) Anticipated requirements for cans to pack products designated with the letter C in Column 2 of Schedule I.

(3) A can manufacturer must not wait until he receives actual delivery orders under his requirements contracts before giving those contracts the preferential treatment described in paragraph (d) (2). Also he must not fill any orders for cans with lower preference designations if by doing so he will make himself unable to meet deliveries which he reasonably anticipates will be requested for cans with a higher preference.

(e) Completion and sale of outdated cans. Whenever can material specifications for a product are changed by an amendment to this order, a can manufacturer must continue to sell, make and deliver cans for that product (subject to the preferences of paragraph (d)) in accordance with the former specifications and must not make any cans conforming to the new specifications as long as there is available to him tinplate, terneplate, or blackplate which was intended for use under the former specifications, and which was in process at the tin mill or in its inventory for his account, or in his own inventory on the date of the change.

(f) Certificate for deliveries of cans. No can manufacturer shall sell, make or deliver any cans unless he has received from the purchaser after March 1, 1946, a certificate signed manually or as provided in Priorities Regulation 7. This certificate shall be in substantially the following form and once filed by a purchaser with a supplier, covers all future deliveries from the supplier to that purchaser:

> The undersigned purchaser certifies, subject to criminal penalties for misrepresentation, that he is familiar with Order M-81 of the Civilian Production Administration, and that all purchases from you of items regulated by that order, and the use of the cans by the undersigned, will be in compliance with that order.

The standard certificate described in Priorities Regulation 7 may not be used in place of this certificate. Any person who has given a certificate under this order before March 1, 1946, need not file a new certificate until March 14, 1946.

RESTRICTIONS ON CAN USERS

(g) General restrictions on use of cans. No person may use a tinplate, terneplate, or blackplate can for any purpose other than for packing the products listed in Schedule I in accordance with the packing quota, size and material limitations set forth in that schedule. The only exceptions to this rule are set forth in paragraphs (h) through (k).

(h) Exception for small users. Any person whose total use of cans for packing in any calendar year requires less than 250 base boxes of tinplate and terneplate may use cans with the soldered parts made from 0.25 electrolytic tinplate for packing any product, except animal food (see paragraph (l)). If a Small User is packing a product listed in Schedule I of Order M–81, he may, if he prefers, use cans in accordance with can size and can material specifications listed for the respective products. Such small users are exempt from packing quotas for tinplate or terneplate cans.

(i) Exception for persons without quotas. Where a packing quota is established in Schedule I for a particular product, any person who did not pack that product during the base period stated may continue to pack it until March 14, 1946 without regard to the packing quota. If he wants to pack that product after that date, he must apply for a quota by filing a letter in duplicate with the Civilian Production Administration, Washington 25, D. C., Ref: M–81. This letter should state what product or products he wants to pack and what facilities he has for this purpose. Civilian Production Administration will assign a quota to him on an equitable basis in view of the quotas of other packers in the industry.

(j) Exception for products which are not to be sold. Cans may be used to pack any product which is not to be sold in the same or different form, but this does not permit the use of cans contrary to the other provisions of the order for the purpose of advertising or promoting the sale of a product.

As explained in paragraph (d) a can manufacturer shall schedule requirements of cans produced for home canning under this paragraph in accordance with preference "A". Any other cans produced under this paragraph shall be scheduled in accordance with preference "C".

(k) Exception for cans permitted before an amendment. Whenever can material specifications for a product are changed by an amendment to this order, any person may pack that product in any can which was permitted before the amendment if the can, or the tinplate, terneplate, or blackplate incorporated in it, was in his inventory, in the inventory of the can manufacturer, or in process or in inventory at a tin mill for the account of the can manufacturer on the date of the amendment. A packer must accept and use (within quota) any outdated cans for any product produced under paragraph (e) which the can manufacturer offers to him before using any cans for that product produced under the new specifications.

(l) Prohibition against use of tinplate for cans for animal food. No person shall use cans with any part made of tinplate, tinplate waste-waste, or tinplate waste, for packing any food which is not intended and suitable for human consumption. The use of such cans for animal and pet food is not permitted.

MISCELLANEOUS

(m) Appeals. Appeals from this order shall be filed by addressing a letter in triplicate to the Civilian Production Administration, Washington 25, D. C., Ref: M–81. The letter of appeal need not follow any particular form. It should state informally, but completely, the provisions appealed from, the precise relief desired, the reasons why denial of the appeal would result in undue and excessive hardship, and such other statistical and narrative information as may be pertinent.

(n) Communications. All communications concerning this order shall, unless otherwise directed, be addressed to: Civilian Production Administration, Washington 25, D. C., Ref: M–81.

(o) Violations. Any person who willfully violates any provision of this order or who, in connection with this order willfully conceals a material fact or furnishes false information to any department or agency of the United States is guilty of a crime, and upon conviction may be punished by fine or imprisonment. In addition, any such person may be prohibited from making or obtaining further delivery of, or from processing or using, material under priority control and may be deprived of priorities assistance.

Issued this 19th day of June 1946.

CIVILIAN PRODUCTION ADMINISTRATION,
By J. JOSEPH WHELAN,
Recording Secretary.

SCHEDULE I

Column 1. Listed products. Listed in this column are the only products, which may be packed in cans. Certain exceptions are stated in paragraphs (h), (i), (j), and (k).

Column 2. Sequence of manufacture and delivery. This column indicates the sequence which a can manufacturer must follow in the manufacture and delivery of cans permitted by this order. (see paragraph (d)).

Column 3. Packing quotas. (a) This column indicates the permitted packing quotas for the respective listed products. The quotas for the respective products are not interchangeable unless so noted. Where the word "unlimited" appears in the column opposite a particular product this means that a packer may use the specified cans in an unlimited quantity to pack that particular product. Where the permitted packing quota is specified with a percentage only, as for example, "100%", this means that the packer's packing quota for the calendar year 1946 is 100% of the quantity, by area of measurement of tinplate, terneplate and blackplate used by him for packing the particular product during 1941 or 1945, whichever was greater. Where the percentage is followed by a year, as, for example, "100% of 1944" this means that the packer's packing quota for 1946 is 100% of the quantity, by area of measurement of tinplate, terneplate and blackplate used by him for packing the particular product during the base year specified. Cans used for packing any product for U. S. Army or Navy use are exempt from the quota restrictions, and, in determining the packing quota for any product, all cans packed for these agencies during the base period specified shall be excluded.

(b) In addition to the general quota restrictions described above, from March 1 to September 30, 1946, no packer may use or accept delivery in any calendar month, or order for delivery in any calendar month, more cans for a product with a packing quota than 10% of his 1946 quota for that product. This monthly limit does not apply to any product marked with an asterisk (*) in column 3 of Schedule I, or to any person whose total use of cans in 1946 does not exceed one carload. Also it does not require any person to order or accept delivery of cans in less than carload lots.

(c) For products designated with the letter "B" in Column 2 the quota restrictions apply to all cans for that product (including any cans made wholly of blackplate); except that any packer may order, accept delivery of, and use cans made wholly of blackplate in addition to his quota if the cans were completely fabricated on March 1, 1946, or if the packer notifies the can manufacturer in writing that the additional blackplate cans are to be scheduled in accordance with preference "C".

(d) For products designated with the letter "C" in Column 2, the quota restrictions do not apply to cans made wholly of blackplate.

Column 4, Can sizes. This column indicates the permitted sizes of cans, except that any person may use for packing any listed product a can which is larger than the largest listed size for packing that product. Wherever the can size is specified by weight, the weight referred to shall be net weight of the contents of the can. Other can sizes are described in the terminology common to the industry such as "cylinder", "picnic", "oval", "drawn", "tall", "2", "10", "8Z", etc.

Columns 5 and 6. Can materials. These columns specify the materials permitted for the soldered and nonsoldered parts of the cans for each of the listed products. Any person may also use for packing a listed product blackplate cans or cans with a tin coating lighter than that specified for that product. Hot-dipped tinplate waste-waste may be used wherever 0.50 or heavier tinplate is specified. Wherever "CTB" (chemically treated blackplate) is specified for food products 0.50 electrolytic tinplate may be substituted where such cans are to be delivered to the Army or the Navy for overseas use; however, where in such cases the cans are to pack listed meat products, 1.25 tinplate may be substituted. Wherever SCMT is specified, 0.25 electrolytic tinplate may be used. When only a figure is given in Column 5 or Column 6, this means that tinplate may be used for the part, and the figure given indicates the maximum weight of tin coating per single base box. Menders arising in the production of 0.50 electrolytic tinplate, which have been hot dipped with a maximum tin coating of 1.25 pounds per base box, may be used wherever 0.50 or heavier tinplate is specified in these columns. Menders arising in the production of 0.25 electrolytic tinplate which have been converted into SCMT may be used wherever 0.25 or heavier tinplate is specified in this order for nonfood cans. When a scored can is used to pack any of the meat products listed in this schedule, 1.25 tinplate may be used for the body of the can.

PART 3290—TEXTILE, CLOTHING AND LEATHER

BURLAP AND OTHER JUTE GOODS

The fulfillment of requirements for the defense of the United States has created a shortage in the supply of burlap for defense, for private account and for export; and the following order is deemed necessary and appropriate in the public interest and to promote the national defense:

§ 3290.256 Conservation Order M-47—(a) What this order does. This order contains restrictions on the sale, purchase and use of burlap produced in India. The order states the quantities of burlap which may be obtained for the manufacture of bags and for other purposes. It does not restrict the purchase or receipts of burlap by importers, and Order M-63 no longer controls such purchases or receipts, but this order requires that importers of burlap and other jute goods file reports. Other orders and regulations of the Civilian Production Administration contain provisions affecting burlap, in particular M-221 which restricts the manufacture and use of new burlap bags.

(b) Kind of burlap covered by this order. The restrictions of this order apply only to burlap cloth produced in India, plain woven of single yarns of jute, 32 inches or more wide and weighing more than 6 and not more than 16 ounces a yard of cloth 40 inches wide, but not including brattice cloth, linoleum cloth, damaged burlap which is not suitable for the purposes for which it was intended or processed items made from burlap cloth. Whenever the word "burlap" is used in this order, it means only this kind of cloth. This order places no restrictions on buying, selling or using processed items made from burlap cloth.

(c) Buying and selling burlap. No person shall buy or sell burlap unless the purchase order bears the certificate specified in paragraph (i).

(d) Disposition of stockpiled burlap. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation may sell burlap only to fill orders from bag manufacturers as provided in paragraph (e) except that the Civilian Production Administration may from time to time allocate the supply of stockpiled burlap and specifically direct the quantities, time and manner in which the Reconstruction Finance Corporation may make deliveries. The Civilian Production Administration may also direct or prohibit particular uses of burlap.

(e) Burlap for the manufacture of bags—(1) Purchases of burlap other than stockpiled burlap. Bag manufacturers may buy any quantity of burlap for use in making bags from persons other than the Reconstruction Finance Corporation or its authorized representatives on orders bearing the certificate specified in paragraph (i).

(2) Purchase of stockpiled burlap by holders of burlap allocation certificates or other CPA burlap authorizations. A bag manufacturer may buy burlap from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to be used in the manufacture of bags in accordance with the following rules:

(i) If he received a sequence 17 burlap allocation certificate, he may buy for delivery in the period April through July 31, 1946 up to 37½% of the quantity specified in his sequence 17 certificate, or one carload, whichever is greater.

(ii) If he received a sequence 18 burlap allocation certificate, but no sequence 17 certificate, he may buy for delivery in the period April 1 through July 31, 1946 up to 37½% of the quantity specified in his sequence 18 certificate, or one carload, whichever is greater.

(iii) If he received a specific authorization from CPA for delivery in the first quarter of 1946, he may buy for delivery in the period April 1 through July 31, 1946 up to 37½% of the quantity specified in his authorization, or one carload, whichever is greater.

(3) Bag manufacturers without certificates or other CPA burlap authorizations. A manufacturer who did not receive a burlap allocation certificate or who has not received a CPA authorization under this order, may apply to the Civilian Production Administration for authorization to purchase from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation burlap for making bags for delivery in the period April 1, through July 31, 1946. The application may be filed by letter stating the amount of burlap desired and should include a statement of the facilities available for the manufacture of textile bags, under the provisions of Order M-221. Authorizations will be granted on an equitable basis in view of the allocations given to other manufacturers.

(4) [Deleted Mar. 26, 1946.]

(5) [Deleted Mar. 26, 1946.]

(f) Burlap for purposes other than the manufacture of bags—(1) Former users. Any person, including a bag manufacturer, wanting burlap to use for a purpose other than to make bags (including a manufacturer of processed items other than bags which he will sell to others) may buy for delivery in any calendar month up to one-fortieth of the total quantity of burlap in bales used by him for all manufacturing purposes other than bag-making, in 1939 and 1940 or 5 bales whichever is greater.

(2) New users. Any person, including a bag manufacturer, wanting burlap to use for manufacturing purposes other than bag-making, but who did not use burlap for non-bag-making purposes in both 1939 and 1940, may buy not more than 5 bales of burlap a month for such purposes; if he wants to buy more than 5 bales of burlap a month, he may apply for an authorization by sending a letter to the Civilian Production Administration, Textile Division, Washington 25, D. C., Ref.: M-47. The letter should state the amount of burlap needed, the purpose for which it will be used, and the number of yards of burlap that the applicant is equipped to use in a month. Authorizations will be granted on an equitable basis in view of the allocations given to other manufacturers.

(3) Acceptance of carload deliveries. If a person is authorized under this paragraph (f) to buy in one month half a carload of burlap or more, but less than a full carload, he may buy a full carload, if his inventory before the delivery does not exceed a 30-day supply at his current or scheduled method and rate of operation.

(4) [Deleted Mar. 26, 1946.]

(g) Dealers—(1) Purchases to fill orders already received. Any person may buy burlap to fill orders already placed with him for bag making and other manufacturing purposes and bearing the certificate specified in paragraph (i), in addition to the quantities which he may buy under paragraphs (e) and (f).

(2) Purchases of burlap to be held for resale. Any person may buy burlap to be held for resale for bag making and other manufacturing purposes if the purchaser places on his purchase order the certificate specified in paragraph (i). Burlap may be bought under this paragraph in addition to the quantities which may be bought under paragraphs (e) and (f). However, no person may take delivery of burlap to be held for resale which will cause his inventory of burlap for resale to exceed 5 bales.

(3) [Deleted Mar. 26, 1946.]

(h) Frozen burlap. A person holding intact bales of burlap on December 11, 1945, which were not acquired under a burlap allocation certificate or an order bearing a preference rating may not sell or use the burlap except as permitted below:

(1) He may sell it to fill purchase orders bearing the certificate specified in paragraph (i) below.

(2) He may use it only in the quantity and for a purpose for which he is authorized to buy burlap under this order. If he does so, he must reduce the amount he may buy for delivery in any period by the amount of frozen burlap he uses in that period.

(i) Certificate. (1) Any person who places a purchase order for burlap must place on the purchase order the following certificate, signed manually or as provided in Priorities Regulation 7:

> The undersigned purchaser hereby certifies that he is familiar with Conservation Order M-47 as amended and that the burlap covered by this purchase order is being acquired in accordance with paragraph ( ) ( ) of Order M-47 and that the burlap so acquired will be used as provided in that paragraph.
> Name of purchaser
> By ---
> (Duly authorized officer)

The purchaser should insert after the word "paragraph" in the certificate the identifying letter and number of the paragraph under which he is authorized to buy the burlap he is ordering. The standard certificate set forth in Priorities Regulation 7 may not be used instead of this certificate.

(2) A person who has placed the certificate given above on a purchase order must not use the burlap received under the purchase order except for the purpose indicated in the paragraph stated.

(j) Inventory restrictions. No person may accept delivery of burlap if his inventory of burlap is, or will be, more than a practicable minimum working inventory reasonably necessary to meet his own deliveries on the basis of his current or scheduled method and rate of operation.

(k) Reports. (1) Any person importing any type of jute goods from India other than surplus sand-bags or sheets shall report monthly on Form CPA-4388, beginning with February 1946.

(2) The reporting requirements of this order have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

(l) Saving clause. Quotas, certificates, directions, allocations and authorizations issued under this order before any amendment of it remain in effect after the amendment unless specifically revoked or amended.

(m) Appeals. An appeal from the provisions of this order may be made by sending a letter in triplicate to the Civilian Production Administration, Textile Division, Washington 25, D. C., Ref.: M-47, referring to the specific provisions from which relief is requested and stating fully the reasons for the appeal.

(n) Applicability of regulations. This order and all transactions affected by it are subject to all applicable regulations of the Civilian Production Administration.

(o) Communications. All communications concerning this order should be addressed to the Civilian Production Administration, Textile Division, Washington 25, D. C., Ref: M-47.

(p) Violations. Any person who wilfully violates any provision of this order, or who, in connection with this order wilfully conceals a material fact or furnishes false information to any department or agency of the United States is guilty of a crime, and upon conviction may be punished by fine or imprisonment. In addition, any such person may be prohibited from making or obtaining further deliveries of, or from processing or using, material under priority control and may be deprived of priorities assistance.

Issued this 19th day of June 1946.

ARTICLE I—EXPLANATION OF THE SUPPLEMENT

SECTION 1. Explanation of the supplement—(a) What products are covered by this supplement. In general this supplement establishes maximum prices for the 1946 and later packs of the canned fruits, berries and vegetables listed at the beginning of section 5 and 6 respectively, and others that may be added from time to time. It also covers other closely related packed food products. However, this supplement does not apply to any listed product that is packed and sold as "baby food", as "junior food" or as "soup". Generally, it covers the same products covered by Supplement 13 to Food Products Regulation No. 1.[2]

The general pricing provisions of this supplement for processors consist of two principal methods, respectively called "Pricing Method No. 1" (see section 5) and "Pricing Method No. 2" (see section 6). The products covered by each method are listed at the beginning of the applicable section.

The provisions of this supplement apply to products packed during the year 1946 and after. If the major portion of the pack of any product is packed during 1946 the product shall be considered to be of the 1946 pack.

In addition the supplement provides maximum prices for resales of earlier years' packs which have been purchased from the government (see section 8).

(b) What sales are covered by this supplement. This supplement applies to sales by all persons except wholesalers and retailers. However, the following sales and deliveries are not subject to the maximum prices or other requirements of this supplement or any other maximum price regulation:

(1) Sales and deliveries of products covered by this supplement by a processor in any calendar year in which his total volume of sales of the products does not exceed 1,500 quarts (or an equivalent amount in other container sizes).

(2) Sales and deliveries by a processor of any vegetable or mixture of vegetables that is processed only by such operations as chopping, shredding or grating and packaging in containers for sale as a salad or salad mix.

(c) Where this supplement applies. This supplement applies in the 48 States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

(d) What this supplement supersedes. This supplement supersedes the provisions of all other maximum price regulations as to the commodities and sellers covered.

However, all maximum prices authorized or approved by orders issued under section 10 (c) and 10 (d) of Supplement 7 and all prices automatically authorized or approved upon the expiration of the 30-day period specified in those provisions which were continued in effect as to the 1945 pack under the provisions of Supplement 13, and all maximum prices authorized by orders issued under section 10 (c) of Supplement 13 and all prices automatically authorized upon the expiration of the 30-day period specified in that provision, shall remain in effect as maximum prices for the 1946 and later packs under this supplement, unless changed by the Office of Price Administration by order or by this supplement.

(e) When this supplement is effective. This supplement becomes effective June 24, 1946. For a product that is included later, the supplement becomes applicable on the date when the product is included.

SEC. 2. Applicability of Food Products Regulation No. 1. Important: Not all of the provisions affecting the maximum prices of the listed packed food products are stated in this supplement. Those which are not specifically set forth here are stated in Food Products Regulation No. 1[3] and they are just as much a part of this supplement as if they were printed here. The "Explanation of the Regulation" is also a part of this supplement.

The particular sections of Food Products Regulation No. 1 which are applicable to this supplement are listed in appropriate places in the following sections (in each case, the section number set forth in parentheses is the appropriate section number of Food Products Regulation No. 1). When any applicable section of the regulation is amended, the amendment also is applicable to this supplement.

SEC. 3. Definitions. (a) When used in this supplement the term:

"Packed" means processed and enclosed in any container, whether or not hermetically sealed. However, the term does not include freezing, drying or dehydrating, nor does it refer to any of the packed products known as preserves.

"Fruit" means any specified fruit, mixture of specified fruits, or other specified fruit product. When a fruit is specified, its puree is included.

"Berry" means any specified berry, mixture of specified berries, or other specified berry product. When a berry is specified, its puree is included.

"Vegetable" means any specified vegetable, mixture of specified vegetables, or other specified vegetable products. When a vegetable is specified, its puree is included.

"Secondary processor" means a processor who purchases the kind of processed product being priced in bulk, barrels or other large containers and further processes and repacks it in containers other than the original container in which the commodity was shipped to him.

"Grower-processor" means a processor who grows all of the material he uses in making the product being priced. The term includes a grower-owned cooperative.

"Price range" means the range of prices named in the applicable appendix within which all gross maximum prices for processors of the item specified must fall.

"F. O. B. shipping point" means f. o. b. factory in cases where the processor sold the item being priced on an f. o. b. factory basis during the applicable base period. It means f. o. b. branch warehouse in cases where he sold it from branch warehouses during that period.

"Area", as used with reference to the products under Pricing Method No. 1, means the area in which the processor's factory is located, as shown in the applicable appendix.

"1941 pack" means that pack of the product the major portion of which was processed and packed during the calendar year 1941.

"Beginning of the 1941 pack" means the first day on which the processor began his 1941 pack of the particular product, as distinct from his pack of the particular item of the product, on the one hand, or his pack of the principal raw material used in the product, on the other. However, as to some of the products covered by section 5, the applicable appendices establish the beginning of the 1941 pack in each case as the day on which the processor first began his pack of the specified variety.

"Item" means a kind, variety, grade, brand, style of pack, sieve size, count, size and container type and size of a product. However, different subgrades of the same grade shall not constitute separate items.

"Grade" means the established grade as commercially understood (for example, in the case of canned peas, "standard" "extra-standard" or "fancy").

"Basic wage rate" means the single rate or established range of rates applicable to a given job classification for straight time, day operation as included in the basic wage rate schedule covering all job classifications in a factory.

"Mid-point of the range of rates" means the simple arithmetic average of the highest and lowest wage rates in effect for a given job classification for straight time, day operation as included in the basic wage rate schedule covering all job classifications in a factory.

ARTICLE II—PRICING PROVISIONS

SEC. 4. Explanation of pricing methods for processors—(a) Changes made by the supplement. In general this supplement maintains the basic pricing methods of Pricing Method No. 1 and Pricing Method No. 2 as established by Supplement 13, subject to several modifications. In many cases processors' maximum prices figured under this supplement will be the same as their maximum prices under Supplement 13. The principal provisions added by this supplement which will result in different processors' maximum prices are the provisions for figuring maximum prices on the basis of actual prices paid for raw materials in 1946 (where not in excess of designated prices) and the provisions that set forth the circumstances under which processors adjust their maximum prices for approved increases in basic wage rates. In addition, miscellaneous changes of the following types will result in different processors' maximum prices: (1) In the case of fruits and certain vegetable products the provisions which are made for the reflection in processors' maximum prices of increased sugar costs; (2) miscellaneous changes in particular appendices, such as changes in permitted increases and price ranges for certain items in particular areas, and changes of can-size or grade differentials.

Under both Pricing Method No. 1 and Pricing Method No. 2, processors are directed to adjust for approved increases in basic wage rates. Factors are named for figuring the adjustment for each one cent increase per hour in approved basic wage rates incurred since January 1, 1944. The adjustments are figured on an individual processor basis and may be taken at any time during the packing season that the increase is actually incurred, providing 50% or more of the pack of the particular product is processed after the increase has been put into effect. In the case of Pricing Method No. 1, the adjustment factors are dollars-and-cents figures; in the case of Pricing Method No. 2, they are percentage figures.

(b) Pricing Method No. 1. Under Pricing Method No. 1, as set forth in section 5, the processor in most cases figures his maximum price by taking his weighted average selling price for the item being priced during the first 60 days after the beginning of the 1941 pack of the product (or other base period named in the applicable appendix) and adding a specified permitted increase. The resulting figure is the processor's "gross maximum price" (that is, the maximum price before subtraction of any direct subsidy payable per unit of the finished product): Provided, That it falls within the price range fixed for the item in the appendix. If it is higher than the highest price named in the price range, the processor's gross maximum price is the highest price named in the price range. Likewise, if it is lower than the lowest price named in the price range, the processor's gross maximum price is the lowest price named in the price range. As to many of the unsubsidized products, the processor then subtracts from his gross maximum price for the item the difference obtained by subtracting the weighted average price he paid for the raw material in 1946 from the raw material price reflected in the applicable price range. Methods for converting the price paid for raw material to units of the finished product are set forth in the appendices applicable to the products for which this adjustment is required.

In the case of fruits the processor then adds the factor named in the applicable appendix covering increases incurred in the cost of sugar.

In cases where there have been approved increases in basic wage rates, since January 1, 1944 the last step in figuring the maximum price is to add the amount of the labor adjustment which is figured in the manner specified in the applicable appendix.

If the processor sold the particular product during the base period, but only in a grade, style, or container type or size that is different from the one being priced, or for which no price range is provided, he figures his maximum price by the same general pricing method, supplemented by the use of conversion factors (for different container types and sizes, different styles, and different grades).

If the processor was not in business during 1941 or if he made no sales during the base period of goods produced in a particular factory, he takes as his gross maximum price for the item being priced the specific dollars-and-cents price named in the applicable appendix. (However, if he is subject to section 14 (g), covering transfers of business or stock in trade, he uses the base price of his transferor and figures a maximum price in the same manner as his transferor would have figured it.) In cases where a specific dollars-and-cents price is not provided for the item, he figures his gross maximum price by applying the appropriate conversion factors to the specific dollars-and-cents price named for the nearest container size of the product. As to many of the unsubsidized products, the processor then subtracts from his gross maximum price for the item the difference obtained by subtracting the weighted average price he paid for the raw material in 1946 from the raw material price reflected in the applicable dollars-and-cents price. In the case of fruits the processor adds the factor named in the applicable appendix covering increases incurred in the cost of sugar. If he has incurred an increase in basic wage rate, he also adds as the last step in figuring his maximum price the amount of the labor adjustment as figured in the manner specified in the applicable appendix.

For any item of a product on which a direct subsidy is payable, the processor figures his maximum price for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies by subtracting from his maximum price otherwise determined the amount of the subsidy payable per unit of the finished product, as set forth in the applicable appendix.

For sales to government procurement agencies, the processor figures his maximum price by taking 96% of his maximum price for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies, after it has been increased, in the case of subsidized commodities, by the amount of the direct subsidy payable per unit of the finished product.

(c) Pricing Method No. 2. Under Pricing Method No. 2, as set forth in section 6, the processor figures his maximum price by: (1) taking his 1945 maximum prices for sales of the item to purchasers other than government procurement agencies, as required to be figured under the pricing provisions of section 6 (a) of Supplement 13, (2) subtracting from this figure the total amount of any labor adjustments made under section 6 (a) (4) of Supplement 13, (3) subtracting from this figure his 1945 raw material cost; (4) adding his 1946 raw material cost, (5) figuring the adjustment for fruit packed in syrup, the density of which does not correspond to the grade of the fruit, (6) adding the increased sugar cost incurred in packing fruits, fruit juices and nectars, cranberries, cranberry juice and nectar and tomato catsup and chili sauce, and (7) making the appropriate labor adjustment. The resulting figure is the processor's maximum price for sales of the item to purchasers other than government procurement agencies. This general provision does not apply to the pricing of any item for which a maximum price was authorized or approved under section 10 (c) or 10 (d) of Supplement 7 or authorized under section 10 (c) of Supplement 13.

The processor who packed the item in 1945 but who did not establish a maximum price for it under Supplement 13 is required to determine what his maximum price would have been under that supplement and shall use it as a base from which to figure his maximum price under this supplement.

The maximum price in each case for sales to government procurement agencies is figured at 96 percent of the maximum price for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies, after it has been increased, in the case of subsidized commodities, by the difference between the Commodity Credit Corporation's 1943 resale price and the Department of Agriculture's 1946 designated average price for the applicable area.

Section 6 also has special provisions for pricing items in certain metal containers, for converting from tin to glass, for figuring raw material costs in certain cases and for adjusting maximum prices for certain items for which dollars-and-cents prices are named.

SEC. 5. Maximum prices for sales by processors; Pricing Method No. 1. The products covered by Pricing Method No. 1 are listed below, together with references to the applicable appendices containing special pricing provisions for these products. Other products will be added from time to time.

NOTE: Although this section contains certain pricing provisions relating to clingstone peaches produced in California, pears (California, Oregon and Washington), apricots (California), and light sweet cherries (California, Oregon and Washington), none of these products is covered by this supplement until a pricing appendix is added for the product.

Peas (except blackeye, crowder, cream and field)	B	15

The processor shall figure a maximum price for each factory at which he processes the item being priced. (However, he may then elect to combine prices as provided in section 10 (e). When used in this section, the phrase "sold during the base period", or words of similar import, refers to sales of goods produced in a particular factory.

To price items sold during the base period and for which price ranges are provided, see subparagraph (1) below.

To price items sold during the base period but for which price ranges are not provided, see subparagraph (2) below.

To price items not sold during the base period but for which price ranges are provided, see subparagraph (3) below.

To price items not sold during the base period and for which price ranges are not provided, see subparagraph (4) below.

The processor who performs the wholesale function with respect to the item being priced (that is, by warehousing and selling it in less-than-carload quantities, from a branch warehouse owned or controlled by him, to retailers or to commercial, industrial or institutional users) shall, in each case, figure his maximum price for sales in this manner under the general pricing methods of this paragraph (a). However, in determining his base price, he shall include only sales made in this manner in the base period. Furthermore, in each case before applying the limitations of the price range, he shall adjust the applicable price range by adding to the top and bottom prices the freight, if any, incurred from factory to branch warehouse and multiplying each of the resulting figures by the markup named in Maximum Price Regulation No. 421[4] for cash-and-carry wholesalers or for service wholesalers, depending on whether delivery is made in the particular sale to the buyer's place of business.

The processor who qualifies as a retailer under Maximum Price Regulation No. 422[5] or 423[6] shall not use the pricing methods of this section, but he shall apply to the Office of Price Administration, Washington, D. C., for authorization of a maximum price under section 10 (c).

(1) To price items sold during the base period for which price ranges are provided. For sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies, the processor shall figure his maximum price per dozen containers or other unit, f. o. b. shipping point, of an item which he sold during the base period and for which a price range is provided, as follows. He shall:

(i) Determine the basc price. First, the processor shall figure his weighted average price per dozen containers or other unit, f. o. b. shipping point, for the item being priced during the first 60 days after the beginning of the 1941 pack of the product or other base period named in the appendix covering the particular product. (This weighted average price will be called the "base price"). "Weighted average price" means the total gross sales dollars charged for the item during the base period divided by the number of dozens of containers or other units of that item sold. All sales contracts made in the regular course of business during the base period shall be included, regardless of the year of pack or of the date of delivery. Sales contracts made at times other than during the base period shall not be included, even though delivery was made during the base period. However, the following sales contracts shall be excluded, even when made during the base period: Sales to the armed forces of the United States; sales by a processor to his employees, to growers who supplied the raw material, or to other processors of the product unless at least 33⅓ percent of his 1941 pack of the product was sold to other processors, all regardless of brand; sales of damaged goods or of goods packed for experimental purposes; and sales to retailers or institutional users in quantities of less than 25 cases (basis No. 2 cans for vegetables and basis No. 2½ cans for fruit) unless at least 10% of the processor's 1940 or 1941 pack of the product was sold in such lesser quantities.

The processor shall figure a separate weighted average price for each item, except as otherwise provided in a particular appendix, and except that a single weighted average price shall be figured for items which differ only in brand name. (Subgrades shall also be ignored.) In figuring weighted average prices during the base period, the processor may, if he wishes, figure a single weighted average for any group of factories located in the same pricing area. For this purpose, the processor shall include all sales contracts (as described above) made during the first 60 days after the beginning of the 1941 pack of the product, or other applicable base period, at each factory included in the group.

(ii) Add the permitted increase. Next, the processor shall add to the base price the permitted increase named for the item in the applicable appendix. The resulting figure is the processor's "gross maximum price" per dozen containers or other unit, f. o. b. shipping point, for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies; Provided, That it falls within the applicable price range. However, if it is higher than the highest price named in the price range, the processor's gross maximum price is the highest price named in the price range. Likewise, if it is lower than the lowest price named in the price range, the processor's gross maximum price is the lowest price named in the price range.

(iii) Adjust for raw material purchased at average price lower than that reflected in price range. Next, as to any product for which such adjustment is indicated in the applicable appendix, the processor shall subtract from his gross maximum price the difference obtained by subtracting the weighted average price he paid for the raw material in 1946 from the Department of Agriculture's designated price for that raw material. This difference shall be converted to units of the finished product on the basis of the conversion factors set forth in the applicable appendix. However, no subtraction is required under this subparagraph unless the gross maximum price for the item is reduced by one percent or more. The weighted average price paid shall be figured on not less than the first 75% of his purchases of the raw material (exclusive of acquisition and hauling charges) used by him in processing the product.

In the case of clingstone peaches produced in California, pears (California, Oregon and Washington), apricots (California), and light sweet cherries (California, Oregon and Washington), the processor shall figure the amount to be subtracted from his gross maximum price as follows. He shall figure a "weighted average price actually paid" on the basis of the weighted price actually paid for each grade or district classification, not to exceed the price designated to be paid for that grade or district classification by the Department of Agriculture. The "weighted average price actually paid" shall then be subtracted from the average of the designated prices for those grades and district classifications figured by using the same weighting factors (i. e., the quantities he purchased of each grade and district classification).

Example: The designated fruit prices for the 1945 crop of light sweet cherries announced by the Department of Agriculture for Oregon and Washington last year were $217.00 per ton for Grade 1, and $157.00 per ton for Grade 2. The A Canning Company whose factory is located in Oregon, based on not less than the first 75% of its purchases, bought 90% Grade 1 and 10% Grade 2 cherries. A paid an average price of $227.00 per ton for No. 1 cherries and $140.00 per ton for No. 2 cherries. However since the $227.00 per ton price is in excess of the designated price of $217.00 per ton for Grade 1 cherries, he is required to use the designated price in figuring his "weighted average price actually paid". Using a price of $217.00 per ton for 90% of his purchases and $140.00 per ton for 10% of his purchases he figures a weighted average price actually paid of $209.30 per ton. Using the same weighting factors (90% and 10%) he figures an average designated price of $211.00 per ton. The weighted average price actually paid is then subtracted from this figure ($211.00 minus $209.30 equals $1.70). The resulting figure ($1.70) is the difference which must be converted to units of the finished product on the basis of the conversion factors set forth in the applicable appendix.

The grower-processor is not required to make the subtraction specified in this subdivision (iii), as to any product for which he grows all of the raw material used in processing the product.

(iv) Add the increased sugar cost incurred in packing fruit items. Next at such time as he has incurred an increase in the cost of sugar used in processing any fruit item, the processor shall add the increased cost of sugar converted to units of the finished product in the manner provided in the applicable appendix. A processor shall not be deemed to have incurred an increase in the cost of sugar until such time as he elects to make the payment to Commodity Credit Corporation in the manner provided in subdivision (a), below, or at such time as his inventory of sugar obtained as an industrial user under Third Revised Ration Order 3 [6a] issued by Office of Price Administration, and of finished items of any packed fruit, fruit juice, fruit nectar, cranberry, cranberry juice, cranberry nectar, tomato catsup, and chili sauce made from such sugar purchased or contracted for at or below maximum prices in effect prior to February 10, 1946, at all factories, is less than 50,000 pounds of sugar or its equivalent in sugar and finished items.

(a) Election to make payment to Commodity Credit Corporation. Any processor who on June 19, 1946 has an inventory of sugar at all factories in excess of 50,000 pounds which was purchased or contracted for at or below maximum prices in effect prior to February 10, 1946, and who elects to figure an increase in the cost of sugar used in processing any fruit item, at the time he first figures his maximum price under this supplement, shall make a statement to this effect and shall make payment to the Commodity Credit Corporation in an amount computed as follows. He shall:

(i) Determine the total number of pounds of sugar used by him at all factories in processing all commodities packed during the 1945 packing season (or the calendar year 1945 for any non-seasonal food items packed by him).

(ii) Determine the total number of pounds of sugar used by him at all factories in processing any of the following commodities packed by him during the 1945 packing season: all packed fruits, fruit juices and fruit nectars covered by Supplement 13, cranberries, cranberry juice and cranberry nectar, tomato catsup and chili sauce.

(iii) Divide the figure determined under (ii), by the figure determined under (i).

(iv) Multiply the number of pounds of sugar in excess of 50,000 pounds purchased or contracted for at or below maximum prices in effect prior to February 10, 1946, which he had on hand at all factories on June 19, 1946, by the percentage figure resulting from the calculation in (iii) above.

(v) Multiply the resulting figure by one-half cent per pound. The resulting figure is the amount which is payable to the Commodity Credit Corporation.

(b) Filing of statement. Each processor of any of the fruit items covered by this section shall file a statement with the Wholesale-Retail and Fruit and Vegetable Branch, Food Price Division, Office of Price Administration, Washington, D. C., on or before July 15, 1946 setting forth the following information:

(i) The total number of pounds of sugar purchased or contracted for at or below maximum prices in effect prior to February 10, 1946, which he had on hand at all factories on June 19, 1946.

(ii) A statement indicating whether or not he elects to make payment to Commodity Credit Corporation in the manner provided in subdivision (a), above, and if he elects to make payment a statement showing his calculation of the amount to be paid, determined in the manner provided in subdivision (a). (Only one statement should be filed covering all products covered by this supplement and but one payment should be made to Commodity Credit Corporation).

The processor who elects to make payment to Commodity Credit Corporation shall make payment on or before July 15, 1946 by check or money order payable to Commodity Credit Corporation, Washington, D. C., and shall submit with such payment a copy of the above statement. In the event of failure to make such payment the increase incurred in the cost of sugar used in packing any fruit item covered by this section shall be figured in the manner provided in subdivision (c) below.

(c) Figuring the increased cost for sugar by processors who have an inventory in excess of 50,000 pounds and who do not elect to make payment to Commodity Credit Corporation. Any processor who on June 19, 1946 had an inventory of sugar at all factories purchased, or contracted for, at or below maximum prices in effect prior to February 10, 1946, in excess of 50,000 pounds and who does not elect to make payment to Commodity Credit Corporation in the manner provided in subdivision (a), above, shall figure an increase for cost of sugar used in any fruit item covered by this section only at such time as he reduces his inventory of sugar at all factories purchased at or below maximum prices in effect prior to February 10, 1946 to 50,000 pounds or less, and sells and delivers all of that portion of all items of any packed fruit, fruit juice, fruit nectar, cranberry, cranberry juice, cranberry nectar, tomato catsup and chili sauce in excess of the number of units that could be processed from 50,000 pounds of sugar which was processed from sugar purchased or contracted for at or below maximum prices in effect prior to February 10, 1946. When the processor meets the conditions for figuring an increase in the cost of sugar after he has established a maximum price for the item in accordance with section 14 (h), he may refigure his maximum price (notifying his customers as required by section 14 (d)).

(v) Subtract any direct subsidy payable per unit of the finished product. Next, as to any product for which a subsidy is payable, the processor shall subtract from the resulting figure the amount of the direct subsidy payable per unit of the finished product.

(vi) Adjust for approved increases in basic wage rate. Finally, the processor shall add to the resulting figure the appropriate labor increase factor, figured in the manner provided in the applicable appendix, if he has incurred an increase in basic wage rate which is approved by the Wage Stabilization Board (or which is deemed approved under Executive Order 9697,[1] under the Supplementary Wage and Salary Regulations [1] issued by the Office of Economic Stabilization, or any official order issued pursuant thereto); if the increase becomes effective after January 1, 1944; and if 50% or more of his pack of the product is processed after the effective date of such approval of the wage rate increase. An increase in basic wage rate will be considered to have occurred only if the single rate (or mid-point of the range of rates) for unskilled female labor, paid on a straight-time basis, has been increased since January 1, 1944; or if the processor had no unskilled female labor paid on a straight-time basis, if the single rate (or mid-point of the range of rates) for that classification of labor for which he had the largest number of employees, paid on an hourly basis, on his pay roll for the pay period during the 1943 packing season for which he had the largest number of employees, has been increased since January 1, 1944. When the processor meets the conditions for an adjustment (or an additional adjustment) after he has established a maximum price for the item under section 14 (h), he may refigure his maximum price (notifying his customers as required by section 14 (d)).

The resulting figure is the processor's maximum price per dozen containers or other unit, f. o. b. shipping point, for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies.

Illustrations of how maximum prices are figured under subparagraph (1) for items sold during the base period and for which price ranges are provided. The permitted increase provided in Table 3 of Appendix C (section 15) for processors whose factories are located in Area 3 for fancy No. 2½ cans of tomatoes is $0.47. The range of prices in Table 3 for fancy tomatoes packed in No. 2½ cans in this area is $1.82 as the lower limit of the range and $1.92 as the upper limit.

Example 1: The X Canning Company, whose factory is located in Minnesota, has figured a weighted average price during the first 60 days after the beginning of the 1941 pack of $1.50 per dozen for fancy tomatoes packed in No. 2½ cans. To this figure the company adds $0.47, the permitted increase named in Appendix C ($1.50 plus $0.47 equals $1.97). Since this resulting figure of $1.97 is higher than the upper limit of the price range $1.92, the X Canning Company's gross maximum price is $1.92 per dozen. From this figure the company subtracts $0.24, the amount of the direct subsidy ($1.92 minus 0.24 equals $1.68). Subsequent to January 1, 1944 and prior to completion of 50% or more of its tomato pack, the company has incurred an approved increase in basic wage rate for unskilled female labor of $0.10 per hour. By reference to Table 9 in Appendix C, the company figures the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate by multiplying the factor named in Table 9 by 10, the number of unit increases of one cent each incurred (0.0094 times 10 equals $0.094 and then adds this figure to its price ($1.68 plus $0.094 equals $1.774). X's maximum price for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies is $1.77. (Sub-division (iii) is not applicable in this case.)

Example 2: The Y Canning Company whose factory is also located in Minnesota has figured a weighted average price during the first 60 days after the beginning of the 1941 pack of $1.32 per dozen for fancy tomatoes packed in No. 2½ cans. To this figure the company adds the permitted increase of $0.47 ($1.32 plus $0.47 equals $1.79). Since the resulting figure of $1.79 is lower than the lowest price named in the price range, the Y Canning Company's gross maximum price is $1.82 per dozen. From the figure the company substracts $0.24, the amount of the direct subsidy ($1.82 minus $0.24 equals $1.58). Prior to completion of 50% of its current tomato pack Y has incurred an approved increase in basic wage rate of $0.05 per hour. The company figures the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate by multiplying the factor named in Table 9 of Appendix C, by 5 the number of unit increases of one cent each incurred ($0.0094 times 5 equals $0.047) and then adds this figure to its price ($1.58 plus $0.047 equals $1.627). Y's maximum price for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies is $1.63 per dozen. (Subdivision (iii) is not applicable in this case.)

Example 3: The Z Canning Company whose factory is located in Minnesota has figured a weighted average price during the first 60 days after the beginning of the 1941 pack of $1.37 per dozen for No. 2½ cans of fancy tomatoes. To this figure the company adds $0.47 ($1.37 plus $0.47 equals $1.84). Since the resulting figure of $1.84 falls within the range of prices named for fancy tomatoes packed in No. 2½ cans in this area, the Z Canning Company's gross maximum price is $1.84 per dozen. From the figure $1.84 the company subtracts $0.24, the amount of the subsidy, and the resulting figure $1.60 is its maximum price for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies. The company has not incurred an increase in basic wage rates and subsidivision (vi) is accordingly not involved. (Subdivision (iii) is not applicable in this case.)

(2) To price items sold during the base period but for which price ranges are not provided. As a general rule, in figuring maximum prices under subparagraph (2), (3) or (4), steps are to be taken separately in the following order (in many cases not all of the steps are necessary). Any variation from this order will be explained in the applicable appendix.

(1) Construct base price (converting for container type and size).

(2) Add the appropriate permitted increase.

(3) Convert separately for variety, style, sieve size, syrup differential, and grade.

(4) Apply limitations of price range.

(5) Convert for syrup differential except in case of No. 303 glass containers.

(6) Convert for container type and size to get gross maximum price.

(7) Convert for syrup differential in case of No. 303 glass containers.

(8) Adjust for raw material purchased at average price lower than that reflected in price range.

(9) Add the increased sugar cost incurred in packing fruits.

(10) Subtract subsidy.

(11) Adjust for approved increases in basic wage rate.

When pricing substandard grade of any item under subparagraph (2) or (4), the conversion for grade ordinarily made under step 3, above, must be taken immediately following step 4 and before step 6, since no price ranges are provided for substandard grade.

In all cases conversions from metal containers to glass containers must be made in 1946 prices and not in base period prices, for the reason that permitted increases and price ranges are based on cost increases and base period price data for metal containers only. In each case of conversion from metal to glass, the processor must first construct a maximum price for the item when packed in metal and then add the appropriate conversion factor named in the applicable appendix for converting from tin to glass, even though he packed the item in glass during the base period.

For sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies, the processor shall figure his maximum price per dozen containers or other unit, f. o. b. shipping point, of an item which he sold during the base period, but for which a price range is not provided, as follows.

He shall:

(i) Construct a base price. First, the processor shall figure his weighted average price per dozen containers or other unit, f. o. b. shipping point, for the item being priced in the manner provided in paragraph (a) (1) (i), above. He shall then convert this weighted average price (for container type and size, and in the case of fruits for syrup differential, in the order named), to a base price for the item (identical except for container size, and syrup density in the case of fruits), with an established price range, that is nearest in container size to the item being priced, by applying the conversion factors named in the applicable appendix.

(ii) Add the permitted increase. Next, the processor shall add to the constructed base price the permitted increase named in the applicable appendix for the item selected, and apply the limitations of the applicable price range.

(iii) Convert to a gross maximum price for the item being priced. Next, the processor shall convert the price so figured (for syrup differential in the case of fruits, and for container type and size, in the order named except in the case of No. 303 glass containers) to a gross maximum price for the item being priced by applying the conversion factors named in the applicable appendix. For No. 303 glass containers the conversion for container type and size shall be made before the conversion for syrup differential.

(iv) Adjust for raw material purchased at average price lower than that reflected in price range. Next, as to any product for which such an adjustment is indicated in the applicable appendix, the processor shall subtract from his gross maximum price the difference obtained by subtracting the weighted average price he paid for the raw material in 1946 from the Department of Agriculture's designated price for that raw material. This difference shall be converted to units of the finished product on the basis of the conversion factors set forth in the applicable appendix. However, no subtraction is required under this subparagraph unless the gross maximum price for the item is reduced by one percent or more. The weighted average price paid shall be figured on not less than the first 75% of his purchases of the raw material (exclusive of acquisition and hauling charges) used by him in processing the product.

In the case of clingstone peaches produced in California, pears (California, Oregon and Washington), apricots (California), and light sweet cherries (California, Oregon and Washington), the processor shall figure the amount to be subtracted from his gross maximum price as follows. He shall figure a "weighted average price actually paid" on this basis of the weighted average price actually paid for each grade or district classification, not to exceed the price designated to be paid for that grade or district classification by the Department of Agriculture. The "weighted average price actually paid" shall then be subtracted from the average of the designated prices for those grades and district classifications figured by using the same weighting factors (i. e., the quantities he purchased of each grade and district classification). (See example in paragraph (a) (1) (iii), above.)

The grower-processor is not required to make the subtraction specified in this subdivision (iv), as to any product for which he grows all of the raw material used in processing the product.

(v) Add the increased sugar cost incurred in packing fruit items. Next, at such time as he has incurred an increase in the cost of sugar used in processing any fruit item, the processor shall add the increased cost of sugar figured in the manner and subject to the conditions set forth in paragraph (a) (1) (iv), above.

(vi) Subtract any direct subsidy payable per unit of the finished product. Next, as to any product for which a subsidy is payable, the processor shall subtract the amount of the direct subsidy payable per unit of the finished product.

(vii) Adjust for approved increases in basic wage rate. Finally, the processor shall add to the resulting figure the appropriate labor increase factor, figured in the manner provided in the applicable appendix, if he has incurred an increase in basic wage rate which is approved by the Wage Stabilization Board (or which is deemed approved under Executive Order 9697, under the Supplementary Wage and Salary Regulations issued by the Office of Economic Stabilization, or any official order issued pursuant thereto); if the increase becomes effective after January 1, 1944; and if 50% or more of his pack of the product is processed after the effective date of such approval of the wage rate increase. An increase in basic wage rate will be considered to have occurred only if the single rate (or mid-point of the range of rates) for unskilled female labor, paid on a straight time basis, has been increased since January 1, 1944; or if the processor had no unskilled female labor paid on a straight-time basis, if the single rate (or mid-point of the range of rates) for that classification of labor for which he had the largest number of employees, paid on an hourly basis, on his payroll for the pay period during the 1943 packing season for which he had the largest number of employees, has been increased since January 1, 1944. When the processor meets the conditions for an adjustment (or an additional adjustment) after he has established a maximum price for the item under section 14 (h), he may refigure his maximum price (notifying his customers as required by section 14 (d)).

The resulting figure is the processor's maximum price per dozen containers or other unit, f. o. b. shipping point, for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies.

Illustration of how maximum prices are figured under subparagraph (2) for items sold during the base period but for which price ranges are not provided.

Example 4. The B Canning Company, whose factory is located in New York sold fancy No. 3 sieve Sweet Peas in No. 303 cans during the base period. It is now pricing this item. Since Table 3 in Appendix B to Section 15 does not provide a permitted increase and price range for No. 303 cans, the company must convert its weighted average price for the No. 303 size cans of the product to a base price for the nearest container size for which a price range is provided, which in this case is the No. 2 cans. The company has figured a weighted average price during the base period for fancy No. 3 sieve Sweet Peas in No. 303 cans of $1.25. To convert this figure to a No. 2 size can, it multiplies it by 1.12, the conversion factor named in Table 5 of Appendix B ($1.25 times 1.15 equals $1.4375). To this figure the company adds $0.43, the permitted increase named in Table 3. ($1.4375 plus $0.43 equals $1.8675.) Since this figure is higher than the highest price named in the price range for No. 2 size cans of fancy No. 3 sieve Sweet Peas, the company uses $1.78, the highest price in the range, to continue its computations. It now converts the figure $1.78 to a gross maximum price for the No. 303 size can by multiplying it by .89, the conversion factor named in Table 5 for converting to a No. 303 size can ($1.78 times .89 equals $1.5842). From this gross maximum price the company subtracts the amount of the direct subsidy payable for this can size, which amount is figured by multiplying $0.20, the subsidy payable for No. 2 cans, by .89, the appropriate conversion factor named in Table 5. ($0.20 times .89 equals $0.178.) ($1.5842 less $0.178 equals $1.4062.) The company has not incurred an increase in basic wage rates and subdivision (vii) is accordingly not involved. The B Canning Company's maximum price for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies for No. 303 cans of fancy No. 3 sieve Sweet Peas is $1.405 per dozen. (Subdivision (iv) is not applicable in this case.)

(3) To price items not sold during the base period but for which price ranges are provided. (See note at beginning of subparagraph (2).) For sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies, the processor shall figure his maximum price per dozen containers or other units, f. o. b. shipping point, of an item which he did not sell during the base period, but for which a price range is provided as follows. He shall:

(i) Construct a base price. First, the processor shall select from the items of the product which he sold in the base period that item nearest in container size to the item being priced and nearest in such other respects as may be specified in the applicable appendix and figure its weighted average price in the manner provided in paragraph (a) (1) (i), above. He shall then convert this weighted average price, for container type and size, to a base price, for the container size being priced, by applying the appropriate conversion factor in the applicable appendix.

(ii) Add the permitted increase. Next, the processor shall add to the constructed base price the appropriate permitted increase named in the applicable appendix for the variety, style, and grade sold in the base period.

(iii) Convert to a gross maximum price for the item being priced. Next, the processor shall convert the price so figured (for variety, style, sieve size, syrup differential, and grade, in the order named) as may be necessary to arrive at a gross maximum price for the item being priced, by applying the conversion factors named in the applicable appendix, and by applying to the resulting figure the limitations of the applicable price range.

(iv) Adjust for raw material purchased at average price lower than that reflected in price range. Next, as to any product for which such an adjustment is indicated in the applicable appendix, the processor shall subtract from his gross maximum price the difference obtained by subtracting the weighted average price he paid for the raw material in 1946 from the Department of Agriculture's designated price for that raw material. This difference shall be converted to units of the finished product on the basis of the conversion factors set forth in the applicable appendix. However, no subtraction is required under this subparagraph unless the gross maximum price for the item is reduced by one percent or more. The weighted average price paid shall be figured on not less than the first 75% of his purchases of the raw material (exclusive of acquisition and hauling charges) used by him in processing the product.

The grower-processor is not required to make the subtraction specified in this subdivision (iv), as to any product for which he grows all of the raw material used in processing the product.

(v) Add the increased sugar cost incurred in packing fruit items. Next, at such time as he has incurred an increase in the cost of sugar used in processing any fruit item, the processor shall add the increased cost of sugar figured in the manner and subject to the conditions set forth in paragraph (a) (1) (iv), above.

(vi) Subtract any direct subsidy payable per unit of the finished product. Next, as to any product for which a subsidy is payable, the processor shall subtract the amount of the direct subsidy payable per unit of the finished product.

(vii) Adjust for approved increases in basic wage rate. Finally, the processor shall add to the resulting figure the appropriate labor increase factor, figured in the manner provided in the applicable appendix, if he has incurred an increase in basic wage rate which is approved by the Wage Stabilization Board (or which is deemed approved under Executive Order 9697, under the Supplementary Wage and Salary Regulations issued by the Office of Economic Stabilization, or any official order issued pursuant thereto); if the increase becomes effective after January 1, 1944; and if 50% or more of his pack of the product is processed after the effective date of such approval of the wage rate increase. An increase in basic wage rate will be considered to have occurred only if the single rate (or mid-point of the range of rates) for unskilled female labor, paid on a straight time basis, has been increased since January 1, 1944; or if the processor had no unskilled female labor paid on a straight-time basis, if the single rate (or mid-point of the range of rates) for that classification of labor for which he had the largest number of employees, paid on an hourly basis, on his payroll for the pay period during the 1943 packing season for which he had the largest number of employees, has been increased since January 1, 1944. When the processor meets the conditions for an adjustment (or an additional adjustment) after he has established a maximum price for the item under section 14 (h), he may refigure his maximum price (notifying his customers as required by section 14 (d)).

The resulting figure is the processor's maximum price per dozen containers or other unit, f. o. b. shipping point, for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies.

Illustration of how maximum prices are figured under subparagraph (3) for items not sold during the base period but for which price ranges are provided.

Example 5. The C Canning Company, whose factory is located in Michigan, is now pricing No. 2 size cans of fancy large seeded sweet peas, ungraded as to sieve size. During the base period 1941 this company sold the following items of peas:

No. 303 cans, fancy No. 3 sieve sweet peas.
No. 2 cans, fancy No. 4 sieve sweet peas.
No. 10 cans, standard ungraded Alaska peas.
No. 2 cans, extra standard ungraded sweet peas.
No. 2 cans, extra standard 4 sieve Alaska peas.

The C Company selects as the base period item the No. 2 can extra standard ungraded sweet peas because it is nearest in container size and in other respects (as specified in Appendix B to section 15), and figures its weighted average price as $1.05. To this base price the company adds the permitted increase named in Part 2, Table 3 of Appendix B to Section 15 for extra standard ungraded sweet peas. ($1.05 plus $0.34 equals $1.39.) The company then converts this figure for variety to a price for extra standard large seeded sweet peas by adding to it the difference between the specific dollars-and-cents maximum prices named in Part 2 and 3 of Table 4 for the two items $1.56 minus $1.46 equals $0.10; $1.39 plus $0.10 equals $1.49). The resulting figure is then converted for grade to a gross maximum price for item being priced by adding to it the grade difference between fancy and extra standard specified in Table 8 ($1.49 plus $0.26 equals $1.75) and by applying the limitations of the price range to the resulting figure. Since the resulting figure $1.75 is within the price range, it is the processor's gross maximum price. From this figure the company subtracts $0.20, the amount of the direct subsidy payable ($1.75 minus $0.20 equals $1.55). The company has not incurred an increase in basic wage rates and subdivision (vii) is accordingly not involved. The resulting figure $1.55 is the C Company's maximum price for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies. (Subdivision (iv) is not applicable in this case.)

(4) To price items not sold during the base period and for which price ranges are not provided. (See note at beginning of subparagraph (2).)

Two different situations are involved when pricing under this subparagraph.

For sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies, the processor shall figure his maximum price per dozen containers or other unit, f. o. b. shipping point, of an item not sold during the base period, and for which a price range is not provided, as follows:

First situation. If during the base period the processor sold any of the items (of the same product) for which price ranges are provided, he shall figure his maximum price per dozen containers or other unit, f. o. b. shipping point, for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies, as follows.

He shall:

(i) Construct a base price. First, the processor shall select from the items of the product sold during the base period that item for which a price range is provided nearest in container size to the item being priced and nearest in such other respects as may be specified in the applicable appendix and figure its weighted average price in the manner provided in paragraph (a) (1) (i), above.

(ii) Add the permitted increase. Next, the processor shall add to the constructed base price the permitted increase named in the applicable appendix for the variety, style, and grade sold in the base period.

(iii) Convert to a gross maximum price for the item being priced. Next, the processor shall convert the price so figured for the selected item (for variety, style, sieve size, and grade, in the order named) as may be necessary to arrive at a gross maximum price (except for container type and size, and syrup density in the case of fruits) for the item being priced, by applying the conversion factors named in the applicable appendix, and by applying to the resulting figure the limitations of the applicable price range. The price so figured shall then be converted (for syrup differential in the case of fruits, and for container type and size, in the order named except in the case of No. 303 glass containers) to a gross maximum price for the item being priced by applying the conversion factors named in the applicable appendix. For No. 303 glass containers the conversion for container type and size shall be made before the conversion for syrup differential.

(iv) Adjust for raw material purchased at average price lower than that reflected in price range. Next, as to any product for which such an adjustment is indicated in the applicable appendix, the processor shall subtract from his gross maximum price the difference obtained by subtracting the weighted average price he paid for the raw material in 1946 from the Department of Agriculture's designated price for that raw material. This difference shall be converted to units of the finished product on the basis of the conversion factors set forth in the applicable appendix. However, no subtraction is required under this subparagraph unless the gross maximum price for the item is reduced by one percent or more. The weighted average price paid shall be figured on not less than the first 75% of his purchases of the raw material (exclusive of acquisition and hauling charges) used by him in processing the product.

The grower-processor is not required to make the subtraction specified in this subdivision (iv), as to any product for which he grows all of the raw material used in processing the product.

(v) Add the increased sugar cost incurred in packing fruit items. Next, at such time as he has incurred an increase in the cost of sugar used in processing any fruit item, the processor shall add the increased cost of sugar figured in the manner and subject to the conditions set forth in paragraph (a) (1) (iv), above.

(vi) Subtract any direct subsidy payable per unit of the finished product. Next, as to any product for which a subsidy is payable, the processor shall subtract from the resulting figure the amount of the direct subsidy payable per unit of the finished product.

(vii) Adjust for approved increases in basic wage rate. Finally, the processor shall add to the resulting figure the appropriate labor increase factor, figured in the manner provided in the applicable appendix, if he has incurred an increase in basic wage rate which is approved by the Wage Stabilization Board (or which is deemed approved under Executive Order 9697, under the Supplementary Wage and Salary Regulations issued by the Office of Economic Stabilization, or any official order issued pursuant thereto); if the increase becomes effective after January 1, 1944; and if 50% or more of his pack of the product is processed after the effective date of such approval of the wage rate increase. An increase in basic wage rate will be considered to have occurred only if the single rate (or midpoint of the range of rates) for unskilled female labor, paid on a straight time basis, has been increased since January 1, 1944; or if the processor had no unskilled female labor paid on a straight-time basis, if the single rate (or mid-point of the range of rates) for that classification of labor for which he had the largest number of employees, paid on an hourly basis, on his payroll for the pay period during the 1943 packing season for which he had the largest number of employees, has been increased since January 1, 1944. When the processor meets the conditions for an adjustment (or an additional adjustment) after he has established a maximum price for the item under section 14 (h), he may refigure his maximum price (notifying his customers as required by section 14 (d)).

The resulting figure is the processor's maximum price per dozen containers or other unit, f. o. b. shipping point, for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies.

Second situation: If during the base period the processor did not sell any of the items (of the same product) for which price ranges are provided, he shall figure his maximum price per dozen containers or other unit f. o. b. shipping point, for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies, as follows.

He shall:

(i) Construct a base price. First, the processor shall select from the items of the product sold in the base period that item nearest in container size to the item being priced and nearest in such other respects as may be specified in the applicable appendix and figure its weighted average price in the manner provided in paragraph (a) (1) (i), above. He shall then convert this weighted average price, for container type and size, to a base price for the item nearest in container size for which a price range is provided, by applying the conversion factors named in the applicable appendix.

(ii) Add the permitted increase. Next, the processor shall add to the constructed base price the appropriate permitted increase named in the applicable appendix for the variety, style, and grade sold in the base period.

(iii) Convert to a gross maximum price for the item being priced. Next, the processor shall convert the price so figured for the selected item (for variety, style, sieve size, and grade, in the order named) as may be necessary to arrive at a gross maximum price (except for container type and size, and syrup density in the case of fruits) for the item being priced, by applying the conversion factors named in the applicable appendix, and by applying to the resulting figure the limitations of the applicable price range. The price so figured shall then be converted (for syrup differential in the case of fruits and for container type and size, in the order named except in the case of No. 303 glass containers) to a gross maximum price for the item being priced by applying the conversion factors named in the applicable appendix. For No. 303 glass containers the conversion for container type and size shall be made before the conversion for syrup differential.

(iv) Adjust for raw material purchased at average price lower than that reflected in price range. Next, as to any product for which such an adjustment is indicated in the applicable appendix, the processor shall subtract from his gross maximum price the difference obtained by subtracting the weighted average price he paid for the raw material in 1946 from the Department of Agriculture's designated price for that raw material. This difference shall be converted to units of the finished product on the basis of the conversion factors set forth in the applicable appendix. However, no subtraction is required under this subparagraph unless the gross maximum price for the item is reduced by one percent or more. The weighted average price paid shall be figured on not less than the first 75% of his purchases of the raw material (exclusive of acquisition and hauling charges) used by him in processing the product.

The grower-processor is not required to make the subtraction specified in this subdivision (iv), as to any product for which he grows all of the raw material used in processing the product.

(v) Add the increased sugar cost incurred in packing fruit items. Next, at such time as he has incurred an increase in the cost of sugar used in processing any fruit item, the processor shall add the increased cost of sugar figured in the manner and subject to the conditions set forth in paragraph (a) (1) (iv), above.

(vi) Subtract any direct subsidy payable per unit of the finished product. Next, as to any product for which a subsidy is payable, the processor shall subtract from the resulting figure the amount of the direct subsidy payable per unit of the finished product.

(vii) Adjust for approved increases in basic wage rate. Finally, the processor shall add to the resulting figure the appropriate labor increase factor, figured in the manner provided in the applicable appendix, if he has incurred an increase in basic wage rate which is approved by the Wage Stabilization Board (or which is deemed approved under Executive Order 9697, under the Supplementary Wage and Salary Regulations issued by the Office of Economic Stabilization, or any official order issued pursuant thereto); if the increase becomes effective after January 1, 1944; and if 50% or more of his pack of the product is processed after the effective date of such approval of the wage rate increase. An increase in basic wage rate will be considered to have occurred only if the single rate (or mid-point of the range of rates) for unskilled female labor, paid on a straight-time basis, has been increased since January 1, 1944; or if the processor had no unskilled female labor paid on a straight-time basis, if the single rate (or mid-point of the range of rates) for that classification of labor for which he had the largest number of employees, paid on an hourly basis, on his payroll for the pay period during the 1943 packing season for which he had the largest number of employees, has been increased since January 1, 1944. When the processor meets the conditions for an adjustment (or an additional adjustment) after he has established a maximum price for the item under section 14 (h), he may refigure his maximum price (notifying his customers as required by section 14 (d)).

The resulting figure is the processor's maximum price per dozen containers or other unit, f. o. b. shipping point, for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies, as follows.

Illustrations of how maximum prices are figured under subparagraph (4) for items not sold during the base period and for which price ranges are not provided.

FIRST SITUATION

Example 6. The E Canning Company, whose factory is located in Oregon is now pricing No. 1 (picnic) cans of standard 4 sieve sweet peas. During the base period 1941, this company sold peas of the following grades, and container types and sizes:

Fancy No. 4 sieve sweet peas packed in No. 2 cans.

Fancy No. 4 sieve sweet peas packed in No. 10 cans.

The E Company selects the No. 2 can because it is the nearest container size for which a price range is provided to the No. 1 (picnic) can being priced. It then figures the weighted average price for the No. 2 can as $1.05 per dozen. To this figure the company adds $0.36 the permitted increase named in Table 3, Appendix B, to section 15 ($1.05 plus $0.36 equals $1.41). The company then subtracts from this figure $0.26 the difference between fancy and standard grades of sweet peas named in Table 8 to Appendix B ($1.41 minus $0.26 equals $1.15), and applies to the resulting figure the limitations of the price range. Since this figure is lower than the lowest price named for standard 4 sieve sweet peas in No. 2 cans in Area 5, the company uses $1.16, the lowest price in the price range, to continue its computation. This figure is then converted to a gross maximum price for the No. 1 (picnic) can being priced by multiplying it by .66 the conversion factor named in Table 5, Appendix B, for converting from a No. 2 to a No. 1 (picnic) can ($1.16 times .66 equals $0.7656). From this figure ($0.7656) the company subtracts $0.1320, the amount of the subsidy. ($0.7656 minus $0.1320 equals $0.6336). The company has incurred an approved increase in basic wage rate of $0.10 per hour for unskilled female labor, subsequent to January 1, 1944 and before completion of 50% or more of its pack of peas. The company accordingly figures the adjustment for increase in basic wage rate by reference to Table 10. ($0.0026 times 10, the number of one cent unit increases incurred, equals $0.026; $0.026 times .66, the conversion factor for converting from a No. 2 can to a No. 1 (picnic) can, equals $0.0176). The company then adds this figure to $0.6336 and the resulting figure $0.6508 is its maximum price for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies for its No. 1 (picnic) cans of standard No. 4 sieve sweet peas. (Subdivision (iv) is not applicable in this case.)

SECOND SITUATION

Example 7. The D Canning Company whose factory is located in Oregon is now pricing 8-ounce cans of fancy No. 3 and 4 sieve sweet peas. During the base period the company sold peas of the following grades and container types and sizes:

Fancy No. 3 and 4 sieve sweet peas in No. 1 tall cans.

Standard No. 4 sieve sweet peas in No. 1 (picnic) cans.

The D company selects the No. 1 (picnic) can because it is nearest in container size to the 8-ounce can which is now being priced and figures its weighted average price as $0.57 per dozen. The company then converts this weighted average base price to a constructed base price for the No. 2 can by multiplying it by 1.52, the conversion factor named in Table 5, Appendix B to section 15, for converting from a No. 1 (picnic) can to a No. 2 can. ($0.57 times 1.52 equals $0.8664.) The company then adds $0.31, the permitted increase named in Table 3 for Area 5 ($0.8664 plus $0.31 equals $1.1764). To this figure the company adds $0.26, the difference between standard and fancy grades provided in Table 8 of Appendix B ($1.1764 plus $0.26 equals $1.4364). Since this figure ($1.4364) falls within the price range for fancy No. 4 sieve sweet peas in No. 2 cans, the company uses it to continue its computation. The company then converts this figure for the No. 2 size can to a gross maximum price for the 8-ounce can being priced by multiplying it by 0.56, the conversion factor named in Table 5 for converting a No. 2 can to an 8-ounce can ($1.4364 times 0.56 equals $0.8044). From this figure ($0.8044) the company subtracts $0.112, the subsidy payable for 8-ounce cans, and the resulting figure $0.6924 is its maximum price for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies since it has not incurred an increase in basic wage rate. (Subdivision (iv) is not applicable in this case.)

(b) Products not sold during the base period. For any product which was not sold in the base period, the processor shall figure his maximum price per dozen containers or other unit of the item, f. o. b. factory, for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies, in the following manner:

(1) Grades, varieties, styles and container types and sizes for which specific dollars-and-cents prices are provided. If the grade, variety, style and container type and size of the items being priced is one for which a specific dollars-and-cents price is provided, the processor shall in each case:

(i) Ascertain the gross maximum price. First, the processor shall take the specific dollars-and-cents price named for the item in the applicable appendix and use this figure as his gross maximum price, f. o. b. factory.

(ii) Adjust for raw material purchased at average price lower than that reflected in dollars-and-cents price. Next, as to any product for which such an adjustment is indicated in the applicable appendix, the processor shall subtract from his gross maximum price the difference obtained by subtracting the weighted average price he paid for the raw material in 1946 from the Department of Agriculture's designated price for that raw material. This difference shall be converted to units of the finished product on the basis of the conversion factors set forth in the applicable appendix. However, no subtraction is required under this subparagraph unless the gross maximum price for the item is reduced by one percent or more. The weighted average price paid shall be figured on not less than the first 75% of his purchases of the raw material (exclusive of acquisition and hauling charges) used by him in processing the product.

The grower-processor is not required to make the subtraction specified in this subdivision (ii), as to any product for which he grows all of the raw material used in processing the product.

(iii) Add the increased sugar cost incurred in packing fruit items. Next, at such time as he has incurred an increase in the cost of sugar used in processing any fruit item, the processor shall add the increased cost of sugar figured in the manner and subject to the conditions set forth in paragraph (a) (1) (iv), above.

(iv) Subtract any direct subsidy payable per unit of the finished product. Next, as to any product for which a subsidy is payable, the processor shall subtract from the resulting figure the amount of the direct subsidy payable per unit of the finished product.

(v) Adjust for approved increases in basic wage rate. Finally, the processor shall add to the resulting figure the appropriate labor increase factor, figured in the manner provided in the applicable appendix, if he has incurred an increase in basic wage rate which is approved by the wage Stabilization Board (or which is deemed approved under Executive Order, 9697, under the Supplementary Wage and Salary Regulations issued by the Office of Economic Stabilization, or any official order issued pursuant thereto); if the increase becomes effective after January 1, 1944; and if 50% or more of his pack of the product is processed after the effective date of such approval of the wage rate increase. An increase in basic wage rate will be considered to have occurred only if the single rate (or mid-point of the range of rates) for unskilled female labor, paid on a straight time basis, has been increased since January 1, 1944; or if the processor had no unskilled female labor paid on a straight time basis, if the single rate (or mid-point of the range of rates) for that classification of labor for which he had the largest number of employees, paid on an hourly basis, on his payroll for the pay period during the 1943 packing season for which he had the largest number of employees, has been increased since January 1, 1944. When the processor meets the conditions for an adjustment (or an additional adjustment) after he has established a maximum price for the item under section 14 (h), he may refigure his maximum price (notifying his customers as required by section 14 (d)).

If the processor was not in business during the 1943 packing season but started operations after January 1, 1944 (and is not a transferee within the meaning of section 14 (g) of a processor who was in business at that time), for the purpose of figuring the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate, he shall use the figure in the table below for the state in which his factory is located as the basic wage rate in effect on January 1, 1944 for unskilled female labor.

The resulting figure is the processor's maximum price per dozen containers or other unit, f. o. b. shipping point, for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies.

For the purpose of section 10 (b) this price shall be considered a "dollars-and-cents" maximum price for a processor who performs the wholesale function.

(2) Grades, varieties, styles and container types and sizes for which specific dollars-and-cents prices are not provided. If the grade, variety, style and container type and size of the item being priced is one for which a specific dollars-and-cents price is not provided, the processor shall in each case:

(i) Ascertain the gross base price. First, the processor shall take the specific dollars-and-cents price named in the applicable appendix for that container size (of the same product) which is nearest in size to the item being priced.

(ii) Convert to a gross maximum price for the item being priced. Next, the processor shall convert that figure (for style, syrup differential, grade and container type and size, in the order named except in the case of conversion for syrup differential for No. 303 glass containers) as may be necessary to arrive at a gross maximum price for the item being priced, by applying the conversion factors named in the applicable appendix. For No. 303 glass containers the conversion for container type and size shall be made before the conversion for syrup differential.

(iii) Adjust for raw material purchased at average price lower than that reflected in dollars-and-cents price. Next, as to any product for which such an adjustment is indicated in the applicable appendix, the processor shall subtract from his gross maximum price the difference obtained by subtracting the weighted average price he paid for the raw material in 1946 from the Department of Agriculture's designated price for that raw material. This difference shall be converted to units of the finished product on the basis of the conversion factors set forth in the applicable appendix. However, no subtraction is required under this subparagraph unless the gross maximum price for the item is reduced by one percent or more. The weighted average price paid shall be figured on not less than the first 75% of his purchases of the raw material (exclusive of acquisition and hauling charges) used by him in processing the product).

In the case of clingstone peaches produced in California, pears (California, Oregon and Washington), apricots (California), and light sweet cherries (California, Oregon and Washington), the processor shall figure the amount to be subtracted from his gross maximum price as follows. He shall figure a "weighted average price actually paid" on the basis of the weighted average price actually paid for each grade or district classification, not to exceed the price designated to be paid for that grade or district classification by the Department of Agriculture. The "weighted average price actually paid" shall then be subtracted from the average of the designated prices for those grades and district classifications figured by using the same weighting factors (i. e., the quantities he purchased of each grade and district classification). (See example in paragraph (a) (1) (iii), above.).

The grower-processor is not required to make the subtraction specified in this subdivision (iii), as to any product for which he grows all of the raw material used in processing the product.

(iv) Add the increased sugar cost incurred in packing fruit items. Next, at such time as he has incurred an increase in the cost of sugar used in processing any fruit item, the processor shall add the increased cost of sugar figured in the manner and subject to the conditions set forth in paragraph (a) (1) (iv), above.

(v) Subtract any direct subsidy payable per unit of the finished product. Next, as to any product for which a subsidy is payable, the processor shall subtract from the resulting figure the amount of the direct subsidy payable per unit of the finished product.

(vi) Adjust for approved increases in basic wage rate. Finally, the processor shall add to the resulting figure the appropriate labor increase factor, figured in the manner provided in the applicable appendix, if he has incurred an increase in basic wage rate which is approved by the Wage Stabilization Board (or which is deemed approved under Executive Order 9697, under the Supplementary Wage and Salary Regulations issued by the Office of Economic Stabilization, or any official order issued pursuant thereto); if the increase becomes effective after January 1, 1944; and if 50% or more of his pack of the product is processed after the effective date of such approval of the wage rate increase. An increase in basic wage rate will be considered to have occurred only if the single rate (or midpoint of the range of rates) for unskilled female labor, paid on a straight time basis, has been increased since January 1, 1944; or if the processor had no unskilled female labor paid on a straight time basis, if the single rate (or midpoint of the range of rates) for that classification of labor for which he had the largest number of employees, paid on an hourly basis, on his payroll for the pay period during the 1943 packing season for which he had the largest number of employees, has been increased since January 1, 1944. When the processor meets the conditions for an adjustment (or an additional adjustment) after he has established a maximum price for the item under section 14 (h), he may refigure his maximum price (notifying his customers as required by section 14 (d)).

If the processor was not in business during the 1943 packing season but started operations after January 1, 1944 (and is not a transferee within the meaning of section 14 (g) of a processor who was in business at that time), for the purpose of figuring the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate, he shall use the figure in the table in paragraph (b) (1) (v), above, for the state in which his factory is located as the basic wage rate in effect on January 1, 1944 for unskilled female labor.

The resulting figure is the processor's maximum price per dozen containers or other unit, f. o. b. shipping point, for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies.

For the purpose of section 10 (b) this price shall be considered a "dollars-and-cents" maximum price for a processor who performs the wholesale function.

(c) Maximum prices figured on the basis of subgrades. A processor who meets the conditions of this paragraph as to any item may, if he elects, figure maximum prices for the item on the basis of subgrades. "Subgrade" means a subdivision of a grade, determined in each case according to the regularly established way, during the base period, in which the particular processor reflected differences in quality (within that grade) in different selling prices for the item. Whether the processor had such a practice during the base period shall be determined from his invoices, and no processor who does not meet these conditions shall figure his maximum prices for the item on the basis of subgrades. If the particular processor's individual subgrade falls into more than one grade, as defined above, the individual subgrade shall be divided according to the commercial grades into which it falls.

The processor may make an election for one or more factories selected by him, Provided, That the maximum prices for the item at the selected factories are the same. However, any such election applies only to that part of the combined packs of those factories which he has not sold and delivered prior to the filing of the statement of his election. When he makes this election as to any item, the processor may sell it at whatever prices he pleases, subject to the following limitations:

(1) The maximum price for his entire pack of the item shall not be higher than his maximum price for the item figured without regard to subgrades multiplied by the number of units sold.

(2) No selling price for any subgrade of the item shall be higher than the top of the price range applicable to the item.

(3) The processor shall not sell on the basis of subgrades, at prices higher than his maximum price for the item figured without regard to subgrades, until he has filed with the Office of Price Administration, Washington, D. C., a statement of his election naming (i) each subgrade and the proportion of his pack of the item which he elects to sell under it, (ii) the highest price at which he elects to sell each subgrade, (iii) the actual or anticipated amount of his pack of the item, and (iv) his maximum price for the item figured without regard to subgrades. If he names an anticipated amount of pack, he shall file a supplementary statement showing his actual pack of the item, within 10 days after its completion.

(4) The number of units sold in the highest-priced subgrade shall not exceed the total number of units included in that subgrade in the seller's statement of election, and the maximum price for the entire subgrade shall be the price stated therein for that subgrade multiplied by the number of units sold. The number of units sold in the next highest-priced subgrade shall not exceed the total number of units included in that subgrade, in the seller's statement of election, plus the number of units, if any, included for the highest-priced subgrade which are sold at or below the price stated for the next highest-priced subgrade, and the maximum price for the entire subgrade, plus such additional units, if any, shall be the price stated for that subgrade multiplied by the number of units sold, plus such additional units, if any. The above rule shall apply to determine the total number of units which may be sold in any lower-priced subgrade and to determine the maximum price for any such subgrade.

SEC. 6. Maximum prices for sales by processors; Pricing Method No. 2. The products covered by Pricing Method No. 2 are listed below. (The "base period" applicable to each product is the first 60 days after the beginning of the 1941 pack except where otherwise specified.) Other products will be added from time to time.

NOTE: Although this section contains certain pricing provisions relating to packed fruits, these products are not covered by this supplement until the specific fruits are added to the products listed below.

Packed vegetables:
Fordhook lima beans.
Hominy.
Rhubarb.
Beans, fresh lima (other than Fordhook lima beans).
Tomato cocktail, catsup, chili sauce, puree, paste and sauce.
Italian pear shaped tomatoes.
Mushrooms—Base period: October 10, 1941 to December 10, 1941.
Peas, blackeye, crowder, cream, and field.
Mixed vegetables containing vegetables not otherwise specified.
Mixed vegetable juices containing vegetable juices not otherwise specified.

The processor who qualified as a retailer under Maximum Price Regulation No. 422 and 423 shall not use the pricing methods of this section but shall apply to the Office of Price Administration, Washington, D. C., for authorization of a maximum price under section 10 (c).

The processor shall figure a maximum price for each factory at which he processes the item being priced. (However, he may then elect to combine prices as provided in section 10 (e)).

(a) General rule for pricing items where they or other items of the same product were sold during the base period and for which maximum prices were established under the provisions of section 6 (a) of Supplement 13. In general, this paragraph applies to the pricing of items in those cases where the processor (including the grower-processor) sold some items of the product during the base period and for which he established maximum prices for the 1945 pack under the formula provisions of section 6 (a) of Supplement 13. It does not apply to items that were priced in 1945 or 1946 by individual authorization under section 10 (c) of Supplement 13, nor does it apply to items that were priced under section 6 (b) or 6 (e) of that supplement.

This section also applies to the pricing of items sold in 1945 but for which the processor did not establish maximum prices under Supplement 13 for the reason that he had sold his entire 1945 pack of the items at maximum prices figured under Supplement 7 prior to the effective date of the applicable pricing provision of Supplement 13.

For sales of an item to purchasers other than government procurement agencies, the processor shall figure his maximum price per dozen containers or other unit, f. o. b. shipping point, as follows. He shall:

(1) Start with the 1945 maximum price. The processor shall use as his starting point the maximum price for the item for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies, as required to be figured under section 6 (a) of Supplement 13. The processor who sold the item in 1945 but who did not establish a maximum price for it under that section of Supplement 13 shall determine what his maximum price for the item would have been under that section and shall use that price as his starting point under this paragraph.

(2) Subtract the amount of 1945 adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate. Next, the processor shall subtract the amount of any adjustment for approved increase in basic wage rate which he figured under section 6 (a) (4) of Supplement 13.

(3) Subtract the 1945 raw material cost. Next, the processor shall subtract the 1945 raw material cost per dozen containers or other unit as required to be figured under that supplement. The deduction shall include any hauling and transportation charges reflected in his maximum price for the 1945 pack.

(4) Add the 1946 raw material cost. Next, the processor shall add to the resulting figure his 1946 weighted average raw material cost, converted to units of the finished product by applying the simple average of his 1941 and 1943 case (unit) yields and by adjusting for grade yield according to his customary practice. (If he did not pack the product in 1943, he shall use the average of his 1941 and 1942 yields.) The 1946 raw material cost shall be figured on the basis of not less than the first 75% of his purchases of the raw material used by him in processing the product. However, the processor's weighted average raw material cost shall be figured on the basis of a weighted average raw material price no higher than the appropriate average price designated for payment to growers by the Department of Agriculture, as set forth below, except that for the quantities of any fruit actually purchased by grade or district classification announced by the Department of Agriculture, a weighted average raw material price for those purchases shall be included in the weighted average raw material cost, figured on the basis of the weighted average price actually paid for each grade or district classification but not in excess of the price named below for that grade or district classification.

(ii) For all other fruit items covered by section 6 that are packed in syrup of which the density does not correspond to the grade of the fruit, the processor shall subtract from the resulting figure in subparagraph (4), above, the difference obtained by subtracting from his actual cost of sugar used in making syrup of a density corresponding to the grade of the fruit, the actual cost of sugar used in making the syrup in which he is packing the item.

(6) Add the increased sugar cost incurred in packing fruit, fruit juices and nectars, cranberries, cranberry juice and nectar, tomato catsup and chili sauce. Next, at such time as he has incurred an increase in the cost of sugar used in processing any packed fruit, fruit juice, fruit nectar, cranberry, cranberry juice, cranberry nectar, tomato catsup and chili sauce item, the processor shall add the increased cost of sugar converted to units of the finished product in the manner provided in subdivision (iv), below. A processor shall not be deemed to have incurred an increase in the cost of sugar until such time as he elects to make the payment to Commodity Credit Corporation in the manner provided in subdivision (i), below, or at such time as his inventory of sugar obtained as an industrial user under Third Revised Ration Order No. 3 issued by the Office of Price Administration and of finished items of the packed products listed above made from sugar purchased or contracted for at or below maximum prices in effect prior to February 10, 1946, at all factories is less than 50,000 pounds of sugar or its equivalent in sugar and finished items.

(i) Election to make payment to Commodity Credit Corporation. Any processor who on June 19, 1946 has an inventory of sugar at all factories in excess of 50,000 pounds which was purchased or contracted for at or below maximum prices in effect prior to February 10, 1946, which he had on hand at all factories on June 19, 1946, by the percentage figure resulting from the calculation in (c), above.

(c) Multiply the resulting figure by one-half cent per pound. The resulting figure is the amount which is payable to the Commodity Credit Corporation.

(ii) Filing of statement. Each processor of any packed fruit, fruit juice, fruit nectar, cranberry, cranberry juice, cranberry nectar, tomato catsup and chili sauce item covered by this section shall file a statement with the Wholesale-Retail and Fruit and Vegetable Branch, Food Price Division, Office of Price Administration, Washington, D. C., on or before July 15, 1946. setting forth the following information:

(a) Determine the total number of pounds of sugar used by him at all factories in processing any of the following commodities packed by him during the 1945 packing season: all packed fruits, fruit juices and fruit nectars covered by Supplement 13, cranberries, cranberry juice and cranberry nectar, tomato catsup and chili sauce.

(e) Multiply the resulting figure by one-half cent per pound. The resulting figure is the amount which is payable to the Commodity Credit Corporation.

(iii) Figuring the increased cost for sugar by processors who have an inventory in excess of 50,000 pounds and who do not elect to make payment to Commodity Credit Corporation. Any processor who on June 19, 1946, had an inventory of sugar at all factories purchased, or contracted for, at or below maximum prices in effect prior to February 10, 1946, in excess of 50,000 pounds and who does not elect to make payment to Commodity Credit Corporation in the manner provided in subdivision (i), above, shall figure an increase for cost of sugar used in any packed fruit, fruit juice, fruit nectar, cranberry, cranberry juice, cranberry nectar, tomato catsup and chili sauce item only at such time as he reduces his inventory of sugar at all factories purchased at or below maximum prices in effect prior to February 10, 1946 to 50,000 pounds or less, and sells and delivers all of that portion of all items of such products in excess of the number of units that could be processed from 50,000 pounds of sugar which was processed from sugar purchased or contracted for at or below maximum prices in effect prior to February 10, 1946. The amount of the increase per unit of the finished product shall be determined in the manner provided in subdivision (iv), below.

(iv) Amount of cost increase per unit of the finished product for one-half cent per pound increase in maximum price of sugar. (a) The increase cost of sugar converted to units of the finished product to be added to the processor's price in figuring the adjustment under this subparagraph (6) is the appropriate amount named in the table below:

Raw materials for all mixed vegetables and mixed juices	All States	For raw vegetables listed above except tomatoes used in mixed vegetables, price specified in table for each vegetable; for tomatoes, green peas and sweet corn used in mixed vegetable juices, current U. S. Department of Agriculture 5 weighted average designated price for area in which processor's customary receiving point is located; for all other vegetables price actually paid.

[1] The raw material prices named in the table above refer to designated prices delivered to the processor's customary receiving point, except in the case of blackeye pead and other field peas for which the prices include delivery to the factory. The actual current transportation charges incurred from his customary receiving point to his factory shall be added to the amount named at the customary receiving point. The location of the place where the raw material is grown is controlling in determining the applicable price and not the place where the raw material is purchased. If the processor purchases raw material in an area other than that in which his customary receiving point is located, the applicable price in the table is the price for the area in which the raw material is grown, and he shall add to this amount the current transportation charges that would have been incurred from his customary receiving point to his factory.

"Delivered to the customary receiving point" means delivered to the place where the processor received delivery of the raw material during 1941 or 1942 which is designated the "base period" referred to at the beginning of this section. If the processor had no customary receiving point during that period, "delivered to the customary receiving point" means delivered to the nearest place where processors of the same raw material, whose factories are located in the same producing area received delivery during that period.

(5) Figure the adjustment for fruit packed in syrup the density of which does not correspond to the grade of the fruit. Next, the processor who is pricing a fruit item packed in syrup of which the density does not correspond to the grade of the fruit and for which he did not establish a maximum price under Supplement 13, shall figure the adjustment for change in packing medium under the provisions of subdivision (i) or (ii), below, whichever is applicable to the item being priced.

(b) For all other packed fruit, fruit juice, fruit nectar, cranberry, cranberry juice and cranberry nectar items the processor shall add his actual increased cost of sugar converted to cents per unit of the finished product for the sugar actually used by him but not to exceed one-half cent per pound for the sugar so used.

When the processor meets the conditions for figuring an increase in the cost of sugar after he has established a maximum price for the item in accordance with section 14 (h), he may refigure his maximum price (notifying his customers as required by section 14 (d)).

(7) Adjust for approved increases in basic wage rate. Finally, the processor whose factory is located in the state or area set forth in Table 1, below, shall figure the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate if he has incurred an increase in basic wage rate which is approved by the Wage Stabilization Board (or which is deemed approved under Executive Order 9697, under the Supplementary Wage and Salary Regulations issued by the Office of Economic Stabilization or under any official order issued pursuant thereto); if the increase becomes effective after January 1, 1944; and if 50% or more of his pack of the product is processed after the effective date of such approval of the wage rate increase. An increase in basic wage rate will be considered to have occurred only if the single rate (or mid-point of the range of rates) for unskilled female labor, paid on a straight time basis, has been increased since January 1, 1944; or if the processor had no unskilled female labor paid on a straight time basis, if the single rate (or mid-point of the range of rates) for that classification of labor for which he had the largest number of employees, paid on an hourly basis, on his payroll for the pay period during the 1943 packing season for which he had the largest number of employees, has been increased since January 1, 1944. To figure the amount of the adjustment he shall:

(i) Determine the basic wage rate in effect on January 1, 1944. First, the processor shall figure the amount of the basic wage rate for unskilled female labor in effect on January 1, 1944, by taking the hourly rate (or mid-point of range of rates) in effect for that class of labor during the pay period of the 1943 packing season for which he had the largest number of employees on his pay roll and adding to this figure the amount of any increase in basic wage rates for unskilled female labor which he put into effect on or before January 1, 1944. If the processor during that period had no unskilled female employees who were paid on a straight time hourly basis, he shall substitute for unskilled female labor that classification of labor for which he had the largest number of employees paid on an hourly basis during the period. The basic wage rate deemed to have been in effect on January 1, 1944, shall be the figure resulting from the above calculation, or 40 cents per hour, whichever is higher.

(ii) Next, the processor shall subtract the resulting figure from the hourly basic wage rate (or mid-point of range of rates) for unskilled female labor, paid on a straight time basis, in effect at the time he figures his maximum price under this supplement, or if he has no unskilled female employees paid on this basis he shall use the hourly basic wage rate (or mid-point of range of rates) for that class of employees for which he has the largest number of employees paid on a straight time hourly basis on his pay roll at the time he figures his maximum price under this supplement.

(iii) Next, the processor shall multiply the resulting figure by the appropriate labor increase factor set forth in Table 1, below.

(iv) Finally, the processor shall multiply the price resulting from the calculations in subparagraphs (1) through (6), above, by the factor obtained as a result of the multiplication in subdivision (iii), above, and add the result to the price obtained by the calculations in subparagraphs (1) through (6).

When the processor meets the condition for an adjustment (or an additional adjustment) after he has established a maximum price for the item under section 14 (h), he may refigure his maximum price (notifying his customers as required by section 14 (d)).

The resulting figure is the processor's maximum price per dozen containers or other unit, f. o. b. shipping point, for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies.

Illustrations of how adjustments for approved increases in basic wage rate are figured.

Example 1. The X Canning Company, whose factory is located in California, has figured a price prior to taking the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate of $1.52 per dozen for fancy tomato catsup 33% solids, packed in 14-ounce glass containers (the price resulting from the calculations in subparagraphs (1) through (6). During the 1943 packing season, X was paying his unskilled female employees $0.72 per hour. Prior to January 1, 1944, X put into effect $0.05 per hour increase for his unskilled female employees. X is now paying this class of employees a basic wage rate approved by the Wage Stabilization Board of $0.82 per hour. To figure the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate, X determines that the basic wage rate in effect for unskilled female labor on January 1, 1944 was $0.77 per hour ($0.72 plus $0.05 equal $0.77). X then subtracts this figure from his current basic wage rate of $0.82 per hour ($0.82 minus $0.77 equals $0.05). X has incurred an increase in basic wage rates for unskilled female labor of $0.05 per hour, or 5 unit increases of $0.01 each. It accordingly multiplies the conversion factor in Table 1 of section 6 (a) (7) for vegetables in area 4 by 5 (5 times .0022 equals .0110). X then multiplies his price (prior to labor adjustment) of $1.52 by this factor ($1.52 times .0110 equals $0.01672). The figure $0.01672 is added to $1.52 and the resulting figure (rounded to $1.54) is its maximum price for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies of fancy tomato catsup, 33% solids, packed in 14-ounce glass containers.

Example 2. The Y Canning Company, whose factory is located in New Jersey, is a new processor who was not in business during the 1943 packing season. It has never packed lima beans before but is now pricing No. 2 cans of fancy small (sieve 3) lima beans, and is accordingly required to use the dollar-and-cents price of $1.77 named in Part 1, of section 6 (f) as its price. Y is now paying unskilled female employees $0.55 per hour. (This wage rate is deemed approved under General Order 43, issued by the National Wage Stabilization Board on March 20, 1946 (11 F. R. 3024).) To determine whether it has had an increase in basic wage rates for unskilled female labor, Y refers to Table 2 in section 6 (a) (7) and finds that the weighted average wage rate for unskilled female labor in New Jersey in 1943 was $0.48 per hour. Y is now paying in excess of this amount and accordingly is deemed to have incurred an increase in basic wage rates. From its current basic wage rates of $0.55 per hour, Y subtracts $0.48, the figure named in Table 1 for New Jersey and the resulting figure, $0.07, is the amount of the increase in basic wage rates. Y then multiplies the adjustment figure in Table 1 of section 6 (a) (7) for vegetables in Area 1 by 7, the number of unit increase of $0.01 each incurred, (0.0030 times 7 equals 0.0210). Y then multiplies $1.77, the price from part 1, of section 6 (f), by this factor ($1.77 times .0210 equals .03717). Y then adds this figure to $1.77, ($1.77 plus .03717 equals $1.80717). Y's maximum price for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies of No. 2 cans of fancy small lima beans is $1.81 per dozen.

(b) Rule for pricing items in certain container types and sizes—(1) Metal containers; all products under Pricing Method No. 2. If the processor cannot figure his maximum price under paragraph (a) for an item packed in one of the following metal container sizes, his maximum price per dozen containers or other unit, f. o. b. shipping point, for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies, shall be:

(i) For No. 303 cans, 85% of what his maximum price per unit, f. o. b. shipping point, is or would be under paragraph (a) for the item packed in No. 2 cans.

(ii) For No. 1 (picnic) cans, 70% of what his maximum price per unit, f. o. b. shipping point, is or would be under paragraph (a) for the item packed in No. 2 cans.

(iii) For 8-ounce cans, 55% of what his maximum price per unit, f. o. b. shipping point, is or would be under paragraph (a) for the item packed in No. 2 cans.

(2) Metal containers; particular products. If the processor cannot figure his maximum price under paragraph (a) for a product listed below when packed in a metal container size listed in Column B, his maximum price per dozen containers or other unit, f. o. b. shipping point, for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies shall be his maximum price (or one that he can figure) for the product and can size listed in Column A multiplied by the appropriate conversion factor listed in Column B.

(3) Glass containers; all products under Pricing Method No. 2. If the processor cannot figure his maximum price under paragraph (a) for an item packed in a glass container size listed below, his maximum price per dozen containers or other unit, f. o. b. shipping point, for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies, shall be 20 cents per dozen for packed fruits and berries, and 15 cents per dozen for packed vegetables, more than his maximum price is or would be under paragraph (a), for the item packed in the equivalent can size.

(c) Basis for figuring raw material costs in certain cases—(1) Raw material costs for grower-processors. The grower-processor when figuring a maximum price under paragraph (a) shall subtract and add the weighted average raw material costs of the same competitive processor he was required to use in figuring his raw material costs under Supplement 13. If that competitor does not pack the product in 1946 the grower-processor shall use the 1945 and 1946 weighted average raw material cost of his most closely competitive processor who purchases raw material for use in making the product.

The weighted average raw material costs shall be converted to units of the finished product by applying the simple average of his own 1941 and 1943 case (unit) yields and by adjusting for grade according to his customary practice. (If he did not pack the product in 1943, he shall use the simple average of his 1941 and 1942 yields.)

(3) Raw material costs for processors of maraschino and glace cherries who purchase brined cherries. In figuring a maximum price under paragraph (a), a processor of maraschino or glace cherries who purchases brined cherries for use in processing those products shall subtract under subparagraph (3) his 1945 delivered cost for brined cherries as required to be figured under Supplement 13 and shall add under subparagraph (4) his 1946 weighted average delivered cost for the grade or grades of brined cherries used in the item, converted to units of the finished product by applying the simple average of his 1941 and 1943 case (unit) yields and by adjusting for grade of the finished product according to his customary practice. The 1946 weighted average delivered cost for each grade of brined cherries shall be figured on the basis of not less than the first 75% of his purchases of that grade of brined cherries.

(d) Rule for pricing items for which maximum prices were determined under section 6 (e) of Supplement 13 or for which maximum prices were authorized under section 10 (c) of that supplement or automatically authorized upon the expiration of the 30-day period specified in that provision. In general this paragraph applies to the pricing of items for which maximum prices for the 1945 pack were determined under the provisions of section 6 (e) of Supplement 13 and to the pricing of items for which maximum prices were authorized by orders issued under section 10 (c) of Supplement 13 or automatically authorized upon the expiration of the 30-day period specified in that provision. However, it does not apply to the pricing of items, for which the maximum prices were obtained in this manner that are now priced by the dollars-and-cents prices provided in paragraph (f), below.

For sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies and for sales to government procurement agencies, the processor shall figure his maximum price per dozen containers or other units, f. o. b. factory, as follows. (Section 10 (j) does not apply to items priced under this paragraph.) He shall:

(1) Start with the price determined under section 6 (c) or authorized under section 10 (c) of Supplement 13. The processor shall use as his starting point the maximum price for the item for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies (or the maximum price for sales to government procurement agencies, as the case may be) as required to be determined under section 6 (e) of Supplement 13 or as authorized under section 10 (c) of that supplement (or as subsequently changed by order).

(2) Subtract amount of 1945 adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate. Next, the processor shall subtract the amount of any adjustment for approved increase in basic wage rate which he figured under section 6 (a) (4) of Supplement 13.

(3) Next as to any fruit, fruit juice, fruit nectar, cranberry, cranberry juice, cranberry nectar, tomato catsup and chili sauce item the processor who has incurred an increase in the cost of sugar used in processing the item and met the conditions for figuring the increase as set forth in paragraph (a) (6), above, shall add the increased cost of sugar figured in the manner and subject to the conditions set forth in that paragraph.

(4) Adjust for approved increases in basic wage rate. Finally, the processor whose factory is located in the state or area set forth in Table 1 in paragraph (a) (7), above, and who meets the conditions set forth in that paragraph, shall figure the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate in the manner provided in that paragraph.

The resulting figure is the processor's maximum price for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies or for sales to government procurement agencies, as the case may be.

(e) Maximum prices in certain cases—(1) Tomato catsup packed in No. 10 cans. For sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies, the processor's maximum price per dozen containers or other unit, f. o. b. shipping point, for any grade of tomato catsup packed in No. 10 cans shall be his maximum price per dozen 14-ounce bottles of the same grade (as figured under paragraph (a)) multiplied by 6.9 for factories located in Ohio and Indiana and by 6.5 for those located in all other states, or his maximum price for the item packed in No. 10 cans (as figured under paragraph (a)), whichever is higher.

(2) Tomato puree of a specific gravity not sold during the base period. For sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies, the processor shall figure his maximum price per dozen No. 10 cans, f. o. b. shipping point, for an item of tomato puree of a specific gravity not sold during the base period by adding to or subtracting from his maximum price for the item of tomato puree packed in No. 10 cans with a specific gravity nearest to that of the item being priced, as figured under paragraph (a) or (b) of this section, a factor of $0.09 per thousandth of a point difference in specific gravity. Where the processor has maximum prices for items differing equally in specific gravity from the item being priced, he shall use the one with the lower specific gravity. The processor shall figure his maximum price for any container size of the new specific gravity other than No. 10 cans by converting the maximum price he has or would have for the new specific gravity in No. 10 cans to the can size being priced by the appropriate conversion factor set forth in paragraph (b), above.

(3) Extra standard, ungraded as to sieve size, lima beans. (At least 50% green) containing a higher percentage of green beans than during base period. For sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies, the processor shall figure his maximum price per dozen No. 2 cans, f. o. b. shipping point, for an item of extra standard, ungraded as to sieve size, lima beans (at least 50% green), containing a higher percentage of green beans than during the base period by adding to his maximum price for the item of extra standard ungraded as to sieve size, lima beans (at least 50% green), as figured in paragraph (a) or (b) of this section, 4 cents per dozen containers for each 10% of green lima beans that is added in excess of the percentage of green lima beans contained during the base period. The processor shall figure his maximum price for any container size other than No. 2 cans of extra standard, ungraded as to sieve size, lima beans containing a higher percentage of green beans than during the base period by converting the maximum price he has or would have for the new lima bean item in No. 2 cans to the can size being priced by the appropriate conversion factor set forth in paragraph (b), above.

(f) Dollars-and-cents maximum prices for certain items for which maximum prices cannot otherwise be figured under this supplement. If the processor cannot figure his maximum price, f. o. b. shipping point, under the foregoing rules of this section or under section 10 (a) for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies of any of the items listed below, his maximum price per dozen containers for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies (or for sales to government procurement agencies, as the case may be) shall be the price named in the table below, adjusted in the following manner where appropriate:

(1) If any item of the fruits listed in the table below is packed in syrup of which the density does not correspond to the grade of the fruit the processor shall first adjust the price in the manner provided in paragraph (a) (5), above.

(2) If as to any fruit and tomato catsup item the processor has incurred an increase in the cost of sugar used in processing the item and has met the conditions for figuring the increase as set forth in paragraph (a) (6), above, he shall add the increased cost of sugar figured in the manner and subject to the conditions set forth in that paragraph.

(3) If the processor has incurred an increase in basic wage rate and met the conditions set forth in paragraph (2) above, he shall figure the adjustment for approved increase in basic wage rate in the manner provided in that paragraph.

For example, in California where the price for 1.045 gravity is $5.10 for civilian sales, the canner adds $0.45 to this price to make a price of $5.55 for 1.050 specific gravity or subtracts $0.45 from this price to make $4.65 for 1.040 specific gravity. When computing a maximum price for other specific gravities for other than No. 10 cans always compute the new specific gravity first, then convert to the desired can size.

The resulting figure is the processor's maximum price for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies or for sales to government procurement agencies, as the case may be. (Maximum prices for other container sizes shall be figured by use of the appropriate conversion factor set forth in paragraph (b), above.) Section 10 (j) does not apply to items priced under this paragraph.)

(g) Items for which maximum prices cannot otherwise be figured under this section. If the processor cannot figure a maximum price f. o. b. shipping point, under the foregoing rules of this section or under section 10 (a), for sales of any item to purchasers other than government procurement agencies, he shall apply to the Wholesale-Retail and Fruit and Vegetable Branch, Food Price Division, Washington, D. C., for authorization of a maximum price in accordance with section 10 (c).

SEC. 7. Maximum prices for secondary processors and repackers. The secondary processor or repacker shall figure his maximum prices per dozen containers or other units f. o. b. shipping point, for those products which are purchased by him in bulk, barrels or other large containers and further processed or repacked in other containers, in each case by adding to or subtracting from his maximum price for the item being priced, as established under section 7 to Supplement 13, the difference between his customary supplier's maximum price under that regulation and his maximum price for the item, f. o. b. shipping point, is figured under this supplement, converted to units of the finished product on the basis of the same case (unit) yield as used by him in figuring his maximum price under section 7 to Supplement 13 and adjusted where necessary to include incoming freight.

SEC. 8. Maximum prices for sales by processors of prior years' packers of listed products which have been sold to them by government agencies. (a) The maximum price for sales by a processor, to purchasers other than government procurement agencies, of that portion of an item of any product listed in Section 5 or 6 which was packed prior to 1946 and which has been sold to the processor by a government agency, shall be that processor's maximum price f. o. b. shipping point, as established under this supplement for the same item when packed in 1946. However, difference in brand shall be ignored.

of this supplement provided for figuring such differentials.

SEC. 9. Label and labor allowances. (a) Label and labor allowances shall be made processors in the following circumstances and in the following amounts:

(1) When the processor sells any item covered by this supplement unlabeled or labeled with labels supplied by the purchasers, in containers no greater in content than a No. 10 can, the maximum price established under this supplement shall be reduced by: In metal containers $1.50 per thousand labels used and in glass containers $1.10 per thousand labels used (label allowances). The processor is, of course, free to make a greater allowance if he so desires.

(2) When any item covered by this supplement is sold unlabeled in containers no greater in content than a No. 10 can, the maximum price established under this supplement shall be reduced by one cent per case (labor allowance) in addition to the allowance provided in subparagraph (1), above. The processor is, of course, free to make a greater allowance if he so desires.

(b) In each sale to a purchaser other than a government procurement agency, where a processor makes an allowance for labels or labor under this section, he shall separately state the selling price and the amount and nature of the allowance on the invoice accompanying the sale.

SEC. 10. Provisions of Article II of Food Products Regulation No. 1 applicable to this supplement. The following provisions of Food Products Regulation No. 1 are applicable to this supplement:

(m) Units of sale and fractions of a cent (sec. 2.15 of FPR 1).

(n) Maintenance of customary discounts and allowances (sec. 2.16 of FPR 1). This section shall not apply to the label and labor allowances required to be made by processors under section 9.

ARTICLE III—MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

SEC. 11. Grades and invoices. This section applies to all sellers covered by this supplement.

(a) In each case, the seller shall furnish the purchaser, other than a government procurement agency, at or before the time of delivery, with an invoice describing the item sold and separately stating its grade and subgrade, if any. In addition he shall also show the syrup or packing medium of any fruits or berries sold.

(b) A seller other than the processor shall not be subject to any criminal penalty or civil enforcement action under the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, in connection with the resale of any item for failure of the item to conform to the grade (and subgrade, if any), designated on the invoice, provided he can establish that he relied in good faith upon the grade designation on the invoice furnished him by his supplier.

(c) Nothing in this supplement shall be construed to change any of the requirements of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act, or any regulation issued under it.

SEC. 12. Reports which processors must file. (To be announced.)

SEC. 13. Individual adjustment of processors' maximum prices—(a) For sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies—(1) When adjustments may be made. Either on his own motion or upon application in accordance with Revised Procedural Regulation No. 1,[1] the Price Administrator may adjust a processor's maximum price for any item figured under section 5 (a) or section 6 (a) of this supplement (or figured under section 6 (b) or (c) or 10 (a) on the basis of a price figured under section 6 (a) for sales to purchasers other than government procurement agencies, where it appears that:

(i) The maximum price is (a) below the mid-point of the price range applicable to the item, in the case of a product covered by section 5, or (b) below the median price at which sales of the item (regardless of brand) may be made to purchasers other than government procurement agencies by processors located in the general processing area, in the case of a product covered by section 6;

(ii) The processor would be entitled to a price increase under the standards set forth in subparagraph (2), below; and

(iii) In the judgment of the Price Administrator, an increase in the processor's maximum price would be in furtherance of the purposes of the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, the Stabilization Act of 1942, as amended, and Executive Orders Nos. 9250, 9328, 9599, 9651 and 9697.

(2) Amount of adjustment. The maximum price, as adjusted under this section, shall in no event be higher than the mid-point of the price range applicable to the item, in the case of a product covered by section 5, or the medium price at which sales of the item (regardless of brand) may be made to purchasers other than government procurement agencies by processors located in the general processing area, in the case of a product covered by section 6. Subject to this limitation and the limitation of subparagraph (1) (iii), above, the adjusted maximum price shall not exceed the following amount (less the amount of any direct subsidy payment, payable per unit of the finished product, the amount of which has previously been announced by the Commodity Credit Corporation or other agency responsible for the administration of the subsidy and which is applicable to the particular goods):

(i) Processing costs for the item if the processor's percentage of net operating profits (before income and excess profits taxes) to net sales of packed fruits, berries and vegetables, during the most recent fiscal year, was 6 percent or higher; or

(ii) Total costs for the item, if the processor's percentage of net operating profits (before income and excess profits taxes) to net sales of packed fruits, berries and vegetables, during the most recent fiscal year, was less than 6 percent but no lower than 3 percent; or

(iii) Total costs for the item plus a profit equal to 3% of the adjusted maximum price, if the processor's percentage of net operating profits (before income and excess profits taxes) to net sales of packed fruits, berries and vegetables during the most recent fiscal year, was lower than 3 percent.

(b) For sales to government procurement agencies—(1) When adjustments may be made. Either on his own motion or upon application in accordance with Revised Procedural Regulation No. 1, the Price Administrator may adjust a processor's maximum price for sales to government procurement agencies of any item figured under section 5 (a) or section 6 (a) of this supplement (or figured under section 6 (b) (d) or (e) or 10 (a) on the basis of a price figured under section 6 (a) after application of the provisions of section 10 (j), when the processor has entered into or proposes to enter into a government contract or subcontract thereunder, where it appears that:

(i) The maximum prices is (a) below the mid-point of the price range applicable to the item (after application of the provisions of section 10 (j), in the case of a product covered by section 5, or below the median prices at which sales of the item (regardless of brand) may be made to government procurement agencies by processors located in the general processing area, in the case of a product covered by section 6;

(ii) The processor would be entitled to a price increase under the standards

set forth in subparagraph (2), below; and

(iii) In the judgment of the Price Administrator, an increase in the Processor's maximum price would be in furtherance of the purposes of the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, the Stabilization Act of 1942, as amended, and Executive Orders Nos. 9250, 9336, 9599, 9651 and 9697.

(2) Amount of adjustment. The maximum price, as adjusted under this section, shall in no event be higher than the mid-point of the price range applicable to the item (after application of the provisions of section 10 (j)), in the case of a product coverd by section 5, or the median price at which sales of the item (regardless of brand) may be made to government procurement agencies by processors located in the general processing area, in the case of a product covered by section 6. Subject to this limitation and the limitation of subparagraph (1) (iii), above, the adjusted maximum price shall not exceed the following amount:

(i) Processing costs for the item if the processor's percentage of net operating profits (before income and excess profits taxes) to net sales of packed fruits, berries and vegetables, during the most recent fiscal year, was 6 percent or higher; or

(ii) Total costs for the item if the processor's percentage of net operating profits (before income and excess profits taxes) to net sales of packed fruits, berries and vegetables, during the most recent fiscal year, was less than 6 percent but no lower than 3 percent; or

(iii) Total costs for the item plus a profit equal to 3 percent of the adjusted maximum price, if the processor's percentage of net operating profits (before income and excess profits taxes) to net sales of packed fruits, berries and vegetables, during the most recent fiscal year, was lower than 3 percent.

(3) Contracts pending disposition of application for adjustment. Upon the filing of an application for adjustment under this paragraph (b) or within 30 days prior thereto, and until final disposition of the application, contracts may be entered into or proposed and bids submitted at the price or prices requested in the application, and deliveries may be made under such contracts, except that the processor may not receive and the buyer may not pay the amount by which the price exceeds the maximum price unless and until an order granting a higher price has been issued. The processor shall include in any sale, contract to sell, or offer to sell at the price requested in an application the following:

(i) His maximum price for sales of the item to government procurement agencies.

(ii) A statement that the quoted price is subject to approval of the Office of Price Administration.

(iii) A statement that an appropriate application has been filed, or will be filed within 30 days, with the Office of Price Administration.

Any government agency may appear as an interested party in the case of any such application.

(c) Time, form and place of filing application. No application for adjustment shall be filed before the processor has completed at least 75% of his current pack of the product. Applications shall be filed with the Office of Price Administration, Washington, D. C., in duplicate on Office of Price Administration Form No. 6039–2526, and shall contain the information specified in that form. Copies may be obtained from any field office of the Office of Price Administration or from the Wholesale-Retail and Fruit and Vegetable Branch, Food Price Division, Office of Price Administration, Washington, D. C. The Office of Price Administration may request the processor to file any additional cost data based upon operating experience. If the applicant does not submit all additional information that may have been requested within 30 days after the request is mailed, his application shall be considered withdrawn and the docket closed. The docket will not be reopened upon later receipt of this information, and further consideration by the Office of Price Administration will not be given unless the application is refiled.

(d) Determination of limitations on adjustment in certain cases—(1) Items covered by section 5 for which price ranges are not named. In the case of a product covered by section 5, if no price range is named for the particular item, for the purpose of making adjustments the Price Administrator may determine a corresponding price range for that item by application of the appropriate conversion factors to the price range named for the nearest container type and size.

(2) Items covered by section 6 which are not basic items. In the case of a product covered by section 6, if the particular item (regardless of brand), is not the "basic item" of that product, for the purpose of making adjustments the Price Administrator may determine the applicable median price at which sales of the item (regardless of brand) may be made to the appropriate class of purchasers by processors located in the general processing area, by customary differential from the reported maximum prices for the basic item of the same product sold by processors in the same or nearest general processing area.

"Basic item" of any product means the item (regardless of brand) for which the greatest number of maximum prices have been reported.

(e) Determination of adjustments for grower-processors and cooperative processors. For the purposes of this section, "net operating profits (before income and excess profits taxes) to net sales of packed fruits, berries and vegetables" for a grower-processor or cooperative processor means the amount by which net sales of these products exceeded total costs computed on the basis of the raw material costs, for the crop year represented by its most recent fiscal year, which he was required to use in figuring his maximum prices under Supplement 13 to Food Products Regulation No. 1.

However, if the cooperative processor by agreement with its patrons accounts to such patrons for the amount received for a particular product (or products) through a "product pool", the term means the amount by which net sales of that product (or products) exceeded total costs computed on the basis of raw material costs figured in the manner described above.

In determining adjustments under this section, "processing costs for the item" or "total costs for the item" shall be computed in each case on the basis of the raw material cost which the grower-processor or cooperative processor is required under this supplement to include in the maximum price for the item.

(f) Definitions. When used in this section:

(1) "Net sales" means total sales less return sales of finished product.

(2) "Processing costs for the item" means current:

(i) Actual cost per unit on all ingredients (other than raw agricultural commodities) and of packaging materials, for which maximum prices have been established, figured at no more than the current maximum prices applying to the class of purchasers to which the processor belongs, or, if no maximum prices have been established, figured at no more than their current market prices;

(ii) Actual cost per unit of all raw agricultural ingredients, included in the Commodity Credit Corporation's purchase and resale program, figured at no more than the Commodity Credit Corporation's resale prices for the area in which the processor's customary receiving point is located, in the case of adjustments under paragraph (a), above, and figured at no more than the Commodity Credit Corporation's purchase prices for the area in which the processor's customary receiving point is located, in the case of adjustments, under paragraph (b), above.

(iii) Actual cost per unit of all other raw agricultural ingredients, for which maximum prices have been established, figured at no more than the current maximum prices applying to the class of purchasers to which the processor belongs;

(iv) Actual cost per unit of all other raw agricultural ingredients, for which no maximum prices have been established but for which the Department of Agriculture has announced prices recommended for payment to growers or support prices, figured at no more than these prices, or, if no recommended or support prices have been announced, figured at no more than their current market prices;

(v) Direct labor costs per unit, figured at no more than lawful current rates;

(vi) Transportation costs per unit by the usual mode of transportation, from the processor's customary supplier to his factory with respect to any cost used in (i), above, and from his customary receiving point to his factory with respect to any cost used in (ii), (iii), or (iv), above, if that cost is not a delivered cost and if these charges are customarily incurred; and

(vii) Other costs of processing per unit, such as indirect labor (figured at no more than lawful current rates), depreciation, factory rental, insurance, machinery repairs, and other cost factors generally pertaining to processing operations but not including general administrative and selling expenses.

(3) "Total costs for the item" means processing costs plus current general administrative and selling expenses per unit.

(4) "Median price" means the middle price of a series of prices arranged in order of size, or, if the series consists of an even number of prices, the simple arithmetic average of the two middle prices.

(5) "Government contract" means any contract with the United States or any agency thereof or with the Government or any agency thereof of any country whose defense the President deems vital to the defense of the United States under the terms of the act of March 11, 1941, entitled "An Act To Promote the Defense of the United States."

(6) "Subcontract" means any purchase order or agreement to make or furnish any commodity needed for the performance of another Government contract or subcontract thereunder.

(g) Effect of prior adjustments. In determining adjustments under this section, changes in prices resulting from the granting of prior adjustments to other processors under this section shall, so far as practicable, be disregarded.

(h) Relationship with Revised Supplementary Order No. 9. No application for adjustment filed after June 24, 1946 under Revised Supplementary Order No. 9[1] with respect to maximum prices of processors for sales to government procurement agencies of commodities covered by this supplement will be granted.

SEC. 14. Provisions of Article III of Food Products Regulation No. 1 applicable to this supplement. The following provisions of Food Products Regulation No. 1 are applicable to this supplement:

(a) Restrictions on sales to primary distributors (sec. 3.1 of FPR 1).

(b) Storage (sec. 3.3 of FPR 1).

(c) Export sales (sec. 3.4 of FPR 1).

(d) Notification of new maximum price (sec. 3.5 of FPR 1). However, for the purpose of this section only, different subgrades of the same grade shall constitute separate items. The establishment for the first time of maximum prices or a pricing method for an item in this supplement does not require notification.

(e) Records which must be kept (sec. 3.6 of FPR 1).

(f) Sales slips and receipts (sec. 3.8 of FPR 1).

ARTICLE IV—PRICING APPENDICES

SEC. 15. Appendices for packed vegetables priced under Pricing Method No. 1.

APPENDIX A—ASPARAGUS

Explanation of how maximum prices for packed asparagus are figured—(a) Pricing method where only substandard grade was sold during base period. If the processor sold only substandard grade of the product during the base period he shall establish his maximum prices under section 5 (b).

(b) Selection of base period item. In figuring a maximum price for an item under the provisions of subparagraph (3) or (4) of section 5 (a), the processor shall select a base period item nearest in container size to item being priced and nearest in such other respects as may be specified in the applicable appendix. After the nearest container size of packed asparagus sold in the base period has been determined, the processor from that classification shall:

1. Select items of the same variety if available. If there are no such items, select any other variety.

2. From the selected classification: Select items of the same style and size if available. If there are no such items select as follows:

(i) When pricing whole spears, if any smaller size of whole spears is available, select items of the nearest such smaller size; if no smaller size is available, select items of the nearest larger size of whole spears; if none of these items is available, select items of any blend of spears containing the size of whole spears being priced, if none of these items is available, select any other blends of spears; if none of these items is available, select, in the order named, cut spears, soup cuts, center cuts and salad points.

(ii) When pricing blended spears, select items of any blend containing one of the sizes of spears in the blend being priced, if no such item is available, select items of the blend containing the nearest size of spears smaller than the smallest in the blend being priced; if no such blend is available, select items of the blend containing the nearest size of spears larger than the largest in the blend being priced; if no such item is available, select items of the smallest size of whole spears available, if none of these items is available, select, in the order named, cut spears, soup cuts, center cuts, and salad points.

(iii) When pricing cut spears, select items of the smallest size of whole spears available; if no items of whole spears is available, select items of the blend of smallest spears available; if none of these items is available, select, in order named, soup cuts, center cuts, and salad points.

(iv) When pricing center cuts, select items of soup cuts; if no items of soup cuts is available, select items of cut spears; if none of these items is available, select, in order named, items of the smallest size of whole spears available, blend of smallest spears available.

(v) When pricing soup cuts, select items of cuts spears; if no items of cut spears is available, select items of center cuts; if none of these items is available, select, in order named, items of smallest size of whole spears available, blend of smallest spears available.

(vi) When pricing salad points, select items of the largest size of whole spears available; if no items of whole spears is available, select items of the blend of largest spears available; if none of these items is available, select, in order named, cut spears, soup cuts, and center cuts.

3. From the selected classification, select an item of the same grade if available. If there is no item of the same grade select any other grade except substandard. In no case shall substandard grade be used as the base period item.

(c) Conversions from one variety to another variety and from one style of pack or size to another style of pack or size of the same variety. In each case of conversion from one variety to another variety or from one style of pack or size to another style of pack or size of the same variety, the processor shall figure the conversion by taking the difference between the specific dollars-and-cents maximum prices named in Table 4 for the two items and either adding it to or subtracting it from the constructed base price, as the situation requires. Whether the differential to be added or subtracted depends on whether the dollars-and-cents price named in Table 4 for the item being priced is higher or lower than that named for the item from which the conversion is being made. For example, the X Canning Company, whose factory is located in Area 1, during the base period sold fancy all green whole spears of the following sizes: colossal, large and medium, packed in No. 2 cans, but made no sales of blended spears. It is now pricing a blend of fancy, mammoth, large and medium spears packed in No. 2 cans. To figure the conversion for style of pack the company takes the difference between the dollars-and-cents price named in Part 1 of Table 4 for fancy, medium spears in No. 2 cans (the properly selected base period item) and the dollars-and-cents price named in that table for fancy, mammoth, large and medium blended spears. ($3.60 minus $3.41 equals $0.19.) Since the company is pricing an item with a higher dollars-and-cents price than that for the item from which the conversion is made, the $0.19 differential is added to its constructed base price in making the conversion for style of pack.

Adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate. When the processor meets the conditions set forth in section 5, he shall figure the adjustment for approval increases in basic wage rates incurred since January 1, 1944. This adjustment is figured by reference to Table 7 which sets forth the amounts that each one cent increase in basic wage rate for unskilled female labor represents as a cost increase for each style of pack of asparagus packed in No. 2 or No. 10 cans. The amount of the adjustment for each one cent increase for other container sizes is figured by multiplying the appropriate figure in Table 7 by the appropriate conversion factor in Table 5. To figure the amount of the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate the processor shall:

(1) Determine the basic wage rate in effect on January 1, 1944. First, the processor shall figure the amount of basic wage rate for unskilled female labor in effect on January 1, 1944 by taking the hourly rate (or midpoint of range of rates) in effect for that class of labor during the pay period of the 1943 packing season for which he had the largest number of employees on his payroll and adding to this figure the amount of any increase in basic wage rates for unskilled female labor which he put into effect on or before January 1, 1944. If the processor during that period had no unskilled female employees who were paid on a straight time hourly basis, he shall substitute for unskilled female labor that classification of labor for which he had the largest number of employees paid on an hourly basis during the period. The basic wage rate deemed to have been in effect on January 1, 1944, shall be the figure resulting from the above calculation, or 40 cents per hour, whichever is higher.

If the processor was not in business during the 1943 packing season but started operations after January 1, 1944 (and is not a transferee within the meaning of section 14 (g) of a processor who was in business at that time), he shall use the figure in the table in section 5 (b) (1) (v) for the state in which his factory is located as his starting point in figuring the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate under this paragraph.

(2) Next, the processor shall subtract the resulting figure from the hourly basic wage rate (or midpoint of range of rates) for unskilled female labor, paid on a straight time basis, in effect at the time he figures his maximum price under this supplement, or if he has no unskilled female employees paid on this basis he shall use the hourly basic wage rate (or mid-point of range of rates) for that class of employees for which he has the largest number of employees paid on a straight time hourly basis on his payroll at the time he figures his maximum price under this supplement.

(3) Finally, the processor shall multiply the resulting figure by the amount set forth in Table 7 (or the amount figured by reference to Table 5 for other container sizes) for his area for the variety, style and container size of asparagus being priced. The resulting figure is the amount which is added to his price in figuring the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate under the applicable provision of section 5.

Example. The X Canning Company, whose factory is located in Washington, during the pay period of the 1943 packing season for which it had the largest number of employees on its payroll was paying unskilled female employees $0.60 per hour. Prior to January 1, 1944 X put into effect a $0.05 per hour increase in basic wage rates for unskilled female labor. The company is now packing asparagus and has in effect an approved basic wage rate for unskilled female labor of $0.70 per hour. The company is packing No. 2 cans of fancy mammoth asparagus spears. To figure the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate, X determines that the basic wage rate in effect for unskilled female labor on January 1, 1944 was $0.65 per hour. It then subtracts this figure from the current approved basic wage rate in effect at the time of figuring its price under this supplement. ($0.70 minus $0.65 equals $0.05). The company has incurred an increase of $0.05 per hour, or 5 unit increases of one cent each. It accordingly multiplies the figure in Table 7 for mammoth asparagus spears in No. 2 cans in Area 2 by 5 the number of unit increases incurred ($0.0079 times 5 equals $0.0395). The resulting figure $0.0395 is the amount which is added to its price in figuring the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate under the applicable provision of section 5.

APPENDIX B—PEAS (EXCEPT BLACKEYE, CROWDER, CREAM AND FIELD)

Explanation of how maximum prices for packed peas are figured—(a) Pricing method where only substandard grade was sold during base period. If the processor sold only substandard grade of the product during the base period he shall establish his maximum price under section 5 (b).

(b) Selection of base period item. In figuring a maximum price under the provisions of subparagraph (3) or (4) of section 5 (a) the processor shall select a base period item nearest in container size to item being priced and nearest in such other respects as may be specified in the applicable appendix. After the nearest container size of packed peas sold in the base period has been determined, the processor from that classification shall:

(1) Select items of the same variety, if available. If there are no such items, select as follows: to price Alaska peas, select items of sweet peas before selecting large seeded sweets; to price sweet peas, select items of Alaska peas before selecting large seeded sweets; to price large seeded sweet peas, select items of sweet peas before selecting Alaska peas.

(2) From the selected classification:

(i) When pricing any single sieve size or blend of two sieve sizes select items of the same sieve size, if available. (For blends of two sieve sizes, consider only larger sieve size in blend.) If there are no such items, select as follows: if any larger sieve sizes are available, select items of the nearest such larger sieve size; if no larger sieve sizes are available, select items of the nearest smaller sieve size; if none of these items is available, select items ungraded as to sieve size, otherwise select items of any blend of more than two sieve sizes.

(ii) When pricing blends of more than two sieve sizes, select items of same blend if available. If there are no such items, select as follows: if any other blends of more than two sieve sizes are available, select items of any blend of more than two sieve sizes; if no such blends are available, select items of the largest sieve size in the blend; if no such items are available, select items of of the nearest sieve size to the largest sieve size declared in the blend; if no single sieve size is available, select items of ungraded as to sieve size.

(iii) When pricing peas ungraded as to sieve size, select items ungraded as to sieve size, if available. If there are no such items, select items of the largest sieve size available. If no single sieve size is available, select items of any blend of more than two sieve sizes.

(3) From the selected classification, select an item of the same grade, if available. If there is no such item, select as follows: to price fancy grade, select extra standard before standard; to price extra standard grade, select standard before fancy; to price standard grade, select extra standard before fancy; to price substandard grade, select standard before extra standard and extra standard before fancy. In no case shall substandard grade be used as the base period item.

(c) Conversions from one variety to another variety and from or to a particular sieve size to or from a blend of more than two sieve sizes of the same variety. In each case of conversion from one variety, grade and sieve size of peas to the same grade and sieve size of another variety, and in each case of conversion from or to a particular sieve size (including ungraded) to or from a blend of more than two sieve sizes of the same variety, the processor shall figure the conversion by taking the difference between the specified dollars-and-cents maximum prices named in Table 4 for the two items and either adding it to or subtracting it from the constructed base price as the situation requires. For this purpose large seeded sweets shall be considered a separate variety. Whether the differential is to be added or subtracted depends on whether the dollars-and-cents price named in Table 4 for the item being priced is higher or lower than that named for the item from or to which the conversion is being made. Where more than one conversion is required each must be figured separately and in the order specified in section 5 (a). Thus, if conversions for both variety and sieve size are involved, each must be figured separately. For example, X Canning Company whose factory is located in Area 1 sold Fancy Alaska peas, No. 3 sieve size, in No. 2 cans during the base period, but made no sales of sweet peas during that period. It is now pricing Fancy sweet peas, No. 3 sieve size, in No. 2 cans. To figure the conversion for variety the company takes the difference between the dollars-and-cents price named for the Alaska pea item in Part 1 of Table 4 and the dollars-and-cents price named in Part 2 of Table 4 for the sweet pea item ($1.68 minus $1.61 equals $0.07). Since the company is pricing an item with a higher dollars-and-cents price than that named for the item from which conversion is being made the $0.07 differential is added to its constructed base price of $1.58 in making the conversion for variety ($1.58 plus $0.07 equals $1.65). However, if X Canning Company were pricing Fancy sweet peas, No. 4 sieve size, in No. 2 cans, after figuring the conversion for variety as shown above it would figure the conversion for sieve size by multiplying the price for Fancy No. 3 sieve size sweet peas in No. 2 cans by the sieve size conversion factor named in Part 2 of Table 7 for converting from 3 sieve size to 4 sieve size ($1.65 times .95 equals $1.5675).

(d) Figuring base period prices for two or more sieve sizes of peas that fall in same price range. The processor shall figure a separate weighted average price for each item sold in the base period except that where the items differ in sieve size only and only one price range is provided, a single weighted average base period price shall be figured for all such items. For example, the X Canning Company, whose factory is located in Area 1, during the base period sold Fancy No. 2 cans of No. 5 sieve size sweet peas, and Fancy No. 6 sieve size sweet peas. Since both these sieves sizes of sweet peas are included in a single price range the X Canning Company figures a single weighted average price for both items.

(e) Meaning of "ungraded" as used in this appendix and certain pricing provisions where sieve size is a factor. The word "ungraded," when used in connection with peas, refers to the sieve size and means that the peas have been packed pod-run (that is without sieve size separation other than that which results from grading for quality by specific gravity) except that in the case of large seeded sweet peas, sieve sizes, 1, 2, and 6 and larger, or any of them, may have been removed.

In the case of large seeded sweet peas those sieve sizes which have been removed shall take the applicable prices for sweet peas other than large seeded sweets. (For example, if No. 6 sieve size or larger peas have been removed and packed separately, they shall take the applicable price for 5 and up sieve sizes of sweets, other than large seeded sweets.)

(f) Adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate. When the processor meets the conditions set forth in section 5, he shall figure the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rates incurred since January 1, 1944. This adjustment is figured by reference to Table 10 which sets forth the amounts that each one cent increase in basic wage rate for unskilled female labor represents as a cost increase for peas packed in No. 2 or No. 10 cans. The amount of the adjustment for each one cent increase for other container sizes is figured by multiplying the appropriate figure in Table 10 by the appropriate conversion factor in Table 5. To figure the amount of the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate the processor shall:

(1) Determine the basic wage rate in effect on January 1, 1944. First, the processor shall figure the amount of the basic wage rate for unskilled female labor in effect on January 1, 1944 by taking the hourly rate (or midpoint of range of rates) in effect for that class of labor during the pay period of the 1943 packing season for which he had the largest number of employees on his payroll and adding to this figure the amount of any increase in basic wage rates for unskilled female labor which he put into effect on or before January 1, 1944. If the processor during that period had no unskilled female employees who were paid on a straight time hourly basis, he shall substitute for unskilled female labor that classification of labor for which he had the largest number of employees paid on an hourly basis during the period. The basic wage rate deemed to have been in effect on January 1, 1944, shall be the figure resulting from the above calculation, or 40 cents per hour, whichever is higher.

If the processor was not in business during the 1943 packing season but started operations after January 1, 1944 (and is not a transferee within the meaning of section 14 (g) of a processor who was in business at that time), he shall use the figure in the table in section 5 (b) (1) (v) for the state in which his factory is located as his starting point in figuring the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate under this paragraph.

(2) Next, the processor shall subtract the resulting figure from the hourly basic wage rate (or mid-point of range of rates) for unskilled female labor, paid on a straight time basis in effect at the time he figures his maximum price under this supplement, or if he has no unskilled female employees paid on this basis he shall use the hourly basic wage rate (or mid-point of range of rates) for that class of employees for which he has the largest number of employees paid on a straight time hourly basis on his payroll at the time he figures his maximum price under this supplement.

(3) Finally, the processor shall multiply the resulting figure by the amount set forth in Table 10 (or the amount figured by reference to Table 5 for other container types and sizes) for his area for the container type and size of peas being priced. The resulting figure is the amount which is added to his price in figuring the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate under the applicable provision of section 5.

Example. The Z Canning Company, whose factory is located in Wisconsin, during the pay period of the 1943 packing season for which it had the largest number of employees on its payroll was paying unskilled female employees $0.45 per hour. Prior to January 1, 1944 Z put into effect a $0.05 per hour increase in basic wage rates for unskilled female labor. The company is now packing peas and has in effect an approved basic wage rate for unskilled female labor of $0.55 per hour. The company is pricing No. 2 cans of fancy No. 3 and 4 sieve sweet peas. To figure the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate, Z determines that the basic wage rate in effect for unskilled female labor on January 1, 1944 was $0.50 per hour. It then subtracts this figure from the current approved basic wage rate in effect at the time of figuring its price under this supplement. ($0.55 minus $0.50 equals $0.05.) The company has incurred an increase of $0.05 per hour, of 5 unit increases or one cent each. It accordingly multiplies the figure in Table 10 for No. 2 cans of peas in Area 3 by 5 the number of unit increases incurred ($.0034 times 5 equals $0.0170). The resulting figure $0.0170 is the amount which is added to its price in figuring the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate under the applicable provision of section 5.

(g) Special pricing provisions applicable to Blair Process peas. The maximum price for Blair Process peas of a variety, grade and sieze size (including blends and ungraded) packed in No. 303 cans shall be thirteen cents per dozen, and in No. 2 cans shall be fifteen cents per dozen, more than the maximum price for No. 2 cans of the same variety, grade and sieze size (including blends and ungraded) of peas which have not been subjected to the Blair Process.

"Blair Process peas" means packed peas which are subjected to the processing operation known as the "Blair Process," under license from the owner of the U. S. patent thereon, in which substantially the natural color of the peas is retained.

However, the maximum price for a blend of three or more sieve sizes of sweet peas containing number six sieve size peas or larger, for any grade, shall be: In No. 2 cans, eleven cents per dozen, and in No. 10 cans, fifty-six cents per dozen, lower than the maximum price for blends of more than two sieve sizes of sweet peas not containing number six sieve size peas or larger of the same grade packed in the same container type and size.

"Blend of three or more sieve sizes" of a variety and grade of peas means a combination of three or more sieve sizes, which contains not more than 5 per cent by volume of peas which are larger than the largest sieve size declared in the blend, and not more than 1 per cent by volume of peas which are two or more sieve sizes larger than the largest sieve size declared in blend. No portion of the sieve sizes declared in the blend except the largest, shall have been removed from the pod-run thereof, except as a result of grading for quality by specific gravity.

In blends of three or more sieve sizes of sweet peas not containing number six sieve size peas or larger, and in all combinations of Alaska peas containing more than the specified percentage by volume of sieve sizes larger than the largest sieve size declared in the blend, the maximum price shall be the same as the maximum price for the sieve size next larger than the largest sieve size declared in the blend of the same variety and grade, packed in the same container type and size.

2. Blends of two sieve sizes. The maximum price for a blend of two sieve sizes of a variety and grade of peas shall be the same as the maximum price for the larger sieve size in the blend of the same variety and grade, packed in the same container type and size. No portion of the sieve size declared in the blend shall have been removed from the pod-run thereof except as a result of grading for quality by specific gravity.

"Blend of two sieve sizes" of a variety and grade of peas means a combination of two sieve sizes, which contains not more than 10 per cent by volume of peas which are larger than the larger sieve size declared in the blend, and not more than 2 per cent by volume of peas which are two or more sieve sizes larger than the larger sieve size declared in the blend.

If the combination contains more than the specified percentage by volume of sieve sizes larger than the larger sieve size declared in the blend, the maximum price shall be the same as the maximum price for the sieve size next larger than the largest sieve size declared in the blend of the same variety and grade, packed in the same container type and size.

APPENDIX C—TOMATOES (EXCEPT ITALIAN PEAR SHAPED TOMATOES)

Explanation of how maximum prices are figured—(a) Pricing method where only substandard grade was sold during base period. If the processor sold only substandard grade of packed tomatoes during the base period he shall establish his maximum price under section 5 (b).

(b) Selection of a base period item. In figuring a maximum price for an item under the provisions of subparagraph (3) or (4) of section 5 (a) the processor shall select a base period item nearest in container size to item being priced and nearest in such other respects as may be specified in the applicable appendix. After the nearest container size of packed tomatoes sold in the base period has been determined, the processor from that classification shall:

Select an item of the same grade, if available. If there is no such item, select as follows: to price fancy grade, select extra standard before standard; to price extra standard grade, select standard before fancy, to price standard grade select extra standard before fancy; to price substandard grade, select standard before extra standard and extra standard before fancy. In no case shall substandard grade be used as a base period item.

(c) Adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate. When the processor meets the conditions set forth in section 5, he shall figure the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rates incurred since January 1, 1944. This adjustment is figured by reference to table 9 which sets forth the amounts that each one cent increase in basic wage rate for unskilled female labor represents as a cost increase for each grade of tomatoes packed in No. 2, No. 2½ and No. 10 cans. The amount of the adjustment for each one cent increase for other container sizes is figured by multiplying the appropriate figure in table 9 by the appropriate conversion factor in table 5, except for No. 2½ glass containers for which the amount of the adjustment is the same as for No. 2½ cans. To figure the amount of the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate the processor shall:

(1) Determine the basic wage rate in effect on January 1, 1944. First, the processor shall figure the amount of the basic wage rate for unskilled female labor in effect on January 1, 1944 by taking the hourly rate (or mid-point of range of rates) in effect for that class of labor during the pay period of 1943 packing season for which he had the largest number of employees on his payroll and adding to this figure the amount of any increase in basic wage rates for unskilled female labor which he put into effect on or before January 1, 1944. If the processor during that period had no unskilled female employees who were paid on a straight time hourly basis, he shall substitute for unskilled female labor that classification of labor for which he had the largest number of employees paid on an hourly basis during the period. The basic wage rate deemed to have been in effect on January 1, 1944, shall be the figure resulting from the above calculation, or 40 cents per hour, whichever is higher.

If the processor was not in business during the 1943 packing season but started operations after January 1, 1944 (and is not a transferee within the meaning of section 14 (g) of a processor who was in business at that time), he shall use the figure in the table in section 5 (b) (1) (v) for the state in which his factory is located as his starting point in figuring the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate under this paragraph.

(2) Next, the processor shall subtract the resulting figure from the hourly basic wage rate (or mid-point of range of rates) for unskilled female labor, paid on a straight time basis, in effect at the time he figures his maximum price under this supplement, or if he has no unskilled female employees paid on this basis he shall use the hourly basic wage rate (or mid-point of range of rates) for that class of employees for which he has the largest number of employees paid on a straight time hourly basis on his payroll at the time he figures his maximum price under this supplement.

(3) Finally, the processor shall multiply the resulting figure by the amount set forth in Table 9 (or the amount figured by reference to Table 5 for other container sizes) for his area for the grade and container type and size of tomatoes being priced. The resulting figure is the amount which is added to his price in figuring the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate under the applicable provision of section 5.

Example. The A Canning Company, whose factory is located in Maryland, during the pay period of the 1943 packing season for which it had the largest number of employees on its payroll was paying unskilled female employees $0.40 per hour. Prior to January 1, 1944, A put into effect a $0.07 per hour increase in basic wage rate for unskilled female labor. The company is now packing tomatoes and has in effect an approved basic wage rate for unskilled female labor of $0.55 per hour. The company is pricing No. 2 cans of fancy tomatoes. To figure the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate, A determines that the basic wage rate in effect for unskilled female labor on January 1, 1944 was $0.47 per hour. It then subtracts this figure from the current approved basic wage rate in effect at the time of figuring its price under this supplement ($0.55 minus $0.47 equals $0.08). The company has incurred an increase of $0.08 per hour, or 8 unit increases of one cent each. It accordingly multiplies the figure in Table 9 for No. 2 cans of fancy tomatoes in Area 2 by the number of unit increases incurred ($0.0057 times 8 equals $0.0456). The resulting figure, $0.0456 is the amount which is added to A's price in figuring the adjustment for approved increase in basic wage rate under the applicable provision of section 5.

APPENDIX D—TOMATO JUICE

Explanation of how maximum prices are figured—(a) Pricing method where only substandard grade was sold during base period. If the processor sold only substandard grade of packed tomato juice during the base period he shall establish his maximum price under section 5 (b).

(b) Selection of a base period item. In figuring a maximum price for an item under the provisions of subparagraph (3) or (4) of section 5 (a) the processor shall select a base period item nearest in container size to item being priced and nearest in such other respects as may be specified in the applicable appendix. After the nearest container size of packed tomato juice sold in the base period has been determined, the processor from that classification shall select an item of the same grade, if available. If there is no such item, select any other grade available except that in no case shall substandard grade be used as the base period item.

(c) Adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate. When the processor meets the conditions set forth in section 5, he shall figure the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rates incurred since January 1, 1944. This adjustment is figured by reference to Table 9 which sets forth the amounts that each one cent increase in basic wage rate for unskilled female labor represents as a cost increase for each grade of tomato juice packed in No. 2, No. 3 cylinders and No. 10 cans. The amount of the adjustment for each one cent increase for other container sizes is figured by multiplying the appropriate figure in Table 9 by the appropriate conversion factor in Table 5 for metal containers and by the appropriate conversion factor in Table 6 for glass containers. To figure the amount of the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate the processor shall:

(1) Determine the basic wage rate in effect on January 1, 1944. First, the processor shall figure the amount of the basic wage rate for unskilled female labor in effect on January 1, 1944 by taking the hourly rate (or mid-point of range of rates) in effect for that class of labor during the pay period of the 1943 packing season for which he had the largest number of employees on his payroll and adding to this figure the amount of any increase in basic wage rates for unskilled female labor which he put into effect on or before January 1, 1944. If the processor during that period had no unskilled female employees who were paid on a straight time hourly basis, he shall substitute for unskilled female labor that classification of labor for which he had the largest number of employees paid on an hourly basis during the period. The basic wage rate deemed to have been in effect on January 1, 1944, shall be the figure resulting from the above calculation, or 40 cents per hour, whichever is higher.

If the processor was not in business during the 1943 packing season but started operations after January 1, 1944 (and is not a transferee within the meaning of section 14 (g) of a processor who was in business at that time), he shall use the figure in the table in section 5 (b) (1) (v) for the state in which his factory is located as his starting point in figuring the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate under this paragraph.

(2) Next, the processor shall subtract the resulting figure from the hourly basic wage rate (or mid-point of range of rates) for unskilled female labor, paid on a straight time basis, in effect at the time he figures his maximum price under this supplement, or if he has no unskilled female employees paid on this basis he shall use the hourly basic wage rate (or mid-point of range of rates) for that class of employees for which he has the largest number of employees paid on a straight time hourly basis on his payroll at the time he figures his maximum price under this supplement.

(3) Finally, the processor shall multiply the resulting figure by the amount set forth in Table 9 (or the amount figured by reference to Table 5 or Table 6 for other container sizes) for his area for the grade and container type and size of tomato juice being priced. The resulting figure is the amount which is added to his price in figuring the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate under the applicable provisions of section 5.

Example. The X Canning Company, whose factory is located in Indiana, during the pay period of the 1943 packing season for which it had the largest number of employees on its payroll was paying unskilled female employees $0.40 per hour. Prior to January 1, 1944 X put into effect a $0.05 per hour increase in basic wage rates for unskilled female labor. The company is now packing tomato juice and has in effect an approved basic wage rate for unskilled female labor of $0.52 per hour. The company is pricing No. 2 cans of fancy tomato juice. To figure the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate, X determines that the basic wage rate in effect for unskilled female labor on January 1, 1944 was $0.45 per hour. It then subtracts this figure from the current approved basic wage rate in effect at the time of figuring its price under this supplement ($0.52 minus $0.45 equals $0.07). The company has incurred an increase of $0.07 per hour, or 7 unit increases of one cent each. It accordingly multiplies the figure in Table 9 for fancy tomato juice in No. 2 cans in Area 3 by 7 the number of unit increases incurred ($0.0023 times 7 equals $0.0161). The resulting figure $0.0161 is the amount which is added to its price in figuring the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate under the applicable provision of section 5.

APPENDIX E—CORN

Explanation of how maximum prices for packed corn are figured—(a) What this appendix covers. This appendix covers the pricing of packed corn. However, the tables in the appendix apply only to the pricing of sweet corn and if any field corn or mixtures of field and sweet corn are packed by the processor he must apply for an individual authorization of a maximum price in accordance with section 10 (c). If the processor sold only substandard grade of the packed sweet corn during the base period he shall establish his maximum prices under section 5 (b).

(b) Selection of base period item. In figuring a maximum price under the provisions of subparagraph (3) or (4) of section 5 (a) the processor shall select a base period item nearest in container size to item being priced and nearest in such other respects as may be specified in the applicable appendix. After the nearest container size of packed corn sold in the base period has been determined, the processor from that classification shall:

1. Select items of the same variety, if available. If there are no such items, select as follows: to price golden, select items of white other than Evergreen and narrow grain before selecting Evergreen and narrow grain; to price white other than Evergreen and narrow grain, select items of golden before selecting Evergreen and narrow grain; to price Evergreen and narrow grain, select items of white other than Evergreen and narrow grain before selecting golden.

2. From the selected classification, select items of the same style of pack, if available. If there is no such item, select any other style of pack.

3. From the selected classification, select an item of the same grade if available. If there is no such item, select as follows: to price fancy grade, select extra standard before standard; to price extra standard grade, select standard before fancy; to price standard grade, select extra standard before fancy; to price substandard select standard before extra standard, and extra standard before fancy. In no case shall substandard grade be used as a base period item.

(c) Conversion from one variety and style of pack to another variety and style of pack and conversion from one style of pack to another style of pack of the same variety. In each case of conversion from one variety and style of pack to another variety and style of pack, or from one style of pack to another style of pack of the same variety, the processor shall figure the conversion by taking the difference between the specific dollars-and-cents maximum prices named in Table 4 for the two items and adding to or subtracting it from the constructed base price, as the situation requires. Whether the differential is to be added or subtracted depends on whether the dollars-and-cents price named in Table 4 for the item being priced is higher or lower than that for the item from which the conversion is being made.

Example: the A Canning Company whose factory is located in Area 4 sold extra standard Evergreen cream style corn in No. 2 cans during the base period. It is now pricing extra standard Golden Whole Grain Corn in No. 2 cans. To figure the conversion for variety and style of pack the company takes the difference between the dollars-and-cents price named for the Evergreen cream style corn item in Table 4 and the dollars-and-cents price named for the Golden Whole Grain Corn item ($1.29 minus $1.11 equals $0.18). Since the whole grain corn dollars-and-cents prices are higher than those for cream style corn the $0.18 differential is added to its constructed base price in making the conversion for variety and style of pack.

(d) Figuring maximum prices for whole grain corn. Although but one price range is provided in each area for each can size of all varieties of whole grain corn, the processor shall figure separate maximum prices for each variety of whole grain corn.

(e) Adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate. When the processor meets the conditions set forth in section 5, he shall figure the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rates incurred since January 1, 1944. This adjustment is figured by reference to Part 1 or Part 2 of Table 9 which set forth the amounts that each one cent increase in basic wage rate for unskilled female labor represents as a cost increase for cream style corn packed in No. 2 or No. 10 cans and for whole kernel corn packed in No. 2, No. 10 or No. 2 vacuum cans. The amount of the adjustment for each one cent increase for other container sizes is figured by multiplying the appropriate figure in Part 1 or Part 2 of Table 9 by the appropriate conversion factor in Table 5. To figure the amount of the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate the processor shall:

(1) Determine the basic wage rate in effect on January 1, 1944. First, the processor shall figure the amount of the basic wage rate for unskilled female labor in effect on January 1, 1944, by taking the hourly rate (or mid-point of range of rates) in effect for that class of labor during the pay period of the 1943 packing season for which he had the largest number of employees on his pay roll and adding to this figure the amount of any increase in basic wage rates for unskilled female labor which he put into effect on or before January 1, 1944. If the processor during that period had no unskilled female employees who were paid on a straight time hourly basis, he shall substitute for unskilled female labor that classification of labor for which he had the largest number of employees paid on an hourly basis during the period. The basic wage rate deemed to have been in effect on January 1, 1944, shall be the figure resulting from the above calculation, or 40 cents per hour, whichever is higher.

If the processor was not in business during the 1943 packing season but started operations after January 1, 1944 (and is not a transferee within the meaning of section 14 (g) of a processor who was in business at that time), he shall use the figure in the table in section 5 (b) (1) (v) for the state in which his factory is located as his starting point in figuring the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate under this paragraph.

(2) Next, the processor shall subtract the resulting figure from the hourly basic wage rate (or mid-point of range of rates) for unskilled female labor, paid on a straight time basis, in effect at the time he figures his maximum price under this supplement, or if he has no unskilled female employee paid on this basis he shall use the hourly basic wage rate (or mid-point of range of rates) for that class of employees for which he has the largest number of employees paid on a straight time hourly basis on his payroll at the time he figures his maximum price under this supplement.

(3) Finally, the processor shall multiply the resulting figure by the amount set forth in Part 1 or Part 2 of Table 9 (or the amount figured by reference to Table 5 for other container types and sizes) for his area for the variety, style and container type and size of corn being priced. The resulting figure is the amount which is added to his price in figuring the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate under the applicable provision of section 5.

Example. The Y Canning Company, whose factory is located in Illinois, during the pay period of the 1943 packing season for which it had the largest number of employees on its payroll was paying unskilled female employees $0.50 per hour. Prior to January 1, 1944, Y put into effect a $0.05 per hour increase in basic wage rates for unskilled female labor. The company is now packing corn and has in effect an approved basic wage rate for unskilled female labor of $0.60 per hour. The company is pricing No. 2 cans of fancy cream style corn. To figure the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate, Y determines that the basic wage rate in effect for unskilled female labor on January 1, 1944 was $0.55 per hour. It then subtracts this figure from the current approved basic wage rate in effect at the time of figuring its price under this supplement ($0.60 minus $0.55 equals $0.05). The company has incurred an increase of $0.05 per hour on 5 unit increases of one cent each. It accordingly multiplies the figure in Part 2 of Table 9 for fancy cream style corn in No. 2 cans in Area 4 by 5 the number of unit increases incurred ($0.0045 times 5 equals $0.0225). The resulting figure $0.0225 is the amount which is added to its price in figuring the adjustment for approved increases in basic wage rate under the applicable provision of section 5.

[MPR 157,[1] Amdt. 21]

SALES AND FABRICATION OF TEXTILES, APPAREL AND RELATED ARTICLES FOR MILITARY PURPOSES

A statement of the considerations involved in the issuance of this amendment, issued simultaneously herewith, has been filed with the Division of the Federal Register.

Maximum Price Regulation 157 is amended in the following respect:

Appendix A, Modification of Maximum Prices for Certain Commodities and Transactions, is revoked and a new Appendix A, Adjustment of Maximum Prices for Certain Knitted Articles, is substituted therefor, to read as follows:

APPENDIX A—ADJUSTMENT OF MAXIMUM PRICES FOR CERTAIN KNITTED ARTICLES

(a) What this appendix does. This appendix provides a method for adjustment of manufacturers' ceiling prices established under § 1378.3 (a) of Maximum Price Regulation 157 for certain knitted commodities.

(b) What commodities are covered. This appendix applies only to the following knitted commodities:

(1) Men's knitted underwear made exclusively of either cotton or wool or made exclusively of a combination of cotton and wool.

(2) Men's knitted hosiery made exclusively of either cotton or wool or more exclusively of a combination of cotton and wool.

(c) What sales are covered. This appendix applies only to a manufacturer's sale to a war procurement agency of a commodity described in (b) above which is the same as a commodity which the manufacturer delivered in the period between April 1, 1941 and March 31, 1942, both inclusive.

(d) Adjustment of maximum prices. In the case of any sale described in (c) above, the seller determines his adjusted ceiling price as follows:

Step 1. Find the highest net price established for the same commodity under Section 1378.3 (a).

Step 2. Determine the type of yarn ("type of yarn" is defined in paragraph (g) below) and the weight in pounds of the cotton content of the yarn consumed in the commodity being priced ("weight in pounds of the cotton content of the yarn consumed" is defined in paragraph (g) below).

Step 3. Multiply the weight in pounds of the cotton content of the yarn used, as found in Step 2, by the cost increase (in dollars and cents) listed in column 2 of Appendix B of Revised Supplementary Order 154[2] for the appropriate type of yarn.

Step 4. Determine the amount (in dollars and cents) by which the cost of direct labor (at legal wage rates as defined in paragraph (g) below) on the commodity has increased since January 1, 1942.[3] "Direct labor" includes only operations performed directly on the commodity and necessary to make it into a finished product. It does not include supervisory or administrative labor or other overhead. This increase in direct labor cost may be found as follows:

(a) Where labor is paid on a "piecework" basis, subtract the piece rate paid by the seller in January 1942[3] for each direct labor operation on the commodity from the current legal piece rate for such operation. The sum of the amounts so found for all operations on the commodity being priced is the increase in piece rate direct labor on the commodity.

(b) Where labor is paid on a "time" basis (hourly, daily, weekly, or monthly rate), find the length of time consumed in performance of each direct labor operation on the commodity and subtract the amount paid by the seller in January 1942[3] for such period of time from the current legal wage paid for the same period of time. The sum of the amounts found for all operations on the commodity being priced is the increase in time rate direct labor on the commodity.

Step 5. Add the amounts found in Step 3 and Step 4 to the price found in Step 1. This total is the adjusted net maximum price of the commodity.

(e) Reports. No person may deliver any commodity at an adjusted maximum price established under this Appendix until he has either received written approval of his adjusted maximum price from the Office of Price Administration or until the twentieth day after he has mailed to the Apparel Price Branch, Office of Price Administration, Washington 25, D. C., the report required by this paragraph and all additional information which may be requested by the Office of Price Administration, whichever date is earlier. Under this paragraph the seller must file two copies of a report signed by an owner, officer or principal and containing the following information:

(1) Date of report.

(2) Seller's name and business address.

(3) A list of the commodities whose maximum prices he wishes to adjust under this order, showing each style of each commodity separately.

(4) A description of each commodity listed in (3), including each type of yarn, the weight in pounds of the cotton content of the yarn consumed in each style, and the finished weight of the commodity.

(5) A description, including each type of yarn, the weight in pounds of the cotton content of the yarn consumed, the finished weight of the commodity, and an identification (by style number, if possible) to the seller's commodity for which the maximum price was established under § 1378.3 (a) which was the same as each style listed in (3).

(6) The highest net price established for the commodity under § 1378.3 (a). If this price has been adjusted under subparagraphs (1) and (2) of that section show the amount of each such adjustment separately.

(7) The amount (in dollars and cents) by which the cost of direct labor (at legal wage rates) on each style listed in (3) has increased between January 1, 1942 (or such later date as might be required under footnote 3 to paragraph (d) above) and the date of the report.

(8) The amount of yarn cost increase permitted by this order for each style listed in (3) (amount shown in Column 2 of Appendix B of Revised Supplementary Order 154 for the appropriate type of yarn multiplied by the number of pounds of yarn listed for the style in (3)).

(9) Adjusted net maximum price under this order of each style listed in (3) (the price shown in (6) plus amount shown in (7) plus amount shown in (8)).

(1) A list of all legal wage increases made by the seller to his employees between January 1, 1942 and the date of the report, and, as to each such increase, the date such increase went into effect and the authority under which it was made (e. g., Order of National or Regional War Labor Board or

(f) Approval or modification of reported adjusted maximum prices—(1) Approval. The adjusted maximum prices reported under this Appendix may be expressly approved in writing by the Office of Price Administration, or, if no order disapproving or modi-

[2] 11 F.R. 5066.

[3] However, if the maximum price established for the commodity under § 1378.3 (a) has been adjusted pursuant to subparagraph (2) thereof, to reflect increases in wage rates to a date later than January 1, 1942, the increase in direct labor cost is to be measured from that date rather than January 1, 1942. Wage Stabilization, etc.).

fying such adjusted prices has been issued within 20 days after the mailing of the report required by (e) above, and all additional information which may be requested by the Office of Price Administration, adjusted maximum prices reported are deemed to have been approved until issuance of an order disapproving or modifying them.

(2) Modification or disapproval. The Office of Price Administration may, at any time, disapprove or modify the adjusted maximum prices reported under (e) above if the adjustment has not been properly made in accordance with the provisions of this Appendix.

(g) Definitions—(1) "The same commodity". For purposes of this Appendix a commodity currently being sold is considered "the same" as a base period commodity only if it is identical with the base period commodity in all respects except that it may differ from the base period commodity to the following extent:

(i) The current commodity may have a finished weight of not less than 97% of the finished weight of the base period commodity.

(ii) The current commodity may be made with a substantially equal number of courses and needles per inch and with trimmings of substantially equal quality and serviceability to the base period commodity.

(iii) The current commodity may be of cotton yarn which varies from that of the base period commodity by not more than 2 counts (plus or minus). For example, a current commodity made of 26 count carded cotton yarn may be considered the same as a base period commodity made of 24 or 28 count carded cotton yarn. Note, however, that the amount of permitted yarn cost increases must be based on the actual count of yarn used in the current commodity. However, with respect to hosiery covered by this order, the yarn count of the current commodity may exceed that of the base period commodity by 4 counts or be less than that of the base period by 2 counts.

(2) "Type of yarn." For the purposes of this Appendix yarns are classified as follows:

(i) As to the fiber of which it is made (such as cotton or wool);

(ii) As to whether it is combed or carded;

(iii) As to count of yarn, such as 26's, 30's, etc.;

(iv) As to whether singles or plied.

Where a commodity is knitted of yarn which is a blend of one or more different fibers, or of a combination yarn (that is yarns of different fibers plied together) each fiber is treated separately for the purpose of calculating the permitted yarn cost increase as described in (3) below.

(3) "Weight in pounds of the cotton content of the yarn consumed." For purposes of this appendix the "weight in pounds of the cotton content of the yarn consumed" in a commodity is the number of pounds of cotton yarn required to knit the average size of the commodity, that is, the gross knitting weight. In calculating the yarn cost increase permitted for a commodity made of a blended yarn or of more than one type of yarn, the number of pounds of each type of cotton yarn consumed in the commodity must be multiplied separately by the increase factor listed for that type of yarn in Appendix B of Revised Supplementary Order 154.

(4) "Legal wage rates." For purposes of this appendix "legal wage rates" are wage rates put into effect before September 16, 1942, or, if put into effect after that date, authorized by express order of the National or Regional War Labor Boards, or the Wage Stabilization Board, or permissible under any general order or directive issued by one of such boards, or wage rates deemed "approved" under Executive Order 9697, issued February 14, 1946.

This amendment shall become effective June 19, 1946.

NOTE: All record keeping and reporting requirements of this amendment have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

Issued this 19th day of June 1946.

PAUL A. PORTER,
Administrator.

PART 1499—COMMODITIES AND SERVICES

[RMPR 539,[1] Amdt. 3]

CUSTOM MILLING AND KILN-DRYING OF WESTERN SOFTWOODS

A statement of the considerations involved in the issuance of this amendment, issued simultaneously herewith, has been filed with the Division of the Federal Register.

Revised Maximum Price Regulation 539 is amended in the following respects:

1. Section 10 is amended to read as follows:

SEC. 10. Computing prices on the most economical basis. Except where the specific pricing provisions in the tables or in the footnotes to the tables require otherwise, prices on combination milling such as ripping and resawing must be computed on the method of producing the end product which will result in the use of the fewest number of lines, regardless of how the custom milling actually produces such end product.

2. In section 13, Table 1, the column headed 1 x 12 is amended to read: 1 x 12" and wider.

In Table 2, the column headed 2 x 12 is amended to read: 2x12" and wider.

3. In section 13 the General Notes are amended to read as follows:

1 (a) Ripping and resawing are to be considered as separate operations. For the purpose of classifying these operations, resawing is described as sawing the stock through its widest dimension, and ripping as sawing the stock through its narrowest dimension. A first line is a rip or resaw through any given quantity of lumber producing double the number of pieces, the resulting footage of which is equal to the footage prior to the operation.

An additional line is identical with the first line except that it is second or subsequent rip or resaw through all or part of the footage resulting from the first or preceding line operation, as the case may be. First line operations on square pieces are defined as resaw lines.

(b) Charges for either resawing or ripping are to be based on the original size and the original footage of the stock being ripped or resawn.

(c) No charge may be made for ripping or resawing any stock thicker than 4" or wider than 12" except stock 2" thick and thinner in random width shipments.

(d) Not more than four lines of ripping or resawing or of any combination of ripping and resawing may be charged to the purchaser of lumber being custom-milled to 6/4" thickness or thinner, or to any combination of thicknesses containing lumber of 6/4" thickness or thinner and not more than three lines of ripping or resawing or of any combination of ripping and resawing may be charged for in remanufacturing to thicker than 6/4"; all such charges shall be in accordance with the provisions covering such services as set forth in tables 1, 2, 3 and 4 except that a custom mill may apply to the Lumber Branch, Office of Price Administration, Washington 25, D. C., for an exception to this limitation on services to be performed for the following:

(1) Purchasers requiring custom milling services on lumber held in stock by a Government Agency on or before June 24, 1946.

(ii) Purchasers of lumber requiring precision resawing to a thickness of ⅜" or thinner.

Excess lines of ripping or resawing (or trimming or any other work) may be charged to the producing mill, if mutually and satisfactorily arranged, provided that such charges may not be passed on to the customer and provided further that when stock thicker than 4" or wider than 12" is resawn or ripped for the account of a producing mill, such material must be regraded after such initial ripping or resawing and billed by the producing mill to the customer at the price of the size and grade produced by such initial milling done for the producing mill, but in no case may the size be larger than 4 x 12". This regrading must be performed at the expense of the producing mill by a grader who has been approved by the W. C. L. A. or the P. L. I. B., or by a grader employed by any grading agency approved by the Portland, Oregon, Office of the Office of Price Administration. The custom mill must satisfy itself that all of the provisions of this paragraph have been complied with before any charges for custom milling of such lumber may be passed on to the purchaser. The intent of this note is to discourage uneconomic custom milling operations, and to minimize the amount of degrade that the purchaser must absorb in reducing large sizes to smaller sizes.

Example (1). In resawing 6x6" to 1x6" the correct procedure would be as follows: The first line resaw produces one piece 4x6" and one piece 2x6", or two pieces 3x6" each. The charge for this first line resaw may be collected only from the producing mill, since the original thickness exceeded 4". The product resulting from the first line operation which reduces the thickness to 4" or thinner must then be regraded and sold by the producing mill at the price of the end product, both as to size and grade, resulting from the initial resawing operation. The cost of any subsequent operation performed on the lumber at the buyer's request, as well as any degrade resulting therefrom, shall be for the burer's account.

Example (2). Resawing 12 x 12" to 4 x 12":

The first line resaw produces one piece 4 x 12" and one piece 8 x 12". An additional line resaw on the 8 x 12" results in a total of three pieces of 4 x 12". The 4 x 12" pieces must then be regraded and sold by the producing mill at the price of the end product, both as to size and grade, resulting from the initial resawing operation. All milling and regrading expense up to this point must be borne by the producing mill. Since the lumber has now been reduced to not over 4" in thickness, is not over 12" in width and is regraded, any further operations performed on the lumber by the custom mill at the request of the buyer, as well as any degrade resulting from such further operation shall be for the buyer's account.

Example (3). Reducing 8 x 20" to 4 x 12" and 4 x 8": The first line resaw produces two pieces 4 x 20". The first line rip on 4 x 20" produces one piece 4 x 12" and one piece 4 x 8". The stock must then be regraded and sold by the producing mill at the price of the end product, both as to grade and size (in this instance two-fifths 4 x 8" and three-fifths 4 x 12''), resulting from these initial resawing and ripping operations. All milling, degrade and regrading expense up to this point must be borne by the producing mill.

As in the examples above, the costs of any further refinement of the lumber at the buyer's request as well as any degrade resulting therefrom, shall be for the buyer's account.

2. Where surfacing is done following resawing and/or ripping, surfacing charges shall be based on size or sizes of stock resulting from the resawing and/or ripping operation. Where stock thinner than 1'' is surfaced, resawn, or ripped, charges may be computed on surface measure. Where the first line of resawing reduces thickness of the remaining piece to less than 1'', additional lines, where required, may be figured on surface measure, instead of original size as provided in note 1.

3. Fractional and odd thicknesses. For 6/4'' and thinner, use price of 1'' and compute footage on actual rough measure. For thicker than 6/4'' and less than 8/4'', use 2'' prices and compute footage on actual rough measure. For odd or fractional thicknesses thicker than 2'', use price of next thinner listed size and compute footage on actual rough measure.

4. Where stock is of fractional or odd widths not specified in table, use price of next listed width, either wider or narrower, whichever is lower. Compute on actual board measure.

5. Where stock is kiln dried prior to being milled a handling charge of $2.00 per M'BM may be added for handling between drying kiln and mill. When resawing and/or ripping is required before kiln drying in addition to other milling, a handling charge of $3.00 per M'BM instead of $2.00 per M'BM may be added. In either instance, when the above handling charges are made, the handling charge provided in the milling tables may not be used.

6. If customer does not furnish a reasonably accurate inbound piece tally, the custom mill may charge him an additional 50¢ per M'BM for tallying.

7. Where 50% or more of the lumber in any car is to be custom milled or kiln dried and the balance of the lumber in such car is required to be handled from car to car without processing, a flat handling charge of $3.00 per M'BM may be made on such balance.

8. Random width prices may be used only on random width shipments containing at least 4 widths when such widths fall under 2 or more specified width price brackets in tables. Shipments containing mixed widths, if piece tallied and segregated in the car, are not random widths. Subject to above conditions, the use of random width prices or specific width prices is optional with Custom mill.

9. When lumber is loaded on open cars and the buyer requires packaging in sling lots or otherwise, whereby the load is divided into individual parcels for the purpose of facilitating mechanical unloading, a charge of $6.50 per car in addition to the open car handling charge may be made. This charge shall include material and labor used in packaging.

This amendment shall become effective June 24, 1946.

NOTE: All reporting and record keeping requirements of this regulation have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

Issued this 19th day of June 1946.

Administrator.

PART 1499—COMMODITIES AND SERVICES

[MPR 539-C,[1] Amdt. 3]

CUSTOM MILLING AND KILN DRYING OF SOFTWOODS AND HARDWOODS IN MIDWEST AND GREAT LAKES STATES

A statement of the considerations involved in the issuance of this amendment, issued simultaneously herewith, has been filed with the Division of the Federal Register.

Maximum Price Regulation 539-C is amended in the following respects:

1. Section 3 (a) is amended to read as follows:

SEC. 3. What services are covered.—(a) This regulation covers "custom milling and kiln drying services" when performed in the States of North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Wisconsin, Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio and in Jefferson County, Kentucky.

2. Section 10 is amended to read as follows:

SEC. 10. Computing prices on the most economical basis. Except where the specific pricing provisions in the tables or in the footnotes to the tables require otherwise, prices on combination milling such as ripping and resawing must be computed on the method of producing the end product which will result in the use of the fewest number of lines, regardless of how the custom milling actually produces such end product.

3. In section 13, Table 1, the column headed 1 x 12 is amended to read: 1 x 12" and wider.

In Table 2, the column headed 2 x 12 is amended to read: 2 x 12" and wider.

4. In section 13 the heading "General Notes" following the Tables is amended to read: General Notes—(covering all woods other than Western Softwoods).

5. In section 13 a new set of general notes covering Western Softwoods only is added after General Note 9, to read as follows:

GENERAL NOTES—(COVERING WESTERN SOFTWOODS ONLY)

"Western softwood lumber" under this regulation means any lumber which on sales by the sawmill is subject to RMPR 26 (Douglas Fir and Other West Coast Lumber), RMPR 94 (Western Pine and Associated Species of Lumber), MPR 253 (Redwood Lumber), RMPR 290 (Sitka Spruce Lumber), or RMPR 402 (Western Red Cedar Lumber).

1 (a) Ripping and resawing are to be considered as separate operations. For the purpose of clarifying these operations, resawing is described as sawing the stock through its widest dimensions, and ripping as sawing the stock through its narrowest dimension. A first line is a rip or resaw through any given quantity of lumber producing double the number of pieces, the resulting footage of which is equal to the footage prior to the operation.

An additional line is identical with the first line except that it is the second or subsequent rip or resaw through all or part of the footage resulting from the first or preceding line operation, as the case may be. First line operations on square pieces are defined as resaw lines.

(b) Charges for either resawing or ripping are to be based on the original size and the original footage of the stock being ripped or resawn.

(c) No charge may be made for ripping or resawing any stock thicker than 4" or wider than 12", except stock 2" thick and thinner in random width shipments.

(d) Not more than four lines of ripping or resawing or of any combination of ripping and resawing may be charged to the purchaser of lumber being custom-milled to 6/4" thickness or thinner, or to any combination of thickness containing lumber of 6/4" thickness or thinner and not more than three lines of ripping or resawing or of any combination of ripping and resawing may be charged for in remanufacturing to thicker than 6/4"; all such charges shall be in accordance with the provisions covering such services as set forth in tables 1, 2, 3 and 4 except that a custom mill may apply to the Lumber Branch, Office of Price Administration, Washington 25, D. C., for an exception to this limitation on services to be performed for the following:

(i) Purchasers requiring custom milling services on lumber held in stock by a Government agency on or before June 24, 1946.

(ii) Purchasers of lumber requiring precision resawing to a thickness of ⅛" or thinner.

Excess lines of ripping or resawing (or trimming or any other work) may be charged to the producing mill, if mutually and satisfactorily arranged, provided that such charges may not be passed on to the customer and provided further that when stock thicker than 4" or wider than 12" is resawn or ripped for the account of a producing mill, such material must be regraded after such initial ripping or resawing and billed by the producing mill to the customer at the price of the size and grade produced by such initial milling done for the producing mill, but in no case may the size be larger than 4 x 12". This regrading must be performed at the expense of the producing mill by a grader who has been approved by the W. C. L. A. or the P. L. I. B., or by a grader employed by any grading agency approved by the Portland Oregon office of the Office of Price Administration. The custom mill must satisfy itself that all of the provisions of this paragraph have been complied with before any charges for custom milling of such lumber may be passed on to the purchaser. The intent of this note is to discourage uneconomic custom milling operations and to minimize the amount of degrade that the purchaser must absorb in reducing large sizes to smaller sizes.

Example (1). In resawing 6 x 6" to 1 x 6 the correct procedure would be as follows: The first line resaw produces one piece 4 x 6 and one piece 2 x 6", or two pieces 3 x 6 each. The charge for this first line resaw may be collected only from the producing mill, since the original thickness exceeded 4". The product resulting from the first line operation which reduces the thickness 4 or thinner must then be regraded and sold by the producing mill at the price of the end product, both as to size and grade, resulting from the initial resawing operation. The cost of any subsequent operation performed on the lumber at the buyer's request, as well as any degrade resulting therefrom, shall be for the buyer's account.

Example (2). Resawing 12x12" to 4x12": The first line resaw produces one piece 4x12" and one piece 8x12". An additional line resaw on the 8x12" results in a total of three pieces of 4x12". The 4x12" pieces must then be regraded and sold by the producing mill at the price of the end product, both as to size and grade, resulting from the initial resawing operation. All milling and regrading expense up to this point must be borne by the producing mill. Since the lumber has now been reduced to not over 4" in thickness, is not over 12" in width and is regraded, any further operations performed on the lumber by the custom mill at the request of the buyer, as well as any degrade resulting from such further operation shall be for the buyer's account.

Example (3). Reducing 8x20" to 4x12" and 4x8": The first line resaw produces two pieces 4x20". The first line rip on 4x20" produces one piece 4x12" and one piece 4x8". The stock must then be regraded and sold by the producing mill at the price of the end product, both as to grade and size (in this instance two-fifths 4x8" and three-fifths 4x12"), resulting from these initial resawing and ripping operations. All milling, degrade and regrading expense up to this point must be borne by the producing mill.

As in the examples above, the costs of any further refinement of the lumber at the buyer's request as well as any degrade resulting therefrom, shall be for the buyer's account.

Lumber actually on hand in distribution yards in the area covered by Maximum Price Regulation 539 C, or actually in transit from producing mills on June 24, 1946, may for a period of 20 days on and after such date be excepted from the terms of this note and General Note 1 (c) above, provided a list of such lumber to be so manufactured is filed with the Lumber Branch, Office of Price Administration, Washington 25, D. C., within ten (10) days of June 24, 1946.

2. Where surfacing is done following resawing and/or ripping, surfacing charges shall be based on size or sizes of stock resulting from the resawing and/or ripping operation. Where stock thinner than 1" is surfaced, resawn, or ripped, charges may be computed on surface measure. Where the first line of resawing reduces thickness of the remaining piece to less than 1", additional lines, where required, may be figured on surface measure, instead of original size as provided in note 1.

3. Fractional and odd thicknesses. For 6/4" and thinner, use price of 1" and compute footage on actual rough measure. For thicker than 6/4" and less than 8/4", use 2" prices and compute footage on actual rough measure. For odd or fractional thicknesses thicker than 2", use price of next thinner listed size and compute footage on actual rough measure.

4 Where stock is of fractional or odd widths not specified in table, use price of next listed width, either wider or narrower, whichever is lower. Compute on actual board measure.

5. Where stock is kiln dried prior to being milled, a handling charge of $2.00 per M'BM may be added for handling between drying kiln and mill. When resawing and/or ripping is required before kiln drying in addition to other milling, a handling charge of $3.00 per M'BM instead of $2.00 per M'BM may be added. In either instance, when the above handling charges are made, the handling charge provided in the milling tables may not be used.

6. If customer does not furnish a reasonably accurate inbound piece tally, the custom mill may charge him an additional 50¢ per M'BM for tallying.

7. Where 50% or more of the lumber in any car is to be custom milled or kiln dried and the balance of the lumber in such car is required to be handled from car to car without processing, a flat handling charge of $3.00 per M'BM may be made on such balance.

8. Random width prices may be used only on random width shipments containing at least 4 widths when such widths fall under 2 or more specified width price brackets in tables. Shipments containing mixed widths, if piece tallied and segregated in the car, are not random widths. Subject to above conditions, the use of random width prices or specific width prices is optional with custom mill.

9. When lumber is loaded on open cars and the buyer requires packaging in sling lots or otherwise, whereby the load is divided into individual parcels for the purpose of facilitating mechanical unloading, a charge of $6.50 per car in addition to the open car handling charge may be made. This charge shall include material and labor used in packaging.

This amendment shall become effective June 24, 1946.

NOTE: All reporting and record keeping requirements of this amendment have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

Issued this 19th day of June 1946.

Administrator.

Chapter XVIII—Office of Economic Stabilization

[Dir. 123]

PART 4003—SUPPORT PRICES: SUBSIDIES

ADJUSTMENTS IN PREMIUM PRICE PLAN FOR COPPER, LEAD AND ZINC

The purpose of this directive is intended further to carry out the policy announced in press release OES—34, dated Thursday March 28, 1946, to modify the Premium Price Plan for Copper, Lead and Zinc, in the light of the increased costs that will be incurred by mine operators in making wage adjustments under the Government's wage-price policy.

Because of the critically short supply of lead and the expectation that current wage increases will render nonprofitable a substantial production of marginal lead ores, an increase in the present "B" lead premiums is authorized where necessary. For similar reasons with respect to copper, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is authorized to pay the larger mines in the country premiums in the Special Copper Class where necessary.

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in me by the Stabilization Act of 1942, as amended, and by Executive Order 9250 of October 3, 1942 (7 F.R. 7871), Executive Order 9328 of April 8, 1943 (8 F.R. 4681), Executive Order 9599 of August 18, 1945 (10 F.R. 13487) Executive Order 9697 of February 14, 1946 (11 F.R. 1929), the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is authorized and directed:

1. Upon application by a mine operator and recommendation of the Quota Committee for the Premium Price Plan for Copper, Lead and Zinc, to specify with respect to any "B" lead quota, premium payments for each pound of lead of over-quota production within a range between 14¾ cents and the sum of the ceiling price of lead and the amount of the "A" lead premium. Any "B" lead quota as to which the premium is not specified in cents and tenths of a cent shall remain payable at 12 cents minus the sum of the ceiling price and the amount of the "A" lead premium, unless and until otherwise specified by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, in accordance with the provisions of this paragraph.

2. Upon application by a mine operator and recommendation of the Quota Committee for the Premium Price Plan for Copper, Lead and Zinc, to pay to major copper mines, heretofor defined as mines which produced more than 2,000 tons of copper in 1942, premiums not exceeding the difference between 22 cents per pound and the ceiling price for copper.

Issued and effective this 18th day of June 1946.

Chapter XXIII—War Assets Administration

[Reg. 14,[1] Order 1]

PART 8314—DISPOSAL TO NONPROFIT INSTITUTIONS AND DISCOUNTS FOR EDUCATIONAL OR PUBLIC-HEALTH INSTITUTIONS OR INSTRUMENTALITIES

DISPOSAL OF UNIT LIBRARIES

The Armed Services and other owning agencies have in their possession a number of collections of books and related library equipment which were established for the use of members of the Services, defense workers, and others at camps, posts, recreation centers and other locations. These books and materials were selected for their general informational, educational, recreational, technical, or specialized nature, and represent a wide variety of subjects.

The War Assets Administrator deems that these collections are of far greater value if they are declared and disposed of as units, rather than after breaking them up into their individual types of property. The Federal Security Agency has recommended that these collections be made available at nominal prices to educational institutions and instrumentalities in the areas where there is a relative lack of present library facilities.

In view of these considerations, the War Assets Administrator finds that the benefit which will accrue to the United States from the use of such collections by such institutions and instrumentalities justifies disposal to such institutions and instrumentalities at a nominal price approximately sufficient to cover the costs of care, handling and disposition and further finds that such a nominal price should be 5% of the fair value.

Pursuant to the authority of the Surplus Property Act of 1944 (58 Stat. 765; 50 U.S.C. App. Sup. 1611), Public Law 181, 79th Congress, 1st Session (59 Stat. 533), Executive Order 9689 (11 F.R. 1265), and Public Law 375, 79th Congress, Second Session, it is hereby ordered, that:

1. Definitions. A "unit library" means a collection of books and related library equipment including charging desks, catalogue cards, book mending materials, library tables, library chairs, bulletin boards, charging trays, book trucks, movable shelving, periodical racks and similar materials and equipment. Unassorted surplus textbooks and educational pamphlets, instructional, technical, reference or specialized publications, and related library equipment which are not assembled as part of a library, shall not be treated as unit libraries unless practicable to do so or unless otherwise specifically directed by the War Assets Administration.

2. Owning agencies shall process all declarations of each unit library together and shall not dispose of any line items contained in any such declarations under their authority to dispose of small lots under Part 8309.[1] Wherever possible, a unit library shall be stored and maintained together.

3. Notwithstanding the provisions of § 8314.9, War Assets Administration as a disposal agency, after offering the unit libraries to priority claimants in accordance with the provisions of Part 8302,[2] is hereby authorized to sell such libraries to educational institutions and instrumentalities as defined in § 8314.1, at a price equivalent to 5% of the fair value thereof, f. o. b. location.

4. All such libraries remaining unsold after the orders of priority claimants have been filled shall be reserved for exclusive disposal to educational institutions and instrumentalities in accordance with the provisions of this order for a period of six (6) months after the date of offering to priority claimants.

5. In disposing of unit libraries, War Assets Administration as a disposal agency shall make offerings on a broad basis and shall dispose of them to educational institutions and instrumentalities whose orders have been approved by the Federal Security Agency or its designee and in accordance with the directions of the Federal Security Agency as to the proper allocation of such libraries within the United States and each State.

This order shall become effective June 19, 1946.

Ceiling prices for sales of private brands which differ from machines sold under the manufacturer's brand only by the brand designation, are the same as those shown above for the same model.

For the purpose of this sub-paragraph Zones I, II and III consist of the following states:

Zone I. Iowa, Missouri, Wisconsin, Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, District of Columbia.

Zone III. Washington, Oregon, California, Idaho, Nevada, Utah, Arizona, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico, Texas and Florida.

(2) Sales by mail order houses of their private brands. Prices may be established for sales by a mail order house of machines produced by the National Sewing Machine Company for sale under its private brand by orders issued under this section. Prices will be established by such orders in line with the level of retail ceiling prices established under this order.

(3) Credit charges. (i) Any person selling articles covered by this order to consumers, who, during the period of March 1942, collected a separately stated additional charge for the extension of credit on sales of such articles may collect a charge for the extension of credit under this order, not exceeding such charge during the period of March 1942, on a similar sale on similar terms to the same class of purchaser. Dealers who did not so state and collect an additional charge, may collect a charge for the extension of credit only on installment plan sales; and the charge shall not exceed the separately stated additional charge for the extension of credit on a similar sale on similar terms to the same class of purchaser during the period of March 1942, by the dealer's closest competitor who made a separately stated charge.

An installment-plan sale as used in the above paragraph means a sale where the unpaid balance is to be paid in installments over a period of either six weeks or more from the date of sale in the case of weekly installments, or eight weeks or more in the case of other than weekly installments.

(ii) All charges for the extension of credit shall be quoted and stated separately. Any charge which is not quoted and stated separately or which otherwise does not conform to this subsection, shall, for the purposes of this order be considered to be part of the price charged for the sewing machine sold.

(iii) No dealer may require as a condition of sale that the consumer must buy on credit.

(e) Terms and conditions of sale. Ceiling prices established under this order are subject to each seller's terms, discounts, allowances, and other price differentials no less favorable than those he had in effect for similar sales during the period of March 1942. If the seller made no such sales during the period of March 1942, his ceiling prices are subject to the terms, discounts, and allowances, no less favorable than those of his closest seller of the same class during the same period on sales of similar articles or which were thereafter properly established under applicable OPA regulations.

(f) Notification. At the time of, or prior to, the first invoice to a purchaser for resale showing a ceiling price established in accordance with the terms of this order, the seller shall notify the purchaser in writing of the method of determining ceiling prices or the dollar-and-cent ceiling prices established by this order for the purchaser's resales.

(h) Labelling. On and after the effective date of this order, no person, except a mail order seller, may sell at retail any machine covered by this order unless there is attached to the machine an OPA Ceiling Price Tag containing the OPA retail ceiling price for sales of the sewing machine by the particular retail seller. This tag or label may not be removed until after the sewing machine has been delivered to the ultimate consumer.

(i) Sales invoices. Every person who on or after 1946, sells a sewing machine covered by this order shall furnish every purchaser with an invoice showing the date of sale, the name and address of both the buyer and seller, the model number of each sewing machine he sold, the price charged, the quantity of each model sold, the terms of sale, and the nature and amount of any additional charges. Every seller must keep a copy of every sales invoice available for inspection by the Office of Price Administration for so long as the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, remains in effect.

(j) Revocation and amendment. This order may be revoked or amended by the Price Administrator at any time.

(k) Effective date. This order shall become effective on the 18th day of June 1946.

Issued this 18th day of June 1946.

Administrator.

ADJUSTMENT OF CEILING PRICES

For the reasons set forth in an opinion issued simultaneously herewith and filed with the Division of the Federal Register, and pursuant to § 1499.159e of Maximum Price Regulation No. 188, It is ordered, That Order No. 2 under § 1499.159e of Maximum Price Regulation No. 188 be amended in the following respects:

1. Paragraph (a) of section 2 is amended by substituting the figure, "121%" for the figure, "118%", wherever the latter figure appears in that paragraph.

2. Paragraph (b) of section 2 is amended by substituting the figure "115%" for the figure "112%", wherever the latter figure appears in that paragraph.

3. At the end of section 2, a new section 2a is added to read as follows:

SEC. 2a. Ceiling prices for certain radio cabinets whose ceiling prices were finally determined prior to June 19, 1946. A manufacturer of any radio cabinet whose ceiling price had been "finally determined" under section 3, 4, or 6 of this order prior to June 19, 1946, may increase that ceiling price by 3 percent.

A ceiling price shall be deemed to have been "finally determined" prior to June 19, 1946, if that price has been established under section 3, 4, or 6 of this order by an order effective prior to June 19, 1946, or, if under section 3 of this order that price had been reported to the Office of Price Administration prior to June 19, 1946, and has not been disapproved, and there is no other reason specified in section 3 (b) of this order for treating the reported price as invalid for the purpose of establishing a manufacturer's ceiling price.

4. Section 3 (a) is amended by substituting the phrase, "section 2, 2a, 3, 4, or 6" for the phrase, "section 2 or 4" wherever the latter phrase appears in section 3a).

"Comparable" cabinet means the one which is of the same type as the cabinet being priced (for example, table model, console model, combination radio phonograph, etc.) and which is closest to it in unit direct cost. A radio cabinet whose ceiling price is determined under section 2 shall be deemed a comparable cabinet only if the manufacturer does not have a radio cabinet which meets the requirements of the first sentence of this definition whose ceiling price was determined under sections 2a, 3, 4 or 6.

6. A new section 6a is added to follow section 6 and to read as follows:

SEC. 6a. Ceiling prices for sample radio cabinets. Anything in this order to the contrary notwithstanding, if a radio manufacturer requests in writing a radio cabinet manufacturer for sample models of radio cabinets, the cabinet manufacturer may charge such a radio manufacturer a price not in excess of either (a) the price he would arrive at by the use of the formula he had in effect between July 1, 1941 and October 31, 1941, for determining his price for sample models of radio cabinets of his manufacture, or (b) three and a half times his estimate of the ceiling price that would be determined for such a radio cabinet under this order without regard to this section, whichever is lower. The ceiling prices determined under this section shall apply to no more than three sample radio cabinets of any one model sold to any one radio manufacturer. The ceiling prices so determined need not be reported to the Office of Price Administration.

7. A new paragraph (d) is added to section 7 to follow paragraph (c) and to read as follows:

(d) Relation of this order to Supplementary Orders 116, 133, 148 or Revised Supplementary Order 119 or other supplementary orders. Ceiling prices established by this order are subject to adjustment by orders issued under Supplementary Orders Nos. 116, 133, 148, Revised Supplementary Order 119, and such other supplementary orders issued heretofore as may be applicable. However, if any radio cabinet manufacturer has secured an individual adjustment order, which is effective prior to June 19, 1946, and which authorizes him to increase the ceiling prices established by this order, the ceiling prices established by this order for the purposes of such an individual adjustment order, shall be the quotient obtained by dividing the ceiling prices currently established by this order by 103 percent.

This amendment shall become effective on the 19th day of June 1946.

Regional and District Office Orders.

[Region II Basic Order 1 Under Rev. Gen. Order 65]

LUMBER PRODUCTS IN NEW YORK REGION

For the reasons set forth in an opinion issued simultaneously herewith and filed with the Division of the Federal Register and under the authority vested in the Regional Administrator of the Office of Price Administration, Region II, by the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942 as amended, and by Revised General Order No. 65, it is hereby ordered:

(a) What this order does. This basic order puts into one document the provisions which will be common to all future orders establishing flat (dollars and cents) maximum prices for sales and deliveries of lumber products for which maximum prices are established under Second Revised Maximum Price Regulation 215, out of distribution yard stock by any lumber distribution yard located in any area or locality in Region II, such orders to be issued by the New York Regional Office, Region II, or by District Directors within Region II, pursuant to the authority contained in Revised General Order 65. The orders to be issued under this basic order are referred to herein, as adopting orders, and when issued, will expressly adopt the provisions of this basic order. The provisions of second revised Maximum Price Regulation 215, remain unaffected by this basic order, unless and until adopting orders are issued under this basic order. When such adopting orders are issued, the maximum prices fixed by such adopting orders will supersede the maximum prices or pricing methods previously fixed by Second Revised Maximum Price Regulation 215, as to the commodities covered by such adopting order on sales by yards located in the area covered by such adopting order. Except to the extent that they are inconsistent with the provisions of this order, all other provisions of Second Revised Maximum Price Regulation 215 applicable to the commodity or commodities covered by adopting orders shall apply to sales covered by such adopting orders.

(b) Transactions covered by this order. This order covers all sales and deliveries of lumber products for which maximum prices are established under Second Revised Maximum Price Regulation 215, out of distribution yard stock by any lumber distribution yard located in any area or locality in Region II.

(c) Relationship of this order and all adopting orders under this basic order to Second Revised Maximum Price Regulation 215. Adopting orders issued under this basic order, fixing maximum prices for sales of commodities named therein in areas described therein, shall supersede maximum prices or pricing method previously established under Second Revised Maximum Price Regulation 215. All other provisions of Second Revised Maximum Price Regulation 215, shall continue to apply to sales covered by this order and by such adopting orders, except as provided in said orders.

(d) Posting of maximum prices. Every seller making sales or offering to make sales covered by any adopting order under this basic order, must obtain at least two copies of such adopting order, and of the appendices, schedules, or price tables contained therein or annexed thereto. One copy of such appendices, schedules or price tables, must be posted and maintained in a prominent place in the office of the distribution yard making the sale, so that it may easily be read by any purchaser, and one copy of such adopting order, including the appendices, schedules or price tables together with a copy of this basic order, shall be kept and made available in said office for inspection by any person.

(e) Invoicing. Every person making a sale covered by any adopting order, issued under this basic order, must provide the purchaser, whether he requests it or not, with an invoice, sales slip, or other evidence of sale, of which an exact copy shall be retained by the seller so long as the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942 remains in effect. Such invoice or sales slip shall contain at least the following:

1. Date of sale.
2. Name and address of seller.
3. Name and address of purchaser.
4. Complete description of items sold, including quantity, grade, length, size condition, special treatment, workings, or other features which may affect the price.
5. Charges for extras, workings or delivery listed separately.
6. The total price.

(f) Maximum prices for lumber improperly invoiced. Where an invoice or sales slip for a sale covered by any adopting order under this basic order, does not contain a sufficiently complete description to identify the exact nature, type, grade, length, size or condition of the commodity, or any special treatment, workings, or other feature affecting the price and thus determine the maximum prices fixed by such adopting order, the maximum price applicable to such sale shall be the lowest maximum price which can be computed under such adopting order in accordance with the incomplete description. In the absence of any description, the maximum price shall be the lowest maximum price fixed by the schedules or price tables of the adopting order.

(g) Records. Each seller making sales covered by any adopting order issued under this basic order shall keep, in addition to the copies of invoices, sales slips, or other evidences of sale as heretofore set forth, all records required by Second Revised Maximum Price Regulation 215, and make the same available for inspection by representatives of the Office of Price Administration so long as the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942 as amended, remains in effect.

(h) This basic order may be revised, amended, or modified at any time by the Office of Price Administration.

This order shall become effective immediately.

Issued this 14th day of June 1946.

For the reasons set forth in an opinion issued simultaneously herewith and filed with the Division of the Federal Register, and under the authority vested in the Regional Administrator, Region II of the Office of Price Administration by the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942 as amended, by section 17 of MPR 592 as amended and by Revised Procedural Regulation No. 1, It is ordered, That:

(a) On and after the effective date of this order, the maximum prices of sand and gravel produced and sold in the Pittsburgh metropolitan area consisting of the City of Pittsburgh and the entire counties of Armstrong, Westmoreland, Allegheny and Beaver all in the State of Pennsylvania, are fixed and adjusted as set forth in Schedule A hereto annexed and made a part of this order. Said Schedule A also contains a description of the zones to which the prices set forth in Schedule A apply, and the discounts applicable to sales covered by this order.

(b) Every seller making sales covered by this order shall post a copy of Schedule A annexed to this order in each of his places of business in the territory covered by this order.

(c) On any sale of $25 or more of sand and gravel, covered by this order, each seller, regardless of previous custom, must give the purchaser a sales slip showing the date, name and address of the seller, a description of each item sold, and the price received for each item, and must preserve a duplicate of such sales slip at his place of business and make the same available for inspection by representatives of the Office of Price Administration so long as the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942 as amended, remains in effect.

(d) Where a sales slip required under the provisions of paragraph (c) of this order does not contain a sufficiently complete description to identify the type and nature of the commodity sold, and the zone in which it is delivered, and thus determine the maximum price under Schedule A of this order, the maximum price applicable to such sale shall be the lowest maximum price which can be computed under Schedule A of this order in accordance with the incomplete description. In the absence of any description, the maximum price shall be the lowest price that can be computed under Schedule A.

(e) A copy of this order has been filed with the Division of the Federal Register where it is open to inspection by the public.

Chapter VII—National Housing Agency

[Premium Payments Reg. 1]

PART 714—PREMIUM PAYMENTS REGULATIONS UNDER VETERANS' EMERGENCY HOUSING ACT OF 1946

STRUCTURAL CLAY PRODUCTS

Purpose and findings. This general regulation is issued to stimulate additional production of structural clay products by providing for premium payments with respect to units of additional production above established quotas. It describes how quotas are established, and the methods, procedures and conditions under which such payments may be obtained. This regulation is issued pursuant to the authority of the Veterans' Emergency Housing Act of 1946.

All available means of increasing the supply of structural clay products for the veterans' emergency housing program and for other construction, maintenance and repair essential to the national well-being have been considered. Based on such consideration the Expediter finds that premium payments are temporarily necessary to increase the supply of such materials, and to stimulate additional production with greater rapidity, economy, and certainty than other available methods. The premium payments provided herein are applied at a uniform rate within the industry. In applying premium payments to necessary additional production in this industry, emphasis has been placed upon avoiding either economic dislocations or adverse effects upon established business.

§ 714.1 Structural clay products—(a) Definitions. As used in this section:

(1) "Producer" means a person who operates a plant in which clay products are produced.

(2) "Person" means an individual, corporation, partnership, association, or any other organized group of any of the foregoing, or legal successor or representative of any of the foregoing, but does not include the United States, any of its political subdivisions or any agency thereof, any other Government, any of its political subdivisions or any agency thereof.

(3) "Structural clay products" means what is commonly known to the industry as burned common and face clay brick—glazed and unglazed; structural clay tile—unglazed; and structural facing tile—glazed and unglazed. It does not include drain tile, roofing tile, flue lining, floor and wall tile, paving brick, fire-clay brick, sewer pipe, quarry tile or any other clay products.

(4) "Plant" means an integrated manufacturing establishment for the production of clay products (within the United States, its Territories, possessions or the District of Columbia) occupying a single site and, where consisting of several complete manufacturing units, using common shipping and storing facilities and common operating supervision.

(5) "Month" means calendar month.

(6) "Full operating month" means a month in which a plant operated at least twenty days except for February during which the plant must have operated at least eighteen days.

(7) "Claim" means a claim for payment filed pursuant to this regulation.

(8) "New producer" means, with respect to a plant which prior to the effective date of this section was not operated for the production of clay products a person who operates such a plant after the effective date of this section and who did not operate prior to the effective date of this section any plant for the production of clay products.

(9) "Expediter" means the Housing Expediter as defined in the Veterans' Emergency Housing Act of 1946 or his duly authorized representative.

(10) "OHE" means the Office of the Housing Expediter.

(b) Computation of production for quotas and claims. (1) For the purpose of determining the quota of a plant and for the purpose of determining the amount of a claim, production of a plant shall be computed according to the following instructions. Find the number of units of completely burned clay products produced in the month involved (whether or not removed from the kiln) and computed on the basis of standard size brick equivalents. For quantities removed from kiln during the month count only the products which are of a grade and character suitable for sale. For any completely burned quantities remaining in kilns make a reasonable deduction for breakage and wastage. Do not count quantities of clay products which are in the process of being burned.

(2) The following computations shall be used in converting to standard size brick equivalents:

(i) For unglazed hollow facing tile and glazed hollow facing tile, compute the brick equivalent on face area only. In computing equivalents for facing tile, count tile with a face 2¼" x 8" or 18 square inches as equal to one brick. In computing brick equivalents for facing tile on all sizes other than standard brick size, use 20 square inches as equivalent to one brick. For example, a tile with a 5 x 8 inch face equals 2 brick equivalent.

(ii) For structural clay tile a factor of 1.5 tons per thousand bricks shall be used in making the conversion.

(iii) For oversize brick, the producer shall convert to standard size brick equivalents using the conversion factor previously utilized by him in preparing reports to other Federal Government agencies.

(iv) For drain tile a factor of 1.5 tons per thousand bricks shall be used in making the conversion.

(v) For any other clay products not included above, the producer shall convert to standard size brick equivalents using the conversion factor, if any, previously utilized by him in preparing reports to other Federal Government agencies, or, if no such conversion factor has ever been so used, using the conversion factor, if any, he has customarily used in his business, or, if no such conversion factor has ever been so used, using such reasonable conversion factor (subject to re-determination by the Expediter) as is applicable in each case.

(c) Establishment of quota. (1) A separate quota shall be established for each and every plant of the producer as follows:

(i) With respect to a plant where clay products were produced for at least three full operating months during January through May 1946, the quota shall be the lower of the following: (a) The arithmetical average of the production of all clay products stated in terms of standard size brick equivalents for the two months of highest production during January through May 1946, or (b) 90 percent of the production of all clay products stated in terms of standard size brick equivalents for the month of highest production during January through May 1946.

(ii) With respect to a plant where clay products were produced less than three but at least two full operating months during January through May 1946, the quota shall be 90 percent of the production of all clay products stated in terms of standard size brick equivalents for the month of highest production during those two months.

(iii) With respect to a plant where clay products were produced prior to June 1, 1945, but where no clay products of any kind were produced during the year June 1, 1945, through May 31, 1946, the quota for each month shall be two-thirds of the production of "structural clay products" stated in terms of standard size brick equivalents during that month and premium payments will be made on the remaining one-third. In determining quotas under this paragraph clay products other than "structural clay products" shall not be included.

(iv) With respect to all other plants, a special quota shall be established by the Expediter: Provided, however, That no such quota shall be established for a new producer which would result in the application of premium payments to more than 50 percent of the value (in terms of the producer's selling price) of the total output of such producer.

(v) With respect to a plant having a quota established under the provisions above, a special quota adjusted for the months of November, December, January and February may be established by the Expediter (a) where clay products were produced at any time during the year June 1, 1945 through May 31, 1946, and (b) where customarily, because of the effect of weather conditions on plant operations during November, December, January and February, the production of such products during these months was substantially less than in other periods of the year.

(2) In the case of a producer with two or more plants, if the production in any plant falls below the quota for that plant in any month, the Expediter may establish a combined quota for any or all plants if he determines that production has been shifted among such plants so as to increase the producers total claims without a corresponding increase in total output.

(d) Application for quota. (1) Every person who wishes to receive premium payments under this section shall file an application for quota on prescribed forms in accordance with instructions on the forms. A separate application shall be filed for each and every plant of the applicant.

(2) With respect to those plants whose quotas are established under paragraph (c) (1) (i), (ii) or (iii) of this section, the application forms may be obtained from any Reconstruction Finance Corporation Loan Agency and shall be filed with the first claim for payment.

(3) All applications for quotas under paragraph (c) (1) (i), (ii) or (iii) of this section shall be filed with the RFC at the Loan Agency for the district in which the plant is located except that a producer operating more than one plant shall simultaneously file the applications covering all his plants at the Loan Agency for the district in which his main office is located. A producer may find out in which RFC Loan Agency district he is located by consulting his bank.

(4) All applications for special quotas under paragraph (c) (1) (iv) or (v) of this section shall be filed with the Civilian Production Administration, Washington, D. C. The application forms may be obtained from any RFC Loan Agency.

(e) Rate and computation of premium payment. (1) A premium payment of $5 for each thousand units of production stated in terms of standard size brick equivalents in excess of established quotas will be made. The amount payable for each month will be computed by subtracting from the total number of units of production stated in terms of standard size brick equivalents during the month the amount of the established quota and multiplying the remainder by $5 per thousand units.

(2) In the case of a plant whose quota includes clay products other than structural clay products, the production for the month covered by the claim may include such other clay products up to but not exceeding the amount of other clay products in its quota. The other clay products in the quota may be found as follows:

(i) With respect to a plant whose quota is the arithmetic average of production in the two months of highest production, take the arithmetic average of the production of other clay products in these two months.

(ii) With respect to a plant whose quota is 90% of production in the month of highest production, take 90% of production of other clay products in that month.

EXAMPLE: A plant has a quota of 1,000 standard size brick equivalent, made up of 800 in structural clay products and 200 in other clay products. In August it produces 1,500 standard size brick equivalent of all clay products made up of 1,200 structural clay products and 300 other clay products. The claim for August should be for 400 standard size brick equivalents of production in excess of quota, computed as follows:

Structural clay products produced	1,200
Other clay products produced (but not in excess of amount in quota)	200
Total production in claim	1,400
Quota	1,000
Production in excess of quota	400

(f) Claim for payment. (1) Each claim for payment shall be filed on prescribed forms in accordance with instructions on the forms. These forms may be obtained from any RFC Loan Agency.

(2) Each claim for payment shall be filed on or before the last day of the month following the end of the month in which the production occurred and shall include all of the production of that month and no other.

(3) Each claim for payment shall be filed with RFC at the Loan Agency for the district in which the plant is located, except that a producer operating more than one plant shall simultaneously file the claims for all of his plants at the Loan Agency for the district in which his main office is located.

(4) No claim under this section shall be assignable except as a part of a bona fide transfer of the plant to a legal successor.

(g) Payment—(1) Review by RFC. In reviewing applications for quota and claims for payment, the RFC will determine whether such applications and claims appear to have been correctly and properly prepared.

(2) Terms of payment. If the claim or any part thereof is accepted by RFC subject to final verification, RFC will then pay the applicant that part of the claim so accepted: Provided, however, That with respect to claims for the months of April and May, 1947, RFC may require that bond be furnished in form and amount satisfactory to it before making payment thereon. Preliminary acceptance and payment of a claim shall not constitute final acceptance of the validity or amount of the claim. If, after review or audit, there is cause to question the validity of any claim, RFC may (i) Require that bond be furnished in form and amount satisfactory to it before making further payments, or, (ii) Suspend further payments.

(3) Verification of claims. (i) Upon receipt of applications for quota and claims for payment, RFC will forward copies to the Expediter for verification and such investigation or audit as may be deemed appropriate.

(ii) If the amount verified and approved by the Expediter is less than the amount previously paid, the claimant shall upon demand by RFC refund the overage to RFC together with interest thereon at the rate of 4 percent per annum calculated from the date of such overpayment to the date repayment is made to the RFC or such overage plus interest may be deducted from any accrued or subsequent claim for any payment by RFC to the claimant.

(iii) In the event that the Expediter establishes a combined quota under paragraph (c) (2) of this section, payment shall be made on the basis of the amount by which total production of those plants whose quotas have been combined exceeds the total quotas of these plants.

(4) Invalidation of claims. The Expediter shall have the right at any time to declare invalid any claim of a producer, and such producer shall upon demand refund to RFC any payment on such claim, if the Expediter finds that the producer has failed: (i) To comply with any of the requirements of this section, or (ii) To accept a rated order for structural clay products as required by the applicable priorities regulations of CPA or OHE or has sold structural clay products at prices in excess of the ceiling prices established by the applicable OPA regulations or orders.

(h) Records. Every producer shall prepare and preserve for inspection for a period of not less than two years after the date of termination of this section, all books, records and other documents which furnish information in support of his applications for quota and claims for payment. The Expediter or his designated agents shall have the right at any time to make such examinations and audits of these books, records and other documents as may be necessary to verify the representations in producer's applications for quota and claims for payment or as may be required by the Expediter.

(i) Official interpretations. Official interpretations of this section may be given only in writing by the General Counsel of the Office of the Expediter or his duly authorized representative. A request for an official interpretation must be filed in writing directly with the Expediter or the General Counsel.

(j) Termination. This section shall terminate on May 31, 1947. Such termination shall not preclude the filing of claims for payment during the month following such termination on account of production during the immediately preceding months. Such claims shall be dealt with in accordance with the provisions of this section in the same manner as if it had not been terminated. In the event that CPA price ceilings cease to be applicable to the sale of structural clay products, the Expediter may terminate this section on such terms and conditions as he may deem proper.

(k) Effective date. This section shall become effective as of June 1, 1946.

NOTE: The reporting and record-keeping requirements of this regulation have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

PART 944—REGULATIONS APPLICABLE TO THE OPERATION OF THE PRIORITIES SYSTEM

[Priorities Reg. 13, Direction 20]

DISPOSAL OF CERTAIN SURPLUS MATERIALS FOR USE IN MAKING MEN'S SUITS AND OVERCOATS

The following direction is issued pursuant to Priorities Regulation 13:

(a) Purpose. There is an urgent need for fabrics suitable for use in making men's suits and men's overcoats, since sufficient fabrics for this purpose are not readily obtainable in sufficient quantities from new production. The purpose of this direction is to make available certain surplus fabrics for use only in making men's suits or overcoats (in all sizes), for civilian sale. It does not permit the use of the fabrics for making suits, overcoats or topcoats in students, cadets or junior models, or for making separate trousers, or separate coats, or topcoats.

This direction controls the disposal of the quantities of fabrics held by the War Assets Administration as surplus property and listed on Schedule A to this direction. Additional quantities of fabrics may be added to Schedule A from time to time as they become available.

The direction permits sales of such fabrics to be made by WAA in either of these ways only: the fabrics may be sold to persons who will use them only to make men's suits or overcoats; or the fabrics may be sold to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for resale to persons who will use the fabrics only to make such men's apparel for civilian sale.

Although this direction restricts sales to persons who will use or dispose of the fabrics for the purposes specified, it does not prohibit WAA from making sales, to the persons and for the purposes specified, upon such other terms and in such quantities as WAA may determine; and preference ratings have no effect upon any sales which may be made by WAA, either by way of obliging it to sell or by way of determining, as among the several buyers permitted by this direction, who shall get the materials from WAA.

(b) Persons who may purchase. No person may buy from WAA or from RFC any of the surplus fabrics listed in Schedule A, and WAA or RFC may not sell any of such fabrics, unless the purchaser will use the fabrics to make men's suits or overcoats for civilian sale. WAA may sell to the RFC for resale under the provisions of Section 18 of the Surplus Property Act of 1944, as amended, to persons who will use the fabrics to make men's suits or overcoats.

In order to buy materials under this direction, a purchaser from WAA or RFC must be in a position to have such materials completed into men's suits or overcoats within 120 days from the date he first receives such materials, and to dispose of the apparel promptly after completion in accordance with any ceiling or other prices which may be fixed or required by regulations of the Office of Price Administration.

(c) Any person purchasing any of the fabrics listed in Schedule A from WAA or RFC must give substantially the following certification with his purchase order to WAA or to RFC (as the case may be):

> The undersigned certifies to the seller and CPA, subject to the criminal penalties of section 35A of the United States Criminal Code, that he will use the fabric obtained under this purchase order only to make men's suits or overcoats, for civilian sale, in accordance with Direction 20 to Priorities Regulation 13 of the CPA.

The standard certification in Priorities Regulation 7 may not be used instead of this certificate.

(d) Obligations of persons giving certificates. Any person giving the certificate described above may obtain and use the fabric he gets with the certificate only in accordance with its terms.

Chapter XVIII—Office of Economic Stabilization

[Directive 124]

FROZEN VEGETABLES

The Secretary of Agriculture and the Price Administrator have submitted to me information with respect to payments of subsidies on the sale of the 1946 pack of certain frozen vegetables and on the utilization of certain frozen vegetables of the 1946 pack and with respect to the establishment of maximum prices for the 1946 pack of such commodities. I hereby find that the measures hereinafter authorized and directed to be taken by the Secretary of Agriculture and the Price Administrator will effectuate the purposes of the stabilization program.

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in me by the Stabilization Act of 1942, as amended, and by Executive Order 9250 of October 3, 1942 (7 F.R. 7871), Executive Order 9328 of April 8, 1943 (8 F.R. 4681), Executive Order 9599 of August 18, 1945 (10 F.R. 10155), Executive Order 9651 of October 30, 1945 (10 F.R. 13487), Executive Order 9697 of February 14, 1946 (11 F.R. 1691), and Executive Order 9699 of February 21, 1946 (11 F.R. 1929), It is hereby ordered:

1. The Office of Price Administration is hereby authorized and directed:

a. To maintain or establish maximum prices for sales to purchasers other than Government procurement agencies of the 1946 pack of frozen sweet corn, except frozen corn on the cob, frozen green peas, and frozen mixed vegetables containing one or both of these two vegetables, which are computed on the basis of applicable resale prices of the 1943 purchase and resale program of the Commodity Credit Corporation; and

b. To maintain or establish maximum prices for sales to Government procurement agencies for the 1946 pack of frozen sweet corn, except frozen corn on the cob, frozen green peas, and frozen mixed vegetables containing one or both of these two vegetables which are computed on the basis of the applicable 1946 designated area average prices specified in Schedule A (attached hereto and by this reference made a part hereof) or the weighted average of the applicable actual prices paid by the respective freezer for sweet corn and green peas for freezing, whichever is the lesser.

2. The Department of Agriculture is hereby authorized and directed to make subsidy payments out of funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation on frozen sweet corn (except frozen corn on the cob), frozen green peas, and frozen mixed vegetables containing one or both of these two vegetables produced during the period February 2, 1946, through June 30, 1946, and eligibly sold to purchasers other than Government procurement agencies during the period February 2, 1946, through June 30, 1946, or such later date as the Department of Agriculture may specify, or used by the processor thereof in actually producing any other food product during the period of eligible sales. Rates of payment shall be based upon the amounts by which the applicable 1946 designated area average prices specified in Schedule A, which are the same as those announced by the U. S. Department of Agriculture for these vegetables for freezing, exceed the applicable 1943 resale price of the Commodity Credit Corporation: Provided, That subsidy payments shall be reduced on any item to a processor who pays less than the designated area average price specified in Schedule A.

If any product subsidized in accordance with this directive is suspended or exempted from price control, sales of such product to purchasers other than Government procurement agencies made after such suspension or exemption goes into effect shall not subsidized: Provided, That, this provision in no way prevents recapture of subsidy payments to avoid windfalls.

Issued and effective this 19th day of June 1946.

CHESTER BOWLES,
Director.

REROUTING LAKE CARGO COAL TO CANADA

At a session of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Division 3, held at its office in Washington, D. C., on the 19th day of June A. D. 1946.

It appearing, that a dispute has arisen between the management and the employees on the lake cargo carriers operating under Canadian registry on the Great Lakes and that the vessels of said carriers plying between Charlotte Dock, Rochester, N. Y., Sodus Point, N. Y. and the Canadian ports have ceased operation stopping the transportation by lake vessel of coal in bulk from Charlotte Dock and Sodus Point, N. It is ordered, that:

(a) Rerouting coal from Pennsylvania and West Virginia. Upon reconsignment by the owners of the coal, from points of origin in the States of Pennsylvania and West Virginia, originating on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, The Pennsylvania Railroad and their short line connections moving via those carriers, now held at Charlotte Dock and Sodus Point, N. Y. or in transit thereto, those carriers are hereby directed to forward that coal via Genesee Dock, Ontario Car Ferry in connection with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, or via all-rail routes to junctions with the Canadian railroads so that it may move therefrom to Canadian destinations.

(b) Rates to be applied. The rate applicable to traffic so forwarded shall be the lowest all-rail rate which was applicable via any all-rail route from origin to final destination in tariffs lawfully on file with this Commission in effect on date of original shipment.

ROCKFORD FURNITURE CO.

ADJUSTMENT OF CEILING PRICES

For the reasons set forth in an opinion issued simultaneously herewith and filed with the Division of the Federal Register, and pursuant to sections 15 and 16 of Revised Supplementary Order No. 119, it is ordered:

(a) Manufacturer's ceiling prices. Rockford Furniture Company, 1009 West Jefferson Street, Rockford, Ill., may compute its adjusted ceiling prices for all articles of wood household furniture which it manufactures, as follows:

(1) For an article in its line during October 1941, the adjusted ceiling price is the highest price charged during that month to each class of purchaser increased by 24.8 per cent.

(2) For an article not in its line during October 1941, but which has a properly established ceiling price, in effect before the effective date of this order, the adjusted ceiling price is the article's properly established ceiling price for the particular sale (exclusive of all permitted increases or adjustment charges) increased by the percentage determined in accordance with "Note 3" in section 8 of Revised Supplementary Order No. 119.

(3) For an article which is first offered for sale after the effective date of this order, the adjusted ceiling price is the maximum price hereafter properly determined or established in accordance with Maximum Price Regulation No. 188; and prices so fixed may not be increased under this order.

(4) The manufacturer's adjusted ceiling price fixed in accordance with this order is his new ceiling price if it is higher than his previously established ceiling price including all increases and adjustments otherwise authorized for him individually or for his industry.

(b) Resellers' ceiling prices. Resellers of an article which the manufacturer has sold at an adjusted ceiling price determined under this order shall determine their maximum prices as follows:

(1) A retailer who must determine his ceiling price under Maximum Price Regulation No. 580 and a wholesaler who must determine his ceiling price under Maximum Price Regulation No. 590, shall calculate their ceiling prices in the manner provided by those regulations. However, if the supplier's invoice states both an "unadjusted maximum price" and a selling price, the reseller shall compute his ceiling prices under those regulations as they have been modified by Order No. 4800 under § 1499.159b of Maximum Price Regulation No. 188.

(2) A reseller who determines his maximum resale price under the General Maximum Price Regulation, and whose supplier's invoice states both an "unadjusted maximum price" and a selling price, shall compute his ceiling prices under that regulation as modified by Order No. 4800 under § 1499.159b of Maximum Price Regulation No. 188.

If his supplier's invoice does not state an "unadjusted maximum price" the reseller shall calculate his ceiling price by adding to his invoice cost the same percentage mark-up which he has on the "most comparable article" for which he has a properly established ceiling price. For this purpose, the "most comparable article" is the one which meets all of the following tests:

(i) It belongs to the narrowest trade category which includes the article being priced.

(ii) Both it and the article being priced were purchased from the same class of supplier.

(iii) Both it and the article being priced belong to a class of article to which, according to customary trade practices, an approximately uniform percentage mark-up is applied.

(iv) Its net replacement cost is nearest to the net cost of the article being priced.

The determination of a ceiling price in this way need not be reported to the Office of Price Administration; however, each seller must keep complete records showing all the information called for by OPA Form 620–759 with regard to how he determined his ceiling price, for so long as the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, remains in effect.

If the maximum resale price cannot be determined under the above method, the reseller shall apply to the Office of Price Administration for the establishment of a ceiling price under § 1499.3 (c) of the General Maximum Price Regulation. Ceiling prices established under that section will reflect the supplier's prices as adjusted in accordance with this order.

(3) The provisions of Supplementary Order No. 153 shall not apply to the determination of ceiling prices for resales of articles covered by this order.

(c) Terms of sale. Ceiling prices adjusted by this order are subject to each seller's terms, discounts, and allowances on sales to each class of purchaser in effect during March 1942, or thereafter, properly established under OPA regulations.

(d) Notification. At the time of, or prior to the first invoice to a purchaser for resale on and after the effective date of this order, showing prices adjusted in accordance with this order, the seller shall notify the purchaser in writing of the method established in paragraph (b) of this order for determining adjusted maximum prices for resales of the articles. This notice may be given in any convenient form.

(e) All requests for adjustment of maximum prices not specifically granted by this order are hereby denied.

(f) This order may be revoked or amended by the Price Administrator at any time.

This order shall become effective June 20, 1946.

Administrator.

Standard Gas and Electric Company ("Standard"), a registered holding company, having filed a declaration and amendments thereto pursuant to section 12 (d) of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 and Rules U-44 and U-50 thereunder regarding the following proposed transaction:

Standard proposes to sell all of the 312,000 shares (being all of the presently issued and outstanding shares) of common stock, without par value, of The California Oregon Power Company ("Copco"), a California corporation. The sale of such shares of common stock is to be made at competitive bidding pursuant to Rule U-50 of this Commission. Standard will apply the net proceeds of the aforesaid sale toward the payment of interest and principal on its promissory notes dated April 10, 1946, issued to banks under the Bank Loan Agreement of Standard dated December 31, 1945, as later amended (copies of which are now on file with this Commission, File No. 70–1211). Standard represents that such sale is for the purpose of enabling it to comply with the provisions of subdivision (b) of section 11 of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 and with the order of the Commission dated August 8, 1941, issued pursuant thereto (File No. 59–9), and asks that the Commission in its order find that the proposed sale is necessary or appropriate to effectuate the provisions of section 11 (b) (1) of said act and make the specifications and itemizations necessary in order that sections 371 (b) (371 (f) and 1808 (f) of the Internal Revenue Code shall be applicable.

Said declaration having been filed on May 20, 1946, a notice of filing having been duly given in the manner and form prescribed by Rule U-23 under the act, and the Commission not having received a request for hearing with respect to the declaration within the period specified in such notice or otherwise and not having ordered a hearing thereon; and

The Commission deeming it appropriate in the public interest and in the interest of investors and consumers to permit said declaration to become effective and finding with respect to said declaration that the requirements of section 12 (d) are satisfied;

It is hereby ordered, That pursuant to Rule U-23 and the applicable provisions of the act said declaration be and the same is hereby permitted to become effective forthwith subject to the terms and conditions prescribed in Rule U-24 and subject to the further condition that the sale of the stock shall not be consummated until the results of the competitive bidding pursuant to Rule U-50 have been supplied by amendment and a further order shall have been entered, which order may contain such further terms and conditions as may then be deemed appropriate; jurisdiction is hereby reserved for the entry of such order and the imposition of such terms and conditions.

It is further ordered, And the Commission finds, that the proposed sale and transfer of 312,000 shares of common stock, without par value, of Copco now held by Standard Gas and Electric Company, is in accordance with and in obedience to the aforesaid order of the Commission dated August 8, 1941, which order found that the divestment by Standard Gas and Electric Company of its interest in Copco was necessary and appropriate for the purpose of bringing about compliance by Standard Gas and Electric Company with section 11 (b) (1) of said act; and the said 312,000 shares of common stock of Copco are hereby specified and itemized as being included in the holdings of securities named in said order dated August 8, 1941.

hereby vests in the Alien Property Custodian the property described above, to be held, used, administered, liquidated, sold or otherwise dealt with in the interest and for the benefit of the United States.

Such property and any or all of the proceeds thereof shall be held in an appropriate account or accounts, pending further determination of the Alien Property Custodian. Any person, except a national of a designated enemy country, asserting any claim arising as a result of this order may, within one year from the date hereof, or within such further time as may be allowed, file with the Alien Property Custodian on Form APC-1 a notice of claim, together with a request for a hearing thereon. Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to constitute an admission of the existence, validity or right to allowance of any such claim.

And determining that to the extent that such national is a person not within a designated enemy country, the national interest of the United States requires that such person be treated as a national of a designated enemy country (Germany);

And having made all determinations and taken all action required by law, including appropriate consultation and certification, and deeming it necessary in the national interest, hereby vests in the Alien Property Custodian the property described above, to be held, used, administered, liquidated, sold or otherwise dealt with in the interest and for the benefit of the United States.

Such property and any or all of the proceeds thereof shall be held in an appropriate account or accounts, pending further determination of the Alien Property Custodian. This order shall not be deemed to constitute an admission by the Alien Property Custodian of the lawfulness of, or acquiescence in, or licensing of, any set-offs, charges or deductions, nor shall it be deemed to limit the power of the Alien Property Custodian to return such property or the proceeds thereof in whole or in part, nor shall it be deemed to indicate that compensation will not be paid in lieu thereof, if and when it should be determined to take any one or all of such actions.

Any person, except a national of a designated enemy country, asserting any claim arising as a result of this order may, within one year from the date hereof, or within such further time as may be allowed, file with the Alien Property Custodian on Form APC-1 a notice of claim, together with a request for a hearing thereon. Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to constitute an admission of the existence, validity or right to allowance of any such claim.

The terms "national" and "designated enemy country" as used herein shall have the meanings prescribed in section 10 of Executive Order No. 9095, as amended.

records on which their names appear, including statements of reasons for passing over employees with lower standing on the retention list. Each appeal should set forth whether it is based upon an error in the records, an incorrect efficiency rating, violation of the rules of selection, restriction of the competitive area or competitive level, disregard of a specified right under the law or regulations, or denial of right to examine regulations, retention register, or records.

The question of an incorrect efficiency rating presented in a reduction in force appeal will be considered by the Commission only where the employee has made use of such appellate procedures as were provided by his agency for the administrative review of the rating at issue during such time limits as these procedures were available, or in the case of an employee in a position subject to the Classification Act, as amended, where he appealed such rating to the appropriate board of review established under the authority of section 9 of such act. However, appeals will be accepted by the Commission in any case where adverse actions are proposed to be taken too soon to permit diligent use of efficiency rating appeal procedures, where because of the urgency of the case it is impracticable to await the decision under the administrative review or board of review procedures, where employees were misinformed as to their rights under such procedure, or where coercive measures were employed to prevent recourse to such procedures.

PART 22—REGULATIONS GOVERNING APPEALS OF PREFERENCE ELIGIBLES UNDER THE VETERANS' PREFERENCE ACT OF 1944

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS

1. Section 22.1 (b) Adverse decisions which may be appealed (9 F.R. 13189) is revoked.

2. Section 22.2 (c) Status of an employee during period of advance notice (9 F.R. 13189, 10 F.R. 2169) is amended as follows:

(c) Status of an employee during period of advance notice. The advance written notice which is required when a proposed adverse action is sought by an employing agency shall be submitted to the employee at least thirty (30) days before the effective date of such proposed action, and during such thirty (30) day period the employee shall continue in an active duty status; but in cases of furlough without pay due to unforeseeable circumstances such as sudden breakdowns in equipment, acts of God or emergencies requiring immediate curtailment of activities, advance notice shall not be necessary.

In exceptional cases where the circumstances are such that the retention of the employee is an active duty status during the thirty (30) day period may result in damage to Government property, would be otherwise detrimental to the interests of the Government, or would be injurious to the employee, his fellow workers or the general public, and the employee cannot during such period be temporarily assigned to duties in which these conditions would not exist, he shall be placed on annual leave; Provided, He has sufficient annual leave to his credit to cover the required period, and otherwise, suspended for such period or periods during the thirty (30) days as the circumstances warrant; Provided, That a certificate is filed by the administrative officer in the records of the employing agency setting forth the specific circumstances in such exceptional cases. The reasonableness of such exceptions, including suspensions, will be considered in connection with the entire case in the event that the employee subsequently appeals from the final adverse decision reached by the administrative officer.

3. Section 22.4 Appeals to the Commission (9 F.R. 13189, 10 F.R. 2169) is amended by the addition of a paragraph as follows:

(c) Appeals based solely on efficiency ratings. Appeals from adverse actions based solely on efficiency ratings will be considered by the Commission only where the employees have made use of such appellate procedures as were provided by their agencies for the administrative review of the ratings at issue during such time limits as these procedures were available, or in the case of employees in positions subject to the Classification Act, as amended, where they appealed such ratings to appropriate boards of review established under the authority of section 9 of such act. However, appeals will be accepted by the Commission in any case where adverse actions are proposed to be taken too soon to permit diligent use of efficiency rating appeal procedures, where because of the urgency of the case it is impracticable to await the decision under the administrative review or board of review procedures, where employees were misinformed as to their rights under such procedures, or where coercive measures were employed to prevent recourse to such procedures.

PART 27—TEMPORARY CIVIL SERVICE REGULATIONS

PROBATIONARY APPOINTMENT

Section 27.7 (d) (11 F.R. 1429) is amended as follows:

§ 27.7 Certification • • •

(d) Probationary appointment. A person selected for appointment shall be duly notified by the appointing officer and upon accepting and reporting for duty shall receive from such officer a notice of probationary appointment. The first year of service under this appointment shall be a probationary period: Provided, That employees who enter the military service during probation will, upon restoration to their civilian positions, be given credit toward completion of probation for time served in the military service: Provided further, That an employee appointed under this regulation or under § 27.8 (e), or classified under section 6 of Executive Order 9691 shall be credited, for purposes of completing probation, with all continuous service under war service indefinite appointment which was rendered immediately preceding probationary appointment or classification and which was in the same line of work and in the same agency as the position to which probationally appointed or in which classified. Under this section, continous service shall be defined as service without a break of 30 calendar days or more. If and when, after a full and fair trial, the conduct, capacity or efficiency of the probationer is not satisfactory to the appointing officer, the probationer shall, prior to the completion of his probationary period, be so notified in writing, with a statement of reasons, and this notice shall terminate his service.

A probationer voluntarily or involuntarily separated from the service without delinquency or misconduct may be restored to the register of eligibles for the remainder of any period of eligibility thereon whenever in the opinion of the Commission he is suitable and eligible for further Federal employment.

TITLE 7—AGRICULTURE

Chapter III—Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine

[Quarantine No. 63]

PART 301—DOMESTIC QUARANTINE NOTICES

WHITE-PINE BLISTER RUST QUARANTINE

Introductory note. This revision of the quarantine and regulations reduces the areas into which the interstate movement of five-leaved pines is regulated; provides for unrestricted interstate movement of gooseberry and currant plants, other than European black currants, into all portions of the United States outside of control areas (embracing five-leaved pine stands which are being safeguarded from infection by the white-pine blister rust disease) as designated in administrative instructions by the Chief of the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine; and eliminates the former requirement that gooseberry and currant plants be shipped in a dormant or defoliated condition, or be disinfected prior to shipment when consigned to certain States.

Notice of determination of the Secretary of Agriculture. The Secretary of Agriculture has determined that it is necessary further to revise the white-pine blister rust quarantine (7 CFR 301.63 [B. E. P. Q.-Q. 63]) and regulations supplemental thereto which were last revised effective July 1, 1938 (7 CFR Cum. Supp. 301.63-1 et seq.) in order to permit unrestricted interstate movement of gooseberry and currant plants, other than European black currants, into those portions of the United States not included in control areas; to provide for the designation of the control areas and stipulation of the conditions for interstate movement of gooseberry and currant plants thereto by the Chief of the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine through administrative instructions; and to make other modifications. The quarantine and regulations are therefore hereby revised to read as follows:

Sec.
301.63 Notice of quarantine.
301.63-1 Definitions.
301.63-2 Quarantined area.
301.63-3 Control areas.
301.63-4 Regulated articles.
301.63-5 Conditions governing interstate movement of regulated articles.
301.63-6 Conditions governing the issuance and use of white-pine certificates and control-area permits.
301.63-7 Cancellation of white-pine certificates and control-area permits.
301.63-8 Inspection and disposition.
301.63-9 Shipments for scientific or educational purposes.

AUTHORITY: §§ 301.63 to 301.63-9, inclusive, issued under sec. 8, 37 Stat. 318, 39 Stat. 1165, 44 Stat. 250; 7 U.S.C. 161.

§ 301.63 Notice of quarantine. The Secretary of Agriculture having given the public hearing required by law, quarantines each and every State of the continental United States and the District of Columbia, in order to prevent the further spread of the white-pine blister rust, a destructive disease of five-leaved pines caused by Cronartium ribicola Fischer, and for this purpose regulates the interstate movement of host plants of this disease, namely, five-leaved pines, gooseberries and currants. Hereafter no five-leaved pines (Pinus) or currants or gooseberries (Ribes or Grossularia), either wild or cultivated, shall be moved or allowed to be moved interstate from any State or from the District of Columbia into any other State, or from any State into the District of Columbia, except under conditions prescribed in regulations supplemental hereto, in amendments thereof, or in administrative instructions of the Chief of the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine as hereinafter provided: Provided, That as a condition to the regulation, under this quarantine, of the interstate movement into the noninfected portion of a partially infected State, of five-leaved pines which are not visibly infected with white-pine blister rust, or of the interstate movement of gooseberries or currants (other than European black currants), into any entire State, or portion thereof, which may be designated as a control-area, such State shall be required to provide for the control of the intrastate movement of the regulated articles under conditions comparable to those which apply to their interstate movement under provisions of the Federal quarantine regulations currently existing and to enforce such other control and sanitation measures with respect to such areas or portions thereof as, in the judgment of the Secretary of Agriculture, shall be deemed adequate for local control of the disease: Provided further, That whenever the Chief of the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine shall find that existing conditions as to the pest risk involved in the movement of the regulated articles to which the regulations supplemental hereto apply, make it safe to modify by making less stringent the restrictions contained in any such regulations, he shall set forth and publish such findings in administrative instructions, specifying the manner in which the applicable regulations shall be made less stringent, whereupon such modifications shall become effective for such period and for such quarantined or protected area or portions thereof as shall be specified in said administrative instructions, and every reasonable effort shall be made to give publicity to such administrative instructions throughout the affected areas.

§ 301.63-1 Definitions. For the purpose of this subpart the following words, names, and terms shall be construed, respectively to mean:

(a) White-pine blister rust, or blister rust. The fungus disease caused by Cronartium ribicola Fischer.

(b) Five-leaved pines. Plants of the following species belonging to the genus Pinus:

American species:
Ayacahuite pine (P. Ayacahuite Ehrenb.)
Bristlecone pine (P. aristata Engelm.)
Foxtail pine (P. balfouriana Murr.)

Five-leaved pines may not be moved interstate into the above-described areas from any other part of the United States except when intended for reforestation purposes and when they have been grown into a nursery protected from blister rust infection and when accompanied by a white-pine certificate issued for such movement by the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine.

(2) There are no restrictions on the interstate movement of five-leaved pines and parts thereof into or within that part of the continental United States outside of the areas described in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph: Provided, That the interstate movement anywhere within the continental United States of five-leaved pines and parts thereof when visibly infected with blister rust is prohibited except when intended for scientific or educational purposes and when authorized, safeguarded, and labeled in accordance with § 301.63-9.

(b) European black currants. European black currant plants (Ribes nigrum L.) may be moved interstate without restriction into and between the States of Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Kansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota, and Texas. (b) Control-area permits. Control-area permits may be issued for the interstate movement of gooseberry and currant plants, except for European black currants, into control areas as designated in administrative instructions of the Chief of the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine when the planting locations are not within infective distance of protected pine and movement thereto of such plants is not prohibited. Applications for control-area permits shall be made to the Federal representative in the State of destination as designated in the administrative instructions, giving names and addresses of consignee and consignor and kind and number of plants to be shipped.

(c) Use of certificates and permits. White-pine certificates or control-area permits, when required as a condition of interstate movement of regulated articles, must be securely attached to the outside of each container of regulated articles, except that for carload and other bulk shipments by rail, the certificate or permit shall accompany the vehicle and be surrendered to the consignee on delivery of the shipment.

§ 301.63-7 Cancellation of white-pine certificates and control-area permits. White-pine certificates and control-area permits issued under the provisions of this subpart may be withdrawn or cancelled by the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine for failure of compliance with the conditions of this part, or whenever the further use of such certificates or permits might result in the spread of the white-pine blister rust.

§ 301.63-8 Inspection and disposition. Any car or other conveyance, and any package or other container moving or having been moved interstate, which contains or which the inspector has probable cause to believe contains articles the movement of which is prohibited or regulated may be examined by an inspector at any time or place. When articles are found to be moving interstate in violation of this subpart the inspector may take such action as is authorized by the Plant Quarantine Act to the extent deemed necessary to eliminate the danger of spread of the disease.

§ 301.63-9 Shipments for scientific or educational purposes. Regulated articles may be moved interstate for scientific or educational purposes under such conditions and safeguards as may be prescribed by the Chief of the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine. The container of articles so moved shall bear securely attached to the outside thereof a special permit, issued for such movement by the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine.

This revision shall be effective on and after July 1, 1946, and shall on that date supersede the quarantine and regulations effective July 1, 1938.

Chapter VII—Production and Marketing Administration (Agricultural Adjustment)

[Bull. NSCP-1001, Supp. 1]

SUBPART G—1946

1. Section 706.704 Conditions of payment; performance required is amended in the following respects:

a. Paragraph (a) (1) is amended to read as follows:

(1) No face shall be installed on any tree less than 9 inches d. b. h. and not more than one face shall be installed on any tree less than 14 inches d. b. h. These requirements shall not apply to any tree having a worked-out face (60 inches or more in height, or a dry face) which remains idle during the 1946 turpentine season. However, if faces are unintentionally installed on undersized trees, or were so installed during the 1945 season, the producer shall detach all cups and tins from the faces on such undersized trees within time limits established by the Forest Service, and there shall be deducted from his earned payment ½ cent per face for each face on proper sized trees in each drift (or in each tract which is not subdivided into drifts) in which faces on undersized trees were so installed unless such deduction was made under a previous program.

b. Paragraph (c) (2) is amended to read as follows:

(2) Areas being worked for naval stores may be burned but such burning shall be conducted in a manner that will prevent the destruction of established young growth and the escape of fire to adjacent land. On fee-owned land when the burning reduces the stand to less than 200 thrifty pine trees per acre or destroys established pine reproduction in stands having less than 200 pine trees per acre before burning, a deduction of $1.00 per acre will be made for each such acre in excess of 5 acres or 2% of the area burned whichever is the greater. On lands supporting trees leased and operated for naval stores when burning in any tract or drift reduces the stand to less than 200 thrifty pine trees per acre or destroys established pine reproduction in stands having less than 200 pine trees per acre before burning a deduction of 40% of the payment earned for the faces in the tract or drift will be made. When fire set by the producer is allowed to escape to adjacent forest land and effective suppression action is not taken a deduction of 50¢ per acre will be made for each acre burned on adjacent land.

c. Paragraph (c) (3) is amended to read as follows:

(3) On fee-owned land not being worked for naval stores, controlled (prescribed) burning may be practiced only on adequately stocked land (200 or more established pine trees per acre). When such burning reduces the stand to less than 200 thrifty pine trees per acre a deduction of $1.00 per acre will be made for each such acre in excess of 5 acres or 2% of the area burned whichever is greater. When inadequately stocked fee-owned land not being worked for naval stores is burned and there is no evidence that effective suppression action was taken a deduction of 10¢ per acre for each acre so burned will be made. When fire set by the producer is allowed to escape to adjacent land and effective suppression action is not taken a deduction of 50¢ per acre will be made for each acre burned on adjacent land.

d. Paragraph (d) (6) is amended to read as follows:

(6) When cutting operations in timber stands owned by the producer do not meet the above timber cutting requirements or are contrary to good forestry practice, a deduction of $5.00 per acre will be made for each acre of unsatisfactory cutting in excess of 5 acres or 1% of the cutover area whichever is the greater.

e. Paragraph (d) (8) is amended to read as follows:

(8) When any trees having faces worked under this program are cut, payment for all faces in the tract or drift may be denied if the Forest Service finds insufficient evidence at the time of inspection to determine the average number of streaks placed on the faces in the tract or drift from which the trees were cut.

f. Section 706.704 is further amended by striking out paragraph (e) (4).

2. Section 706.711 is amended to read as follows:

§ 706.711 Administration. The Forest Service shall have charge of the administration of this program and is hereby authorized to make such determinations and to prepare and issue such bulletins, instructions, and forms as may be required to administer this program (subject to the approval of the Bureau of the Budget pursuant to the Federal Reports Act of 1942) pursuant to the provisions hereof, and the field work shall be administered by the Forest Service through the office of the Regional Forester, United States Forest Service, Glenn Building, Atlanta, Georgia. The procedural requirements of §§ 706.704 and 706.705, such for example as those relating to notice of proposed action and consent thereto, may be waived by the Forest Service when in its judgment such waiver does not otherwise materially affect compliance with program practices. Information concerning this program may be secured from the Program Supervisor, Central Field Office of the Forest Service, Valdosta, Georgia, or from any local Inspector of the Forest Service.

Chapter XI—Production and Marketing Administration (War Food Distribution Orders)

PART 1220—FEED

PROTEIN MEAL QUOTAS.

War Food Order No. 9, as amended (11 F.R. 669, 2215, 2436, 4383), is further amended by deleting paragraphs (b) and (c), and substituting in lieu thereof the following:

(b) Restrictions on mixed feed manufacturers. No mixed feed manufacturer shall, during any calendar quarter, use protein meal in the manufacture of mixed feed in excess of a quota equal to the larger of the two following amounts:

(1) 85 percent of the quantity of protein meal used by such manufacturer in the manufacture of mixed feed during the corresponding calendar quarter of 1945;

No limitation shall be imposed with respect to the use of such quota as between the manufacture of poultry feed and the manufacture of livestock feed. In computing the quantity of protein meal which may be used under this paragraph (b), any urea used in the manufacture of mixed feed shall be counted as protein meal at the rate of six (6) tons of protein meal per ton of urea, Provided, further, That any concentrates acquired by a mixed feed manufacturer from cottonseed crushers located in the States of Oklahoma, Louisiana, or Texas (who were authorized to purchase northern soybeans for crushing and who have used such beans in the manufacture of such concentrates) shall be counted as protein meal at the rate of one ton of protein meal per ton of concentrate.

(c) Restrictions on the use of protein meal in poultry feed by persons other than mixed feed manufacturers. No person other than a mixed feed manufacturer shall, during any calendar month, use protein meal in the manufacture of poultry feed in excess of 85 percent of the amount of protein meal so used during the corresponding calendar month of 1945: Provided, however, That any concentrates acquired by such person from cottonseed crushers located in the States of Oklahoma, Louisiana, or Texas (who were authorized to purchase northern soybeans for crushing and who have used such beans in the manufacture of such concentrates) shall be counted as protein meal at the rate of one ton of protein meal per ton of concentrate.

This amendment shall become effective at 12:01 a. m., e. s. t., July 1, 1946. With respect to violations, rights accrued, liabilities incurred, or appeals taken, prior to said date, under War Food Order No. 9, as amended, all provisions of said order shall be deemed to remain in full force for the purpose of sustaining any proper suit, action, or other proceeding with respect to any such violation, right, liability, or appeal.

TITLE 14—CIVIL AVIATION

Chapter I—Civil Aeronautics Board

[Amdt. 06-0]

ROTORCRAFT AIRWORTHINESS

At a session of the Civil Aeronautics Board held at its office in Washington, D. C., on the 24th day of May 1946.

Effective May 24, 1946, the Civil Air Regulations are amended by adding a new Part 06 to read as follows:

Sec.
06.0 General.
06.1 Flight requirements.
06.2 Strength criteria.
06.3 Detail design and construction.
06.4 Power plant installation.
06.5 Equipment.
06.6 Operational data.

§ 06.0 General.

§ 06.00 Scope. In order to become eligible for type and airworthiness certificates, a rotorcraft shall be shown to comply with the airworthiness requirements set forth in this part and shall have no characteristic which, according to the findings of the Administrator, renders the rotorcraft unairworthy; Provided, That:

(a) If any of these requirements become inapplicable to a particular rotorcraft because of increased knowledge of aeronautics or of the development of unforeseen design features, the Administrator shall accept designs shown to provide an equivalent standard of safety.

(b) Requirements of the U. S. Army or Navy, with respect to airworthiness found by the Administrator to provide an equivalent standard of safety, may be accepted in lieu of the requirements set forth in this part.

Unless otherwise specified, compliance with any amendment to this part shall be mandatory only for rotorcraft for which application for a type certificate has been received subsequent to the effective date of such amendment.

§ 06.01 Type certificate. A type certificate will be issued when the following requirements are met:

§ 06.11 Data required for NC and NR certification. The applicant for a type certificate shall submit to the Administrator the following: Such descriptive data, test reports, and computations as are necessary to demonstrate that the rotorcraft complies with the airworthiness requirements. The descriptive data shall be known as the type design and shall consist of drawings and specifications disclosing the configuration of the rotorcraft and all design features covered in the airworthiness requirements as well as sufficient information on dimensions, materials, and processes to define the strength of the structure. The type design shall describe the rotorcraft in sufficient detail to permit the airworthiness of subsequent rotorcraft of the same type to be determined by comparison with the type design.

§ 06.012 Inspection and tests for NC and NR certification. The authorized representatives of the Administrator shall have access to the rotorcraft and may witness or conduct such inspections and tests as are necessary to determine compliance with the airworthiness requirements.

§ 06.0120 Inspection. Inspections and tests shall include all those found necessary by the Administrator to insure that the airplane conforms with the following:

(a) All materials and products are in accordance with the specification given in the type design.

(b) All parts of the rotorcraft are constructed in accordance with the drawings contained in the type design.

(c) All manufacturing processes, construction, and assembly are such that the design strength and safety contemplated by the type design will be realized in service.

§ 06.0121 Flight tests. Upon satisfactory completion of all necessary inspection and testing on the ground, and upon receipt from the applicant of a report of flight tests conducted by him, and satisfactory proof of the conformity of the rotorcraft with the type design, such official flight tests as the Administrator finds necessary to prove compliance with this part shall be conducted.

§ 06.02 Airworthiness certificates. Airworthiness certificates are classified as follows:

(a) NC certificates. In order to become eligible for an NC certificate the rotorcraft shall be shown to comply with all of the requirements contained in this part.

(b) NR certificates. NR certification is applicable to rotorcraft intended to be operated for restricted purposes not logically encompassed by the requirements of this part. In order to be eligible for an NR certificate, a rotorcraft must be shown to comply with all of the requirements of this part which are not rendered inapplicable by the nature of the special purpose involved, and shall be subject to suitable operating restrictions which the Administrator finds will provide a level of safety equivalent to that contemplated for normal purposes by the requirements of this part.

(c) NX certificates. A rotorcraft will become eligible for an NX certificate when the applicant presents satisfactory evidence that the rotorcraft is to be flown for experimental purposes and the Administrator finds that it may, with appropriate restrictions, be operated for that purpose in a manner which does not endanger the general public. Rotorcraft used in racing and exhibition flying may be issued NX certificates under the terms of this section. The applicant shall submit sufficient data such as photographs to identify the rotorcraft satisfactorily and upon inspection of the rotorcraft, any pertinent information found necessary by the Administrator to safeguard the general public.

A rotorcraft manufactured in accordance with a type certificate (see § 06.01) and conforming with the type design will become eligible for an NC airworthiness certificate when, upon inspection of the rotorcraft, the Administrator finds it so to conform and in a condition for safe operation. For each newly manufactured rotorcraft this finding shall include a flight check by the applicant.

For rotorcraft manufactured by holders of a production certificate the issuance of an NC airworthiness certificate shall be dependent upon the provisions of Part 02 of the Civil Air Regulations.

§ 06.03 Changes. Changes shall be substantiated to demonstrate compliance of the rotorcraft with the appropriate airworthiness requirements in effect when the particular rotorcraft was certificated as a type unless the applicant chooses to show compliance with the currently effective requirements subject to the approval of the Administrator, or unless the Administrator finds it necessary to require compliance with current airworthiness requirements.

§ 06.030 Minor changes. Minor changes to certificated rotorcraft which obviously do not impair the condition of the airplane for safe operation shall be approved by the authorized representatives of the Administrator prior to the submittal to the Administrator of any required revised drawings.

§ 06.031 Major changes. A major change is any change not covered by minor changes as defined in § 06.030.

§ 06.032 Service experience changes. When the Administrator finds that service experience indicates the need for design changes, the applicant shall submit for the approval of the Administrator engineering data describing and substantiating the necessary changes. The Administrator may in such cases withhold issuance of airworthiness certificates for additional rotorcraft of the type involved until satisfactory corrective measures have been taken. Upon approval by the Administrator, these changes shall be considered as a part of the type design, and descriptive data covering these changes shall be furnished by the applicant to all rotorcraft owners concerned.

§ 06.0320 In the case of rotorcraft approved as a type under the terms of earlier airworthiness requirements, the Administrator may require that a rotorcraft submitted for an original airworthiness certificate comply with such portions of the currently effective airworthiness requirements as may be necessary for safety.

§ 06.04 Definitions. The following definitions apply to the terms as used in this part.

§ 06.0400 Rotorcraft. Any aircraft deriving its principal lift from one or more rotors.

§ 06.0401 Helicopter. A rotorcraft which depends entirely for its support and motion in the air upon the lift generated by one or more power-driven rotors.

§ 06.0402 Gyroplane. A rotorcraft which depends principally for its support upon the lift generated by one or more rotors which are not power driven, except for initial starting, and which are caused to rotate by the action of the air when the rotorcraft is in motion.

§ 06.0403 Main rotor(s). The main system(s) of rotating airfoils providing sustentation for the rotorcraft.

§ 06.0404 Antitorque rotor. An auxiliary rotor which serves to counteract the effect of the main rotor torque on the rotorcraft.

§ 06.0405 Control rotor. An auxiliary rotor, other than an antitorque rotor, which serves as a device by means of which the rotorcraft can be controlled in flight.

§ 06.0406 Plane of rotor disc. A reference plane at right angles to the mechanical axis of rotation of the rotor.

§ 06.0407 Tip speed ratio. The ratio of the rotorplane flight velocity component in the plane of the rotor disc to the rotational tip speed of the rotor blades.

$$\mu=\frac{V\cos\alpha}{\Omega R}$$

V=airspeed of the rotorcraft along flight path (feet per second)
α=angle between flight path and plane of rotor disc
Ω=angular velocity of rotor (radians per second)
R=rotor radium (feet)

§ 06.0408 Load factor, n. The ratio of any specific load on the rotorcraft to the rotorcraft design weight. When the load in question represents the net external load acting on the aircraft in a given direction, n represents the acceleration in that direction.

§ 06.0409 Limit load. A load which it is assumed, or known, may be experienced but not exceeded in operation. From a design standpoint it is a load which the structure is capable of supporting without detrimental permanent deformations.

§ 06.0410 Factor of safety. A factor by which limit loads are multiplied to obtain ultimate loads.

06.0411 Ultimate load. A load which the structure is capable of carrying without failure. (Equal to the limit load multiplied by the factor of safety.)

§ 06.0412 Primary structure. Those portions of the aircraft the failure of which would seriously endanger the safety of the aircraft.

§ 06.0413 Fittings. Fittings are defined as parts such as end terminals used to connect one structural member to another (see Table 06–1).

§ 06.1 Flight requirements.

§ 06.10 General. All rotorcraft shall have such general performance and flight characteristics as to provide reasonable safety during the execution of any maneuver appropriate to, or necessary for, the aircraft and during steady flight at any weight, center of gravity position, speed, and power within the ranges for which the aircraft is certificated. Compliance with all performance requirements shall be demonstrated by suitable flight tests conducted by the applicant and witnessed by a representative of the Administrator of Civil Aeronautics or, at his discretion, conducted by that representative.

§ 06.11 Landing. It shall be possible to make a safe landing with all power off.

§ 06.2 Strength criteria.

§ 06.20 General. The primary structure shall be capable of supporting the ultimate loads without failure and shall be capable of supporting the limit loads for a period of at least one minute without detrimental permanent deformations.

§ 06.200 Ultimate loads. Ultimate loads are those obtained by multiplying the limit loads by the required factor of safety. The factor of safety shall be 1.5, except in cases where an additional (multiplying) factor of safety is specified. In such cases the final factor of safety shall be equal to 1.5 times the additional factor of safety.

§ 06.201 Additional (multiplying) factors of safety. The additional factors of safety specified in Table 06–1 shall be used where applicable. When more than one additional factor is indicated only the largest need be used.

§ 06.202 Proof of structure. Structural analyses, load tests, flight tests, dynamic tests, or combinations thereof, shall be made for the purpose of providing proof of compliance with the strength criteria.

§ 06.2020 Structural tests. The following structural tests are required and shall be conducted in such manner as to substantiate clearly compliance with the strength criteria:

(a) Dynamic and endurance tests of rotors and rotor drives, including controls (see § 06.420).

(b) Control surface and system tests (limit load and operation tests).

(c) Vibration surveys (see §§ 06.22 and 06.240).

(d) Landing gear drop tests (see § 06.2130).

(e) Such additional tests as may be found necessary by the Administrator to substantiate new and unusual features of the design.

§ 06.21 Structural loading conditions.

§ 06.210 General. The airworthiness rating of a rotorcraft with respect to its strength will be based on the airspeeds, rotor speeds, and load factors which can safely be developed in combination. The simultaneous air and rotor speeds which can safely be developed in combination with the specified load factors shall be determined by the applicant and shall serve as a basis for structural loading conditions and, where found necessary by the Administrator, for restricting the operation of the rotorcraft in flight.

§ 06.211 Design limitations. The following values shall be established by the applicant for purposes of showing compliance with the structural requirements hereinafter specified:

(a) Maximum design weight, W.

(b) Main rotor maximum tip speed ratio, μm. (If the tip speed ratio for a helicopter in the autorotation phase exceeds that for power-driven conditions, then the former value shall be used).

(c) Main rotor(s) maximum design rpm, N.

(d) Auxiliary rotor(s) maximum design rpm. The limitation selected shall be such as to cover safely all normal operating ranges of the aircraft.

§ 06.212 Flight loading condition. The flight load factors specified hereunder will represent rotor load factors. The net load factor acting at the center of gravity of the aircraft shall be obtained by proper consideration of balancing loads acting in the specific flight conditions.

§ 06.2120 Maneuvering flight conditions. The rotorcraft structure shall be substantiated for a positive maneuvering limit load factor of 3.5 (resultant force on the rotor(s) equal to 3.5 times the rotorcraft design weight) and a negative maneuvering limit load factor of 1.0, except that lesser values may be used if the manufacturer can prove by analytical study and flight demonstrations that the values selected cannot be exceeded. In no case shall the limit load factors be less than 2.5 positive and 0.5 negative. The resultant force shall be assumed to be applied at the center(s) of the rotor hub(s) and to act in such directions as necessary to represent all critical maneuvering motions of the rotorcraft applicable to the particular type, including flight at the maximum design rotor tip speed ratio under power-on and power-off conditions.

§ 06.2121 Gust conditions. The structure affected shall be substantiated for the loading due to vertical gusts of ±30 feet per second velocity in conjunction with the critical rotorplane airspeeds, including hovering.

§ 06.213 Ground loading conditions. The structure shall be substantiated for the ground loading conditions specified in the current ANC–2 "Ground Loads Handbook," issued by the Army-Navy-Civil Committee on Aircraft Design Criteria, modified as necessary to suit the type of landing gear employed and character of landing operations undertaken by the rotorcraft. The structure shall be substantiated for a limit load factor not less than two-thirds of the value developed in energy absorption tests specified in § 06.2130.

§ 06.2130 Energy absorption. The landing gear shall be capable of absorbing the energy of a free drop from a height of not less than 20 inches measured from the bottom of the tires to the ground, except that a lesser height may be used if the value chosen can be shown to exceed that corresponding to the greatest probable sinking speed at ground contact in power-off landings likely to be made by pilots of average skill. In no case shall the drop height be less than 12 inches. The weight of the rotor blades may be neglected in the drop test. The maximum drop test acceleration developed at the c. g. shall be determined in the test.

§ 06.22 Main rotor structure. The requirements specified hereunder apply to the main rotor assembly(ies) including hub(s) and blades. The structure shall be substantiated for at least the following loading conditions:

(a) The hub(s), blades, blade attachments and blade controls which are under cyclic flexing or alternating stresses shall be substantiated to demonstrate the airworthiness of these parts under repeated loading conditions, associated with normal operation. The vibration stresses of critical metal parts shall be determined in flight and it shall be demonstrated that these stresses do not exceed safe values for continuous operation.

(b) The main rotor structure shall be substantiated for the critical flight condition loads specified in § 06.212. At least the maximum design tip speed ratio condition shall be considered in conjunction with these limit loadings.

(c) The main rotor structure shall be substantiated for the limit loads specified by § 06.212 under conditions of autorotation necessary for normal operation. The rotor r. p. m. used shall be such as to include the effects of altitude.

(d) The rotor blades, hub(s) and flapping hinges shall be substantiated for a loading condition simulating the force of blade impact against its stop during operation on the ground. A limit load acting at the center of gravity of the blade equal to the weight of the blade multiplied by a factor of 2.67 shall be used.

(e) The strength of the rotor assembly shall be substantiated for loadings simulating other critical conditions which may be encountered under normal operation. These shall include "jump-off", rotor "rev-up", and rotor "over-speed" conditions in flight.

§ 06.23 Fuselage, landing gear, and rotor pylon structure. The requirements specified hereunder apply to the fuselage, landing gear, and rotor pylon structure. The structure shall be substantiated for at least the following loading conditions:

(a) The structure shall be substantiated for the critical loads specified by § 06.212. The resultant rotor force may be represented as a single force applied at the hub attachment point. Consideration shall be given to the balancing and inertia loads occurring under the accelerated flight conditions. The thrust from auxiliary rotors shall also be considered.

(b) The structure shall be substantiated for the ground loads specified by § 06.213.

(c) The engine mount and adjacent fuselage structure shall be substantiated for loads occurring in the rotorcraft under the accelerated flight and landing conditions, including the effect of engine torque loads. In the case of engines having 5 or more cylinders, the limit torque shall be obtained by multiplying the mean torque by a factor of 1.5. For 4, 3, and 2 cylinder engines the factors shall be 2, 3, and 4, respectively.

In addition, auxiliary rotor assemblies with detachable blades shall be tested for one hour at a speed equal to 1.4 times the speed at which the rotor is driven when the engine is operating at its maximum except take-off speed. In the case of auxiliary rotors with metal blades the vibration stresses shall be determined in flight and it shall be demonstrated that these stresses do not exceed safe values for continuous operation.

§ 06.241 Auxiliary rotor attachment structure. The attachment structure for the auxiliary rotors shall be substantiated for a limit load equal to the maximum balancing thrust of the rotor acting simultaneously with other loads on the structure occurring under critical maneuvering flight conditions.

The structure shall also be substantiated separately for a limit load equal to the maximum thrust of the rotor or rotors acting simultaneously with the maximum loads in the structure occurring under normal unaccelerated flight and landing conditions.

§ 06.242 Stabilizing and control surfaces. Stabilizing and control surfaces shall be substantiated for a minimum limit load of 15 pounds per square foot, or for a load due to $C_n = 0.55$ at the maximum design speed, whichever is greater. The load distribution shall closely simulate actual pressure distribution conditions.

§ 06.243 Primary control systems. From the pilot's compartment to the point of their attachment to the rotor blades (or control areas) manual control systems shall be substantiated for the following minimum limit pilot forces:

Baggage compartments shall be designed to withstand loads corresponding to the maximum authorized capacity. The substantiation of the adequacy of the structure to withstand dead weight loads shall include a sufficient number of accelerated flight and landing conditions to insure that the most severe combinations have been investigated.

§ 06.3 Detail design and construction.

§ 06.30 General. The primary structure and all mechanisms essential for the safe operation of the rotorcraft shall not incorporate design details which on the basis of experience the Administrator has found to be unsafe. Certain design features which are essential to the airworthiness of a rotorcraft are hereinafter specified and shall be observed.

§ 06.300 Materials and workmanship. The primary structure shall be made from materials which experience or conclusive facts have proved to be uniform in quality and strength and to be otherwise suitable for rotorcraft construction. Workmanship shall be of sufficiently high grade as to insure proper functioning of all parts under reasonable service conditions.

§ 06.301 Inspection provisions. Means shall be provided to permit the examination of such parts of the rotorcraft as require periodic inspection.

§ 06.302 Design of structural parts. Structural parts shall be designed to avoid stress concentration which may affect adversely the strength of such parts in service, or which may introduce unknown factors into the stress analysis of the structure. Adequate fillets for this purpose shall be provided at all abrupt changes in section. Suitable allowances shall be made in the design for holes and for permissible variations in the location of holes. Joints which are likely to be subjected to appreciable wear shall be designed with replaceable bushings or allowances for oversize bolts or pins.

§ 06.311 Stops. The rotor blades shall be provided with stops, as required for the particular design, to limit the travel of the blades about their various hinges.

NOTE: It is desirable that blades should never hit the droop stops except during starting and stopping the rotor.

§ 06.312 Rotor and blade balance. Rotors and blades shall be mass balanced to the degree necessary to prevent excessive vibrations and to safeguard against flutter at all speeds up to the maximum forward speed.

NOTE: Based on present design, practice blades should be mass balanced at each spanwise station to such a degree that an increase in blade section angle of attack will produce an increase in pitch reducing moment. (Additional general design information on this subject will be provided as experience with various rotorcraft designs is accumulated.)

§ 06.32 Stabilizing and control surfaces.

§ 06.320 Dynamic and static balance. All control surfaces shall be dynamically and statically balanced to the degree necessary to safeguard against flutter at all speeds up to the maximum forward speed.

The concentration of carbon monoxide shall not exceed 1 part in 20,000 parts of air under conditions of forward flight or hovering in zero wind. For other conditions of operation, if the carbon monoxide concentration exceeds this value, suitable operating restrictions shall be provided for the information of the crew.

§ 06.353 Baggage compartments. Each baggage and cargo compartment shall bear a placard stating the maximum allowable weight of contents, as determined by the structural strength of the compartment. Consideration shall be given to the effects of concentrated weights in the baggage compartments. Suitable means shall be provided to prevent the contents of cargo and baggage compartments from shifting.

§ 06.4 Power plant installation.

§ 06.40 General. The power plant installation is considered to include all components of the rotorcraft which are necessary for its propulsion, with the exception of the structure of the main and auxiliary rotors.

All components of the power plant installation shall be constructed and installed in such a manner as to assure safe operation of the rotorcraft and shall be provided with all the controls and accessories necessary to assure such operation. Adequate accessibility shall be provided to permit the inspection and maintenance necessary to assure the continued airworthiness of all components of the power plant installation. Fuel, oil, cooling, or other fluid systems shall be made of materials which, including their normal or inherent impurities, will not react chemically with any fuels, oils, or liquids that are likely to be placed in them.

§ 06.410 Engines. The engine shall be of a type which has been type certificated or otherwise found eligible for use in certificated aircraft. (See Part 13 of this chapter.)

§ 06.411 Engine vibration. The engine shall be installed in a manner to preclude harmful vibration of any engine parts or of components of the rotorcraft. It shall be demonstrated by means of a vibration investigation that the addition of the rotor and rotor drive system to the engine does not result in modification of engine vibration characteristics to the extent that the principal rotating portions of the engine are subjected to excessive vibratory stresses. It shall also be demonstrated that no portion of the rotor drive system is subjected to excessive vibratory stresses.

§ 06.42 Rotor drive mechanism. The rotor drive mechanism shall incorporate a unit which will automatically discharge the rotor drive and engine from the main and auxiliary rotors in the event of power failure. The rotor drive mechanism shall be so arranged that all rotors necessary for control of the rotorcraft in autorotative flight will continue to be driven by the main rotor (a) after disengagement of the engine and rotor drive from the main and auxiliary rotors.

§ 06.420 Rotor drive and control mechanism endurance test. The rotor drive and control mechanism shall be tested for not less than 100 hours. The test shall be conducted on the rotorcraft and the power shall be absorbed by the actual rotors to be installed, except that the use of other ground or flight test facilities with any other suitable method of power absorption will be considered satisfactory provided all conditions of support and vibration closely simulate the conditions that would exist during a test on the actual rotorcraft. The endurance test shall consist of the following:

(a) Sixty hours at not less than maximum continuous engine speed in conjunction with maximum continuous engine power. In this test, the main rotor controls shall be set in the position which will give maximum longitudinal cyclic pitch change to simulate forward flight. The auxiliary rotor controls shall be in the position for normal operation under the conditions of the test.

(b) Thirty hours at not less than 90 percent of maximum continuous engine speed and 75 percent of maximum continuous engine power. The main and auxiliary rotor controls during this test shall be in the same position as for paragraph (a) of this section.

(c) Ten hours at not less than take-off engine power and speed. The main and auxiliary rotor controls shall be in the normal position for vertical ascent during this test.

All of the tests described in paragraphs (a), (b), and (c) of this section may be conducted either on the ground or in flight. These tests shall be conducted for intervals of not less than 30 minutes except in the case of paragraph (c). The testing of paragraph (c) may be accomplished in intervals of 5 minutes or more if desired.

At intervals of not more than every 5 hours during the endurance tests the engine shall be stopped rapidly enough to allow the engine and rotor drive to be automatically disengaged from the rotors.

Five hundred complete cycles of lateral control and 500 complete cycles of longitudinal control of the main rotors shall be accomplished under the operating conditions as specified in paragraph (a) of this section. Five hundred complete cycles of control of all auxiliary rotors shall be accomplished under the operating conditions as specified in paragraph (a). A complete control cycle is considered to involve movement of the controls from the neutral position, through both extreme positions, back to neutral position. The control cycling may be accomplished during the testing prescribed in paragraph (a) or may be accomplished separately. The remainder of the testing prescribed in paragraphs (a) and (b) shall be accomplished with the main rotor controls in the position which will give maximum longitudinal cyclical pitch change to simulate forward flight and with the auxiliary rotor controls in the position for normal operation under the conditions of the test. The part of the endurance test specified in paragraph (c) shall be accomplished with the main rotor controls neutral and the auxiliary rotor controls in the position for normal operation in a vertical ascent under the power conditions of this portion of the test. Such additional dynamic, endurance, and operational tests or vibratory investigations shall be conducted as are found necessary by the Administrator to substantiate the airworthiness of the rotor drive mechanism.

§ 06.421 Shafting critical speeds. An investigation shall be made to determine that the critical speeds of all shafting lie outside the range of permissible engine speeds under idling, power-on, and autorotation conditions. It shall be demonstrated by actual operation that this condition is satisfied with the mechanism installed in the rotorcraft.

§ 06.430 Capacity and feed. The fuel capacity shall be not less than 0.15 gallon per maximum (continuous) horsepower for which the rotorcraft is to be certificated. Air-pressure fuel systems shall not be used. Only gravity feed or mechanical pumping of fuel is permitted. The system shall be so arranged that, insofar as practicable, the entire fuel supply may be utilized in the steepest climb and at the best gliding angle and so that the feed ports will not be uncovered during normal maneuvers involving moderate rolling or sideslipping. The system shall also feed fuel promptly after one tank has run dry and another tank is turned on. If a mechanical pump is used, an emergency pump shall also be installed and shall be available for immediate use in case of a mechanical pump failure. Pumps of adequate capacity may also be used for pumping fuel from an auxiliary tank to a main fuel tank.

§ 06.431 Tank installation. Fuel tanks shall be separated from the engine compartment by a firewall. At least one-half inch clear air space shall be provided between the tank and firewall. Spaces adjacent to the surfaces of the tank shall be ventilated so that fumes cannot accumulate in the tank compartment in case of leakage. If two or more tanks have their outlets interconnected they shall be considered as one tank. The air spaces in such tanks shall be interconnected to prevent the flow of fuel from one tank to another as the result of a difference in pressure in the respective tank air spaces. Mechanical pump systems shall be so arranged that they cannot feed from more than one tank at a time.

§ 06.432 Tank construction. Each fuel tank shall incorporate a sump and drain located at the point in the tank which is lowest when the rotorcraft is in its normal ground position. The main fuel supply shall not be drawn from the bottom of this sump. All fuel tank outlets shall be provided with large-mesh finger strainers. Each tank shall be suitably vented from the top portion of the air space. Such air vents shall be arranged to minimize the possibility of stoppage by dirt or ice formation. Tanks of 10 gallons or more capacity shall be provided with internal baffles unless suitable external support is provided to resist surging.

§ 06.433 Tank strength. Fuel tanks shall be capable of withstanding, without failure or leakage, an internal pressure of either 3½ pounds per square inch, or the pressure developed during the maximum limit acceleration with fuel tanks, whichever is greater. Tanks shall be capable of withstanding, without leakage or failure, all vibration, inertia, and fluid loads to which they may be subjected in normal operation.

§ 06.434 Fuel quantity gauge. The fuel quantity gauge shall be so installed as to indicate readily to a pilot or a flight mechanic the quantity of fuel in each tank while in flight. When two or more tanks in a gravity feed system are closely interconnected and vented, and it is impossible to feed from each one separately, only one fuel quantity gauge need be installed. If a glass gauge is used, it shall be suitably protected against breakage.

§ 06.435 Lines and fittings. All fuel lines and fittings shall be of sufficient size so that the fuel flow, with the fuel being supplied to the carburetor at the minimum pressure for proper carburetor operation, is not less than the following:

(a) For gravity feed systems: double the normal flow required to operate the engine at take-off power;

(b) For pump systems: 1½ times the normal flow required to operate the engine at take-off power.

A test for proof of compliance with the applicable flow requirements shall be conducted.

All fuel lines shall be supported to prevent excessive vibration and should be located so that no structural loads can be applied. Bends of small radius or vertical humps in the lines shall be avoided. Copper fuel lines which have been bent shall be annealed before installation. Lines which are connected to components of the rotorcraft between which relative motion may exist shall incorporate provisions for flexibility. Flexible hose and fittings used in fuel line connections shall be of an approved type.

§ 06.436 Strainers. A strainer incorporating a sediment trap and drain shall be installed in an accessible position between the fuel tanks and the engine and shall be installed in an accessible position. The screen shall be easily removable for cleaning. If an engine-driven fuel pump is provided, the strainer shall be located between the fuel tank and the pump.

§ 06.437 Valves. A positive and quick-acting valve that will shut off all fuel to each engine individually shall be provided. The control for this valve shall be within easy reach of appropriate flight personnel. In the case of rotorcraft employing more than one source of fuel supply, provision shall be made for independent feeding from each source. The shut-off valve shall not be located closer to the engine than the remote side of the firewall.

§ 06.438 Drains. One or more accessible drains shall be provided at the lowest point in the fuel system to drain completely all parts of the system when the rotorcraft is in its normal position on level ground. Such drains shall discharge clear of all parts of the rotorcraft and shall be equipped with suitable safety locks to prevent accidental opening.

§ 06.439 Miscellaneous fuel system requirements.

Provision shall be made to prevent fuel overflow from entering the compartments in which the fuel tanks are located.

§ 06.4391 Carburetor de-icing and anti-icing provisions. Provisions shall be incorporated for preventing the formation and for the elimination of ice in the engine air induction system in accordance with the following:

(a) Rotorcraft employing sea level engines with conventional venturi carburetors shall be equipped with a carburetor air preheater capable of providing a heat rise of not less than 90° F. when the engine is operating at 75 percent of its maximum continuous power in air at a temperature of 30° F.

§ 06.440 General. Each engine shall have an independent oil supply. The oil capacity of the system shall be not less than either one gallon for every 25 gallons of fuel or one gallon for each 100 maximum (continuous) rated horsepower of the engine or engines, whichever capacity is greater. When suitable provisions are made to transfer oil between engines in flight or when a suitable reserve supply is provided the use of a smaller capacity oil system may be permitted. The suitability of the lubrication system shall be demonstrated in flight tests in which engine temperature measurements are obtained. The system shall provide the engine with an ample quantity of oil at a temperature suitable for satisfactory engine operation.

§ 06.441 Tank installation. Oil tanks shall be vented and shall be provided with an expansion space which cannot be inadvertently filled with oil. The expansion space shall be at least 10 percent of the total tank volume, except that it shall in no case be less than one-half gallon.

§ 06.450 General. The cooling system shall be capable of maintaining engine temperatures within safe operating limits under all conditions of flight during a period at least equal to that established by the fuel capacity of the rotorcraft, assuming normal engine power and speeds. Compliance with this requirement shall be demonstrated in flight tests in which engine temperature measurements are obtained under critical flight conditions. Such tests shall be conducted in air at temperatures corresponding to the highest anticipated summer air temperatures as specified in § 06.451 or, if the flight tests are conducted at temperatures that deviate from these temperatures, the recorded engine temperatures shall be corrected in accordance with the following:

(a) Cylinder head temperatures of air-cooled engines and engine oil inlet temperatures shall be corrected by adding the difference between the highest anticipated summer air temperature and the average temperature of the ambient air at the time of the first occurrence of the maximum cylinder head or oil inlet temperature recorded.

(b) Cylinder barrel temperatures of air-cooled engines shall be corrected by adding seven-tenths of the difference between the highest anticipated summer air temperature and the average temperature of the ambient air at the time of the first occurrence of the maximum cylinder barrel temperature recorded.

§ 06.471 Exhaust manifolds. Exhaust manifolds shall be constructed of suitable materials, shall provide for expansion, and shall be so arranged and cooled that local hot points do not form. Exhaust gases shall be discharged clear of the cowling, rotorcraft structure, carburetor air intake, and fuel system parts or drains. Exhaust gases shall not discharge in a manner that will impair pilot vision at night due to glare. No exhaust manifolding shall be located immediately adjacent to or under the carburetor or fuel system parts unless such parts are properly protected against possible leakage.

§ 06.472 Air intakes. Carburetor air intakes shall be provided with suitable drains. Cold air intakes shall open completely outside the cowling unless the emergence of backfire flames is positively prevented. The air intake drain shall not discharge fuel in the possible path of exhaust flames.

§ 06.473 Firewall. The engine compartment shall be isolated from the remainder of the rotorcraft by means of fire-resistant bulkheads unless the engine is located in a nacelle which is remote from the remainder of the rotorcraft structure and contains no fuel tanks. § 06.474 Engine cowling and engine compartment covering. All cowling or engine compartment covering shall be made of noninflammable material and shall be so arranged that any accumulations of dirt, waste, fuel, or oil may be readily observed without complete removal of the cowling or engine compartment covering. The cowling or covering shall fit tightly to the firewall. However, openings may be provided if the surface of the aircraft within 15 inches of all such openings is protected with metal or other suitable fire-resistant material. The cowling or engine compartment shall be completely drainable in all operating attitudes of the rotorcraft. All drains shall discharge clear of the exhaust manifold, the path of the exhaust gases, and all parts of the rotorcraft.

§ 06.475 Heating systems. Heating systems involving the passage of cabin air over or in close proximity to engine exhaust manifolds shall not be used unless adequate precautions are incorporated in the design to prevent the introduction of carbon monoxide into the cabin or pilot's compartment. Heat exchangers shall be constructed of suitable materials, shall be cooled adequately under all conditions, and shall be susceptible to ready disassembly for inspection.

§ 06.480 Fire protection of flight controls. All primary flight controls passing through the engine compartment shall be constructed of fire-resistant material, or shall be enclosed in a suitably ventilated and drained enclosure of 0.12 inch thick stainless steel, or material of equivalent fire-resistant qualities.

§ 06.5 Equipment.

§ 06.50 General. The equipment required shall be dependent upon the type of operation for which certification is desired. Basic minimum requirements are set forth below.

§ 06.500 Accountability. Equipment items for which certification is required shall be certificated in accordance with the provisions of Part 15 of this chapter. Other items of equipment shall be of a type and design found by the Administrator to be adequate for the purpose intended.

§ 06.51 Minimum equipment. All rotorcraft shall be equipped with at least the following:

(a) An airspeed indicator.

(b) An altimeter.

(c) A tachometer for the main rotor or for each main rotor, the speed of which can vary appreciably with respect to another main rotor. (See § 06.521.)

(e) An engine oil-pressure gauge when the engine employs a pressure oil system.

(f) A coolant thermometer for each liquid-cooled engine.

(g) An oil inlet temperature thermometer.

(h) A manifold-pressure gauge for each altitude engine.

(i) A fuel quantity gauge. (See § 06.434 for requirements.)

(j) Certificated safety belts for all passengers and members of the crew. (See Part 15 of this chapter for belt requirements and § 06.2500 for installation strength requirements.)

(k) A device for measuring or indicating the amount of oil in the tanks. (See § 06.443 for requirements.)

§ 06.52 Installation requirements.

§ 06.520 General. The required equipment shall be so installed as to function dependably.

§ 06.521 Rotor and engine tachometers. The tachometers required by § 06.51 (c) and (d) may be combined in a single instrument; however, such an instrument shall indicate rotor rpm during autorotation.

§ 06.60 Operation limitations and information. A flight manual shall be provided in the rotorcraft by which the operating personnel are informed of all operation limitations and information necessary for its safe operation. The manual shall include information essential to the proper maintenance of the rotorcraft.

§ 06.61 Identification plate. An identification plate shall be permanently affixed in a visible location in the pilot's compartment of each rotorcraft. This plate shall contain the manufacturer's name, the model designation of the rotorcraft, its date of manufacture, and the manufacturer's serial number.

The value for each of the components ash, nitrogen, and zinc required under subparagraph (7) of such paragraph may, if the batch is insulin U. S. P., be calculated from the result of a test therefor submitted pursuant to subparagraphs (1) or (2) of such paragraph or from the result of a test of the bulk dilution from which the batch was prepared. Each calculated value shall be indicated as such.

(e) By changing subparagraph (7) to read:

(k) In like manner, the Commissioner shall notify the person who submits samples pursuant to paragraph (d) (3) to (6) of this section, inclusive, of his approval or refusal to approve the use of the materials represented by such samples in completing the manufacture of the batch. In case of a refusal to approve, the Commissioner shall state his reasons therefor.

2. Section 144.10 is amended to read:

§ 144.10 Fees. (a) Fees for the services rendered under the regulations in this part shall be such as are necessary to provide, equip, and maintain an adequate certification service.

(b) The fees for the services rendered with respect to the samples submitted pursuant to § 144.2 (d) shall be:

(1) For each master lot or mixture of two or more master lots or parts thereof as follows:

TITLE 24—HOUSING CREDIT

Chapter VIII—National Housing Agency

[Premium Payments Reg. 2]

PART 714—PREMIUM PAYMENTS REGULATIONS UNDER VETERANS' EMERGENCY HOUSING ACT OF 1946

SOFTWOOD PLYWOOD

Purpose and findings. This general regulation is issued to stimulate additional production of softwood plywood by providing for premium payments with respect to peeler logs consumed in additional production of softwood plywood above established quotas. It describes how quotas are established, and the methods, procedures and conditions under which premium payments may be obtained. This regulation is issued pursuant to the authority of the "Veterans' Emergency Housing Act of 1946."

All available means of increasing the supply of softwood plywood for the veterans' emergency housing program and for other construction, maintenance and repair essential to the national well-being have been considered. Based on such consideration, the Expediter finds that premium payments with respect to peeler logs are temporarily necessary to increase the supply of softwood plywood and to stimulate such additional production with greater rapidity, economy and certainty than other available methods. The premium payments provided herein are applied at a uniform rate within the industry. In applying premium payments to necessary additional production in this industry emphasis has been placed upon avoiding either economic dislocations or adverse effects upon established business.

§ 714.2 Softwood plywood—(a) Definitions. As used in this section:

(1) "Plywood company" means any person who manufactures plywood at least 50 percent of which is in construction and door panel grades. For purposes of this section a "veneer mill" which is owned by a plywood company, or which has contracted to supply all of its output to a plywood company (or companies), shall be considered a part of the plywood company (or companies).

(2) "Veneer mill" means any person who manufactures wood veneer.

(3) "Log supplier" means any person who supplies peeler logs to a plywood company or veneer mill.

(4) "Person" means an individual, corporation, partnership, association, or any other organized group of any of the foregoing, or legal successor or representative of any of the foregoing, but does not include the United States, any of its political subdivisions or any agency thereof, any other Government, any of its political subdivisions or any agency thereof.

(5) "Plywood" means a panel of one or more veneers laminated by use of a bonding agent, made of any species of softwood (other than pine) produced west of the crest of the Cascade Mountains.

(6) "Peeler logs" means only the following species and grades of peeler logs: Douglas fir, Nos. 1, 2, and 3 peeler; Western hemlock and Western white fir, suitable for peeling; Sitka spruce, select; Noble fir, aircraft grade and suitable for peeling.

(7) "Plywood production" means the amount of plywood produced using as the unit of measurement one thousand square feet on a 3/8" rough basis.

(8) "New producer" means, with respect to a plant which prior to the effective date of this section was not operated for the production of plywood, a person who operates such plant after the effective date of this section, and who did not operate, prior to the effective date of this section, any plant for the production of plywood.

(9) "Claim" means a claim for premium payments filed pursuant to this section.

(10) "Expediter" means the Housing Expediter as defined in the Veterans' Emergency Housing Act of 1946, or his duly authorized representative.

(11) "OHE" means the Office of the Housing Expediter.

(b) Eligibility. Any plywood company may file claims for premium payments under this section if it meets both of the following conditions: (1) It produces plywood during the period covered by the claim in excess of quota. This condition, however, does not apply to claims for premium payments for June 1946. (2) It (or such of its agents as are certified by Civilian Production Administration) pays its log suppliers a premium of $7.50 per thousand feet logscale for peeler logs delivered to it. For purposes of this section, a plywood company which produces its own logs shall be considered to have paid a premium of $7.50 per thousand feet logscale for all peeler logs it itself has produced and consumed in the manufacture of plywood.

(c) Establishment of quota. (1) With respect to a plywood company which produced plywood for at least three months during the period January through May, 1946, the quota shall be the lower of the following as approved and accepted by the Expediter: (i) Actual production during the first three months in the period from January through May, 1946, in which production was maintained for at least 15 operating days, or (ii) Productive capacity for the same three months computed on a two-shift six-day week basis. In the case of a company which produced plywood in more than one plant, the lower of (i) and (ii) above shall be found for each plant of the company and the quota shall be the total for all plants. (2) With respect to any other plywood company, the quota shall be determined by the Expediter; Provided, however, That no quota shall be established for a new producer which would result in the application of premium payments to more than 50 percent of the value (in terms of producer's selling price) of the total output of such producer. (3) Where the Expediter finds that production of a plywood company during a three month claim period has been interrupted due to unusual circumstances beyond the control of the company, the quota for such claim period may be adjusted by the Expediter.

(d) Application for quota. Every person who wishes to receive premium payments under this section shall file an application for quota on prescribed forms. All applications shall be filed with the Expediter, c/o CPA, Portland, Oregon, in accordance with instructions on the forms.

(e) Rate and computation of premium payment—(1) For June 1946. If a plywood company has been assigned a quota, the amount payable for production during June 1946, shall be $7.50 per thousand feet logscale for all peeler logs consumed in the manufacture of plywood during June 1946. If, however, the plywood company's production of plywood during the quarter commencing July 1, 1946, does not equal or exceed 125 percent of its quota, the amount payable for June 1946 will be recomputed by applying the reduced rate of premium payments applicable to the quarter beginning July 1, 1946. This rate will be determined in accordance with paragraph (e) (2) (ii) of this section. In such a case, the overpayment for June 1946 will be subject to recovery or set-off.

(2) For three-month periods beginning July 1, 1946. (i) If production of plywood during the quarter was 25 percent or more in excess of quota, plywood companies will be paid $7.50 per thousand feet logscale for peeler logs consumed in the manufacture of plywood during the quarter. (ii) If production of plywood during the quarter was in excess of quota, but less than 25 percent above it, plywood companies will be paid at the rate of $.30 for each 1-percent increase in plywood production above quota with respect to each thousand feet logscale of peeler logs consumed in the manufacture of plywood during the quarter.

EXAMPLE: The X Company produces 20 percent more plywood than its quota. In producing this plywood, the X Company consumes 2,000,000 feet logscale of peeler logs. Since the production of plywood is 20 percent above quota, the rate of payment would be $0.30 for each one percent or $6.00 per thousand feet logscale of peeler logs. Applying this $6.00 to the 2,000,000 feet logscale of peeler logs it is found that the amount of premium payments is $12,000.

(iii) If production of plywood during the quarter was not above quota, no payment will be made.

(3) Liquidation settlement. A liquidation payment, based upon the net increase in inventory of peeler logs between inventory on hand on June 1, 1946, and the inventory on hand on the termination date of this section, will be paid plywood companies at the rate of $7.50 per thousand feet logscale. If this section is terminated because OPA price ceilings are no longer applicable to the sale of plywood or peeler logs, this liquidation payment will be at such a rate and on such terms and conditions as the Expediter may deem proper. In the event there is a net decrease in inventory of peeler logs between the inventory on hand on June 1, 1946, and the inventory on hand on the termination date, an amount equal to $7.50 per thousand feet logscale of the net amount of such decrease shall be subject to recovery or set off.

(f) Claim for payment. Plywood companies shall file their claims for payment in the following manner. (1) Each claim for payment shall be filed on prescribed forms in accordance with instructions on the forms. These forms may be obtained from and shall be filed with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Loan Agency at Portland, Oreg. (2) Claims for the month of June, 1946, shall be filed no later than October 31, 1946. (3) For the months beginning with July, 1946, plywood companies shall file each claim no later than the end of the month following the period covered by the claim. Such claims shall be filed on a monthly or quarterly basis. A claim for the first month of the quarterly period may be filed only if the production of the plywood company during the month has equaled or exceeded 125 percent of one-third of its quota; and a claim for the second month or for the first two months of the quarterly period may be filed only if the total production of the plywood company during the two months has equaled or exceeded 125 percent of two-thirds of its quota. (4) Any plywood company which files a claim for June, 1946, must file a quarterly claim for the quarter beginning July 1, 1946; and any plywood company which files a claim for any month or two-month period must file a claim for the quarter including such month or two-month period. (5) No claim under this section shall be assignable except as a part of a bona fide transfer of the plywood company to a legal successor.

(g) Payment—(1) Review by RFC. In reviewing claims for payment, the RFC will determine whether such claims appear to have been correctly and properly prepared.

(2) Terms of payment. If the claim or any part thereof is accepted by RFC subject to final verification, RFC will then pay the claimant that part of the claim so accepted: Provided, however, That with respect to claims for the months of January, February, and March 1947, RFC may require that bond be furnished in form and amount satisfactory to it before making payment thereon. Preliminary acceptance and payment of claim shall not constitute final acceptance of the validity or amount of the claim. If, after review or audit, there is cause to question the validity of any claim, RFC may (i) Require that bond be furnished in form and amount satisfactory to it before making further payments, or (ii) suspend further payments.

(3) Verification of claims. (i) Upon receipt of claims for payment, RFC will forward copies to the Expediter for verification and such investigation or audit as he may deem appropriate. (ii) If the amount verified and approved by the Expediter is less than the amount previously paid, the claimant shall, upon demand by RFC, refund the overage to RFC, together with interest thereon at the rate of 4 percent per annum calculated from the date of such overpayment to the date repayment is made to the RFC or such overage plus interest may be deducted from any accrued or subsequent claim for any payment by RFC to the claimant.

(4) Monthly payments. Any payments made by RFC on account of any month or two-month claim shall be considered an advance payment on the claim for the quarterly period including such months, and shall be subject to recovery or set-off in the event the amount found payable on the quarterly claim is less than the amount of such advance payment.

(5) Invalidation of claims. The Expediter shall have the right at any time to declare invalid any claim of a company, and such company shall upon demand refund to RFC any payment on such claim, if the Expediter finds that the company: (i) has failed to comply with any of the requirements of this section, or (ii) has failed to comply with directives, orders or regulations of CPA or OHE on plywood, or has sold plywood at prices in excess of the ceiling prices established by the applicable OPA regulations or orders, or (iii) has failed to maintain production of peeler logs from its own timber holdings at the level which obtained during the period on the basis of which the quota was established or the corresponding quarter of 1945, whichever is higher.

(h) Records. Every company shall prepare and preserve for inspection for a period of not less than two years after the date of termination of this section, all books, records and other documents which furnish information in support of its application for quota and claims for payment. The Expediter, or his designated agents shall have the right at any time to make such examinations and audits of the books, records and other documents as may be necessary to verify the representations in the company's application for quota and claims for payment, or as may be required by the Expediter.

(i) Official interpretations. Official interpretations of this section may be given only in writing by the General Counsel of OHE, or his duly authorized representative. A request for an official interpretation must be filed in writing directly with the Expediter or the General Counsel.

(j) Special provisions for veneer mills. (1) Any veneer mill which is neither owned by a plywood company nor is under contract to supply all of its output to a plywood company (or companies) may obtain premium payments under this regulation if it complies with all of the following conditions: (i) It obtains authorization from the CPA at Portland, Oregon, to pay its log suppliers a premium for peeler logs, and (ii) It delivers part of its peeler logs to a plywood company either in the form of veneer or as peeler logs, and (iii) After authorization from CPA, it pays its log suppliers for peeler logs a premium of $7.50 per thousand feet logscale, and (iv) Its current purchases of logs are in line with its purchases of logs during the corresponding months of 1945 and the proportion of peeler logs to total logs purchased does not exceed that obtaining during the first quarter of 1946. (2) The amount of premium payable to a veneer mill shall be $7.50 per thousand feet logscale for all peeler logs delivered to it with respect to which it has during the period of its authorization from CPA paid a premium of $7.50 per thousand feet logscale except that no premium shall be payable with respect to those peeler logs which the veneer mill has delivered to a plywood company. (3) Claims for payments shall be filed on prescribed forms in accordance with the instructions on the forms. Claims shall be filed on a monthly basis, no later than the end of the month following the period covered by the claim. (4) In addition to this paragraph, only the following provisions of this section shall apply to veneer mills: paragraphs (a), (f) (1), (f) (5), (g) (1), (g) (2), (g) (3), (g) (5), (h), (i), (k), and (l).

(k) Termination. This section shall terminate on March 31, 1947. Such termination shall not preclude the filing of claims for payment accrued on or before the date of termination. Such claims shall be dealt with in accordance with the provisions of this section in the same manner as if it had not been terminated. In the event that OPA price ceilings cease to be applicable to the sale of plywood or peeler logs, the Expediter may terminate this section on such terms and conditions as he may deem proper.

NOTE: The reporting and record keeping requirements of this regulation have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget, in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

Where such deliveries are made by common carrier, the actual charges paid or incurred by the seller in making delivery may be added to the f. o. b. conveyance price. However, if delivery is by truck owned or controlled by the seller, the addition may not exceed 80 percent of the common carrier truck charge for a similar delivery.

NOTE 2: On sales by dealers to dealers out of the selling dealer's plant or warehouse prices not in excess of the indicated prices for recoopered and/or reconditioned barrels may be charged provided the price to the consumer does not exceed the maximum price established by this regulation.

SALES OF FOOTWEAR AT WHOLESALE

A statement of the considerations involved in the issuance of this amendment simultaneously herewith has been filed with the Division of the Federal Register.

Supplementary Regulation 14E is amended in the following respect:

Section 3.14 is amended to read as follows:

SEC. 3.14 Sales of footwear at wholesale. Under this section, sellers making sales of footwear at wholesale are permitted certain adjustments in their ceiling prices. These adjustments are of two kinds: that permitted to be made for sales at wholesale of shoes priced by the manufacturer pursuant to Supplementary Order 162, and that permitted for sales at wholesale of shoes (whether or not priced by the manufacturer under Supplementary Order 162) on which an adjustment has been taken by the manufacturer pursuant to section 3.13 of this regulation.

(a) Articles covered by this section. "Footwear" as used in this section means any type of outside covering for the human foot, but does not include hosiery, footwear made entirely of wood, footwear made entirely of textiles, footwear containing no leather and designed to be worn over other shoes, or footwear which is subject to Maximum Price Regulation 132 (Certain Rubber Footwear).[1]

(b) How to adjust prices for sales at wholesale. The adjusted ceiling price for a sale of footwear at wholesale shall be computed by a seller as follows:

(1) For sales of footwear priced pursuant to Supplementary Order 162. If the shoe being priced is one which has been priced pursuant to Supplementary Order 162, and the seller has a statement in writing (such as an invoice) from his supplier which so indicates, the seller may ascertain from his price under the General Maximum Price Regulation (exclusive of any adjustment in that maximum price permitted under section 3.13 of Supplementary Regulation 14E, or any adjustment granted by order issued by OPA under § 1499.75 (a) (10) of Supplementary Regulation 15 or under Supplementary Order 133) his percentage markup over the manufacturer's price under § 1499.2 (a) of the General Maximum Price Regulation, exclusive of all adjustments, for that shoe (as shown on the invoice), and may apply that markup to the cost of the shoe priced under Supplementary Order 162, exclusive of any adjustment permitted by section 3.13 of this order.

(2) For sales of footwear priced pursuant to section 3.13 of this regulation. If the shoe being priced is one to which an adjustment permitted by section 3.13 has been added the seller shall compute his adjusted ceiling price as follows:

(i) The seller shall multiply the percentage of the supplier's increase found on the invoice for the footwear being priced by 56 percent.

(ii) The seller shall multiply his ceiling price under the General Maximum Price Regulation or the price found under subparagraph (1), whichever is applicable, by the percentage found in subdivision (i).

(iii) The seller shall add the amount found in subdivision (ii) to the General Maximum Price Regulation price or the price found under subparagraph (1), whichever is applicable. The result is the new adjusted ceiling price.

(c) Notification. (1) Each seller making sales at wholesale at adjusted ceiling prices permitted by paragraph (b) must furnish to the purchaser an invoice or similar document showing:

(i) The names and addresses of the purchaser and seller.

(ii) The date and terms of the sale.

(iii) A description sufficient to identify each item of footwear sold, clearly indicating which items were priced pursuant to Supplementary Order 162.

(iv) The quantity of each item sold.

(v) The price of each item not including any adjustments permitted by paragraph (b) (2).

(vi) For items adjusted under paragraph (b) (2) showing also:

(a) The percentage by which he increased his ceiling price inclusive of any adjustment under paragraph (b) (1) in accordance with paragraph (b) (2). This percentage must be designated an "OPA Adjustment Change" and may be stated for each item on the invoice, for any group of items for which the increase is uniform, or at the foot of the invoice if more than one item is increased by a uniform percentage and items which are increased by that percentage are clearly indicated.

(b) The dollars-and-cents amounts of the adjustments. These may be billed either separately for each item or for groups of items.

(2) In addition, the seller must send to his purchaser on the invoice or attached thereto the following notice:

NOTICE

We are directed by the Office of Price Administration to notify you that if your sales are governed by MPR 580 you may not include as part of your net cost any adjustment charge shown on this invoice (attached to this invoice).

If your sales are governed by the General Maximum Price Regulation you may not increase your ceiling price properly computed under that regulation. If your sales are governed by MPR 210 you must follow the provisions of § 1372.113 of that regulation.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

Production and Marketing Administration.

HANDLING OF MILK IN CHICAGO, ILL., MARKETING AREA

NOTICE OF REPORT AND OPPORTUNITY TO FILE WRITTEN EXCEPTIONS TO A PROPOSED AMENDED ORDER AND TO PROPOSED MARKETING AGREEMENT

Pursuant to the rules of practice and procedure governing proceedings to formulate marketing agreements and orders, as amended (7 CFR, Cum. Supp., 900.1 et seq.; 10 F.R. 11791), notice is hereby given of the filing with the hearing clerk of the report of the Assistant Administrator for Regulatory and Marketing Service matters, Production and Marketing Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, with respect to a proposed amended order and to a marketing agreement regulating the handling of milk in the Chicago, Illinois, marketing area, to be made effective pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U.S.C. 601 et seq.). Interested parties may file exceptions to this report with the Hearing Clerk, Office of the Solicitor, Room 1331, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., not later than the close of business on the 15th day after the publication of this report in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Exceptions should be filed in quadruplicate.

A public hearing was initiated by the Production and Marketing Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, following receipt of a petition filed by the Pure Milk Association, Inc. The hearing was convened at Chicago, Illinois, on February 19–22, 1946, following the issuance of notice on February 8, 1946 (11 F.R. 1568).

The issues developed at the hearing were primarily concerned with:

(1) An increase in producer returns through the seasonal adjustment of prices;

(2) Definitions of the terms "producer" and "milk";

(3) Powers of the market administrator;

(4) Method of determining classification;

(5) Elimination of special prices for Class I milk for "out of area" and "relief" use;

(6) Revision of the Class IV price formula;

(7) Revision of the plant location adjustment credit to handlers;

(8) Basis of the computation of the Class IV shrinkage allowance;

(9) Allocation of "other source milk" to a handler's lowest-priced class utilization; and

(10) Clarification of various provisions dealing with reports, price calculations, producer payments, and correction of errors.

The conclusions reached with respect to these issues are set forth below:

(1) The differentials over the basic formula price used in computing the Class I milk and Class II milk prices should not be changed at this time;

(2) The term "producer" should be redefined and a definition of the term "milk" should be included for the purpose of clarification of the order;

(3) The market administrator should be granted the authority to make rules and regulations to effectuate the terms and provisions of the order and to recommend amendments thereto;

(4) Buttermilk, fluid skim milk (disposed of through routes, stores, or vendors), flavored milk, and flavored milk drinks for consumption as such should be reclassified from Class II milk to Class I milk and certain products which have appeared in the market but which heretofore have not been specifically named, such as yoghurt, dry ice cream mix, and eggnog, should be classified as Class II milk. Also, the provisions covering certain types of interhandler and "non-handler" transfers should be revised;

(5) The provisions for special "out of area" prices on Class I milk and for a lower price on Class I milk for relief use should be deleted;

(6) The "butter-powder" price formula used to compute the Class IV milk price should be revised to reflect an increased powder yield and a smaller "making" allowance;

(7) The plant location adjustment credits to handlers with respect to milk and cream received at plants beyond 70 miles from the City Hall in Chicago should be revised;

(8) The basis on which the shrinkage allowance in Class IV milk is computed should be revised;

(9) Milk from sources other than producers or handlers should be subtracted from the lowest-priced classification of a handler in determining the classification of producer milk; and

(10) Minor changes and rearrangement of provisions should be made to effect clarification, of the substantive provisions of the order.

The following proposed amended order contains provisions recommended as the detailed means by which the above conclusions may be carried out. The proposed marketing agreement is not set forth in detail in this report because its substantive provisions would be identical to those set forth in the proposed amended order.

Each handler shall keep adequate records of receipts and utilization of milk and shall, during the usual hours of business, make available to the market administrator such records and facilities as will enable him to:

(1) Verify the receipts and disposition of all milk required to be reported pursuant to this section, and, in case of errors or omissions, ascertain the correct figures;

(2) Weigh, sample, and test for butterfat content the milk received from producers and any product of milk upon which classification depend; and

(3) Verify the payments to producers prescribed in § 941.8.

§ 941.4 Classification of milk.—(a) Basis of classification. All milk purchased, received, or produced by a handler, or caused to be delivered by him in the manner described in § 941.1 (g), shall be reported by the handler in the classes set forth in (b) of this section: Provided, That (1) any milk moved as fluid milk from an approved plant to a plant at which the handling of milk is subject to pricing and payment under any marketing agreement or order issued pursuant to the act for any other fluid milk marketing area shall be classified as Class I milk, and any milk so moved as fluid cream shall be classified as Class II milk. If satisfactory proof is furnished to the market administrator that such fluid milk or fluid cream was in excess of the total amount used in Class I milk or Class II milk, respectively (as defined in (b) of this section), at the latter plant, such excess shall be classified according to its utilization. If this subparagraph is applicable, then (2), (3), (4), and (5) hereof do not apply.

(2) Any milk moved as fluid milk from an approved plant to any point located outside the following area (hereinafter referred to as the "surplus milk manufacturing area"), shall be classified as Class I milk and any milk so moved as fluid cream shall be classified as Class II milk: the State of Wisconsin, the counties of Jo Daviess, Stephenson, Winnebago, Boone, McHenry, Lake, Carroll, Ogle, De Kalb, Kane, Cook, Du Page, Whiteside, Lee, Rock Island, Henry, Bureau, Putnam, La Salle, Kendall, Grundy, Will, Kankakee, Peoria, McLean, Champaign, and Shelby, in the State of Illinois, the counties of Lake, Newton, Porter, Jasper, La Porte, Starke, Pulaski, St. Joseph, Marshall, Fulton, Kosciusko, Wabash, and Elkhart, in the State of Indiana, and the counties of Ottawa, Kent, Allegan, Barry, Calhoun, St. Joseph, Van Buren, Kalamazoo, Cass, and Berrien, in the State of Michigan.

(3) Any milk moved as fluid milk or fluid cream from an approved plant to an unapproved plant located within the surplus milk manufacturing area, which manufactured during the delivery period butter, cheese (except cottage cheese), evaporated milk, condensed milk, whole milk powder, or ice cream powder shall be classified under (b) of this section according to its utilization at the latter plant.

(4) Any milk moved as fluid milk from an approved plant to any unapproved plant located within the surplus milk manufacturing area which did not manufacture any of the products named in (3) of this paragraph during the delivery period shall be classified as Class I milk, and any milk so moved as fluid cream shall be classified as Class II milk.

(5) Any milk moved from an approved plant to an approved plant of another handler shall be reported as Class I milk if moved as fluid milk or fluid skim milk, and shall be reported as Class II milk if moved as fluid cream, unless utilization in another class is indicated in writing to the market administrator by both handlers on or before the 10th day after the end of the delivery period within which such transfer was made, but in no event shall the amount so reported in any class exceed the total use in such class by the receiving handler.

(b) Classes of utilization. Subject to the conditions set forth in (a), (c), (d), (e), and (f) of this section, the classes of utilization of milk shall be as follows:

(1) Class I milk shall be (i) all milk disposed of as fluid milk, buttermilk, flavored milk or flavored milk drinks, (ii) all milk disposed of as fluid skim milk by handlers through routes, stores, or vendors, and (iii) all other milk not accounted for as Class II milk, Class III milk, or Class IV milk, except that this definition shall not include milk disposed of in bulk as any product mentioned in (i) or (ii) of this subparagraph to bakeries, soup companies, and candy manufacturing establishments, in their capacity as such.

(2) Class II milk shall be all milk the butterfat from which is contained in sweet or sour cream, any fluid cream products having more than 6 percent butterfat, butter cream, filled cream, frozen cream, eggnog, yoghurt, ice cream, ice cream mix (liquid or powder), cottage cheese, and any other milk product of composition and texture similar to any of the products named in this subparagraph, except that this definition shall not include butterfat in cream, fluid cream products, filled cream, and cottage cheese disposed of in bulk to bakeries, soup companies, and candy manufacturing establishments, in their capacity as such.

(3) Class III milk shall be all milk the butterfat from which is contained in a product other than those included in Class I milk, Class II milk, or Class IV milk, and all milk the butterfat from which is contained in products disposed of in bulk to bakeries, soup companies, and candy manufacturing establishments pursuant to the exceptions in (1) and (2) of this paragraph.

(4) Class IV milk shall be all milk the butterfat from which is:

(i) Contained in butter and cheese (except cottage cheese);

(ii) Contained in inventory variation; and

(iii) Actual shrinkage, but in an amount not to exceed one-half percent of the total pounds of butterfat received directly from producers plus 1½ percent of the total pounds of butterfat received from all sources which were not disposed of to an approved plant of another handler or to an unapproved plant: Provided, That such shrinkage shall be allowed in this class only if records of utilization satisfactory to the market administrator are available.

(c) Responsibility of handlers. In establishing classification the responsibility of handlers shall be as follows: Any milk received from producers shall be classified as Class I milk unless the handler who receives such milk directly from producers proves to the satisfaction of the market administrator that such milk should be classified in another class without regard to whether such milk has been used or disposed of (whether in original or other form) by such handler, by any other handler(s), or by any unapproved plant(s).

(d) Correction of classification and reclassification of milk. (1) The classification of any milk shall be corrected by the market administrator if upon his audit it is found that such classification was reported incorrectly or incompletely by the handler.

(2) Except as set forth in (1), (2), and (4) of (a) of this section, any milk reported by a handler as having been used or disposed of in any class which is found by the market administrator to have been reused or redisposed of (whether in original or other form) in a different class by such handler by any other handler(s), or by any unapproved plant(s), shall be reclassified by the market administrator in accordance with such latter use or disposition.

(3) If, in applying the provisions of (1) and (2) of this paragraph, the ultimate use or disposition of the affected milk was at a plant purchasing or receiving milk from more than one handler, the market administrator may assign the change or correction in classification to the milk of the major supplying handler(s), but not to an extent greater than the amount of milk furnished by such supplying handler(s).

(4) If the application of the provisions of (1) or (2) of this paragraph discloses a higher classification than that reported pursuant to § 941.3 (a) (1) with respect to milk purchased by a handler from a cooperative association, the market administrator shall notify the purchasing handler of such change and of the amount of money involved and such handler shall within five days after notification by the market administrator pay to such cooperative association the amount involved.

(e) Computation of milk in each class. For each delivery period, each handler shall compute, in the manner and on forms prescribed by the market administrator, the amount of milk in each class, as follows:

(1) Determine the total pounds of milk received from producers, his own farm production, other handlers, other sources, and add together the resulting amounts;

(2) Determine the total pounds of butterfat received as follows: multiply by its average butterfat test the weight of milk received from producers, his own farm production, other handlers, and other sources, and add together the resulting amounts;

(3) Determine the total pounds of milk in Class I as follows:

(i) Convert to pounds on the basis of 2.15 pounds per quart (in the case of flavored milk and flavored milk drinks 2 pounds per quart) the volume disposed of in each of the several items of Class I milk;

(ii) Multiply each of the resulting amounts by its average butterfat test; and add the results so obtained;

(iii) If the total pounds of butterfat so computed when added to the sum of the pounds of butterfat computed pursuant to (4) (ii), (5) (ii), and (6) (vii) of this paragraph are less than the total pounds of butterfat computed pursuant to (2) of this paragraph, divide the difference by 3.5 percent; and

(iv) Add together the results obtained pursuant to (i) and (iii) of this subparagraph;

(4) Determine the total pounds of milk in Class II as follows:

(i) Multiply the actual weight of each of the several items of Class I milk by its average butterfat test;

(ii) Add together the resulting amounts; and

(iii) Divide the result obtained in (ii) of this subparagraph by 3.5 percent;

(5) Determine the total pounds of milk in Class III as follows:

(i) Multiply the actual weight of each of the several items of Class III milk by its average butterfat test;

(ii) Add together the resulting amounts; and

(iii) Divide the result obtained in (ii) by this subparagraph by 3.5 percent;

(6) Determine the total pounds of milk in Class IV as follows:

(i) Multiply the actual weight of each of the several items of Class IV milk by its average butterfat test;

(ii) Determine the difference in pounds of butterfat contained in inventories at the beginning and end of the delivery period;

(iii) Add together the pounds of butterfat obtained in (i) and (ii) of this subparagraph;

(iv) Add the total pounds of butterfat in Class I milk, Class II milk, and Class III milk computed pursuant to (d) (3) (ii), (d) (4) (ii), and (d) (5) (ii) of this section to the total pounds of butterfat computed pursuant to (iii) of this subparagraph;

(v) Subtract the total pounds of butterfat computed pursuant to (iv) of this subparagraph from the total pounds of butterfat computed pursuant to (2) of this paragraph, and the difference between the two amounts so computed shall be the pounds of butterfat in actual shrinkage;

(vi) Determine the maximum number of pounds of butterfat shrinkage in Class IV milk by multiplying by 1½ percent the pounds of butterfat received from all sources which were not disposed of to other handlers or to unapproved plants, and adding such amount to the result obtained by multiplying by ½ percent the pounds of butterfat received directly from producers: Provided, That the pounds determined pursuant to this subdivision shall be zero if records of utilization satisfactory to the market administrator are not available;

(vii) Add to the amount computed pursuant to (iii) of this subparagraph the smaller of the amounts determined pursuant to (v) or (vi) of this subparagraph; and

(viii) Divide the pounds of butterfat obtained in (vii) of this subparagraph by 3.5 percent; and

(7) Determine the pounds of overrun as follows: In the event the pounds of butterfat computed pursuant to (6) (iv) of this paragraph are greater than the pounds of butterfat computed pursuant to (2) of this paragraph, subtract the smaller amount from the larger amount and divide the result by 3.5 percent.

(f) Allocation of milk classified. The pounds of milk remaining in each class after making the following computations shall be the pounds of "net pooled milk" in such class:

(1) Subtract from the pounds of milk in each class the pounds of milk received from other handlers and assigned to such class;

(2) Subtract from the remaining pounds of milk in each class, in series beginning with the lowest-priced class, the pounds of milk received from sources other than producers or handlers;

(3) Subtract from the remaining pounds of milk in each class, in series beginning with the lowest-priced class, the pounds of overrun; and

(4) In the event the total pounds of milk remaining in the several classes is greater, or less, than the pounds of milk received from producers (including the handler's own farm production), reconciliation shall be effected by respectively deducting such difference from, or adding such difference to, the pounds of milk in Class IV milk.

§ 941.5 Minimum prices. — (a) Basic formula price. For each delivery period the basic formula price to be used in determining the prices of Class I milk and Class II milk shall be the highest of the prices per hundredweight of milk of 3.5 percent butterfat content computed by the market administrator pursuant to (1), (2), and (3) of this paragraph:

(1) The average of the prices per hundredweight ascertained to have been paid during such delivery period to farmers for milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat at each of the following listed manufacturing plants or places for which prices are reported to the United States Department of Agriculture or to the market administrator:

(ii) Add 2.4 times the average weekly prevailing price per pound of "Twins" during the delivery period on the Wisconsin Cheese Exchange at Plymouth, Wisconsin: Provided, That if the price of "Twins" is not quoted on the Wisconsin Cheese Exchange the weekly prevailing price of "Cheddars" shall be deemed to be the prevailing price for "Twins" and shall be used in determining the price pursuant to this formula;

(iii) Divide by seven (7);

(iv) Add 80 percent thereof; and

(v) Multiply by 3.5.

(3) The price per hundredweight computed from the following formula: multiply by 3.5 the average price per pound of 92-score butter at wholesale in the Chicago market, as reported by the United States Department of Agriculture for the delivery period during which such milk was received, add 20 percent thereof, and make the following adjustment by adding 3¾ cents per hundredweight for each full one-half cent that the price of nonfat dry milk solids for human consumption is above 5 cents per pound, or subtracting 3¾ cents per hundredweight for each full one-half cent that the price of such nonfat dry milk solids is below 5 cents per pound. For purposes of determining this adjustment the price per pound of nonfat dry milk solids to be used shall be the average of the carlot prices for nonfat dry milk solids for human consumption, f. o. b. manufacturing plant, as published by the United States Department of Agriculture for a Chicago area during the delivery period, including in such average the quotations published for any fractional part of the previous delivery period which were not published and available for the price determination of such nonfat dry milk solids for the previous delivery period. In the event the United States Department of Agriculture does not publish carlot prices for nonfat dry milk solids for human consumption, f. o. b. manufacturing plant, the average of the carlot prices for nonfat dry milk solids for human consumption, delivered at Chicago, shall be used. In the latter event the following adjustment shall be made by adding 3¾ cents per hundredweight for each full one-half cent that the price of nonfat dry milk solids for human consumption, delivered at Chicago, is above 6 cents per pound, or subtracting 3¾ cents per hundredweight for each full one-half cent that such price of nonfat dry milk solids is below 6 cents per pound.

(b) Class prices. Subject to the appropriate location adjustment credit set forth in (c) of this section, each handler, at the time and in the manner set forth in § 941.8, shall pay per hundredweight of milk purchased or received during each delivery period from producers or from cooperative associations, not less than the prices set forth below in this paragraph:

(1) Class I milk. The price for Class I milk shall be the basic formula price plus 70 cents, except that during the delivery periods of May and June the price for Class I milk shall be the basic formula price plus 50 cents.

(2) Class II milk. The price for Class II milk shall be the basic formula price plus 32 cents, except that during the delivery periods of May and June the price for Class II milk shall be the basic formula price plus 20 cents.

(3) Class III milk. The price for Class III milk shall be the same as the basic formula price.

(4) Class IV milk. The price for Class IV milk shall be the same as the price computed pursuant to (a) (3) of this section.

(c) Location adjustment credit to handlers. (1) The location adjustment credit with respect to that portion of milk received directly from producers at an approved plant (i) which is moved in the form of fluid milk or fluid skim milk from such approved plant to a plant engaged in the bottling of fluid milk, which is located less than 70 miles from the City Hall in Chicago, or (ii) which is classified as Class I milk but did not move in the manner described in (i) of this subparagraph or in (2) (i) of this paragraph, shall be 1½ cents per hundredweight for each 15 miles or fraction thereof that such approved plant is located more than 70 miles by rail or highway, whichever is shorter, from the City Hall in Chicago.

(2) The location adjustment credit with respect to that portion of milk received directly from producers at an approved plant (i) which is moved in the form of fluid cream from such approved plant to a plant, engaged in the bottling of fluid milk or fluid cream or in the manufacturing of ice cream or ice cream mix, which is located less than 70 miles from the City Hall in Chicago, or (ii) which is classified as Class II milk but did not move in the manner described in (1) (i) of this paragraph or in (i) of this subparagraph, shall be the rate per hundredweight specified in the following table:

Shorter Distance by Rail or Highway From Approved Plant to the City Hall in Chicago

	Cents per hundredweight of fluid cream
0 to 70 miles	0
70.1 to 85 miles	5
85.1 to 115 miles	10
115.1 to 175 miles	15
175.1 to 220 miles	20
220.1 to 250 miles	25
250.1 to 325 miles	30
325.1 or over	40

(3) The burden rests upon the handler who received the milk from producers to prove to the market administrator that the conditions required for the receiving of location adjustment credits have been fulfilled.

(d) Adjustment of class prices by Secretary. Whenever the Secretary finds and announces that the Class I or Class II price determined pursuant to this section is not in accord with the public interest, the applicable price for the delivery period shall be the same as the price for the same class for the delivery period immediately preceding.

(e) Emergency price provision. Whenever the provisions hereof require the market administrator to use a specific price (or prices) for milk or any milk product for the purpose of determining class prices or for any other purpose, the market administrator shall add to the specified price the amount of any subsidy, or other similar payment, being made by any Federal agency in connection with the milk, or product, associated with the price specified: Provided, That if for any reason the price specified is not reported or published as indicated, the market administrator shall use the applicable maximum uniform price established by regulations of any Federal agency plus the amount of any such subsidy or other similar payment: Provided further, That if the specified price is not reported or published and there is no applicable maximum uniform price, or if the specified price is not reported or published and the Secretary determines that the market price is below the applicable maximum uniform price, the market administrator shall use a price determined by the Secretary to be equivalent to or comparable with the price specified.

§ 941.6 Application of provisions—(a) Handlers who are also producers. No provision hereof shall apply to a handler whose sole sources of supply are receipts from his own production and from other handlers, except that such handlers shall make reports to the market administrator at such time and in such manner as the market administrator may request.

(b) Payment for milk received from sources determined as other than from producers or other handlers. The market administrator in computing the value of milk for each handler pursuant to § 941.7 shall add an amount determined by multiplying the pounds of milk purchased or received from sources determined as other than producers or other handlers by the difference between the value of such milk pursuant to its classification in § 941.4 (f) (2) and the value of such milk at the price for Class IV milk. This provision shall not apply if such handler can prove to the market administrator that such milk was used for purposes which did not violate any regulations issued by the various health authorities in the marketing area.

(c) Payment for overrun. The market administrator in computing the value of milk for each handler pursuant to § 941.7 shall add an amount determined by multiplying the pounds of overrun pursuant to § 941.4 (e) (7) by the appropriate price pursuant to its classification in § 941.4 (f) (3).

§ 941.7 Determination of uniform price—(a) Net pool obligation of handlers. The market administrator shall on or before the 14th day of each delivery period examine for mathematical correctness and obvious errors the report of receipts and utilization submitted by each handler for the preceding delivery period and shall make such corrections as such examination shall indicate to be appropriate. The net pool obligations of each handler for milk received from producers during each delivery period shall be a sum of money computed for such delivery period as follows:

(1) Multiply the net pooled milk in each class by the applicable class price and add together the resulting amounts;

(2) Add the amount of any payments required to be made pursuant to § 941.6; and

(3) Subtract the aggregate of the values of all location adjustment credits computed at the applicable rates set forth in § 941.5 (c).

(b) Computation of the uniform price. The market administrator shall compute the uniform price per hundredweight of milk for each delivery period in the following manner:

(1) Combine into one total the net pool obligation of all handlers, computed pursuant to (a) of this section;

(2) Add the aggregate of the values of all allowable location adjustments computed at the applicable rates as set forth in § 941.8 (b);

(3) Add the amount of cash balance in the producer-settlement fund;

(4) Divide the result by the total hundredweight of net pooled milk of all handlers whose net pool obligations are included pursuant to (1) of this paragraph; and

(5) Subtract not less than 4 cents nor more than 5 cents to provide against the contingency of errors in reports and payments or of delinquencies in payments by handlers. The result shall be known as the uniform price for milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat received from producers at plants located not more than 70 miles from the City Hall in Chicago.

§ 941.8 Payment for milk—(a) Time and method of payment. (1) On or before the 15th day after the end of each delivery period each handler shall pay to each cooperative association which is also a handler, for milk purchased or received from it during the delivery period, an amount of money representing not less than the total value of such milk computed by multiplying the pounds of such milk in each class by the applicable class price subject to the location adjustment credit pursuant to § 941.5 (c) and to a butterfat differential computed as in (c) of this section.

(2) On or before the 18th day after the end of each delivery period each handler shall pay to each producer, for milk purchased or received from him during such delivery period, an amount of money representing not less than the total value of such milk, at the uniform price per hundredweight, and subject to the appropriate location adjustments and butterfat differential set forth in this section: Provided, That if by such date such handler has not received full payment for such delivery period pursuant to (f) of this section, he may reduce such payments uniformly per hundredweight for all producers by an amount not in excess of the per hundredweight reduction in payment from the market administrator; however, the handler shall make such balance of payment to those producers to whom it is due on or before the date for making payments pursuant to this paragraph next following that on which such balance of payment was received from the market administrator.

(b) Location adjustment to producers. In making payment to producers pursuant to (a) (2) of this section, handlers shall deduct per hundredweight with respect to all milk purchased or received from producers, at a plant located more than 70 miles by rail or highway, whichever is the shorter, from the City Hall in Chicago, the amount specified as follows:

Within 70.1 to 85 miles	2
Within 85.1 to 100 miles	4
Within 100.1 to 115 miles	6
Within 115.1 to 130 miles	8
Within 130.1 to 145 miles	10
Within 145.1 to 160 miles	12
Within 160.1 to 175 miles	14

For each 15 miles or part thereof beyond 175 miles from the City Hall in Chicago, an additional one-half cent per hundredweight.

(c) Butterfat differential to producers. For each one-tenth of 1 percent above or below 3.5 percent in average butterfat content of milk delivered by any producer during any delivery period, the uniform price paid to such producer shall be plus or minus, as the case may be, an amount computed as follows: to the average price per pound of 92-score butter at wholesale in the Chicago market, as reported by the United States Department of Agriculture for the delivery period during which the milk was received, add 20 percent, divide the result obtained by 10, and adjust to the nearest $\frac{1}{10}$ cent.

(d) Producer-settlement fund. The market administrator shall establish and maintain a separate fund known as the "producer-settlement fund" into which he shall deposit all payments made by handlers pursuant to (e) and (g) of this section and out of which he shall make all payments to handlers pursuant to (f) and (g) of this section: Provided, That the market administrator shall offset any such payment due to any handler against payments due from such handler. Immediately after computing the uniform price for each delivery period, the market administrator shall compute the amount by which each handler's net pool obligation is greater or less than the sum obtained by multiplying such handler's net pooled milk by the uniform price subject to the location adjustment pursuant to (b) of this section and shall enter such amount on such handler's account as a pool debit or pool credit, as the case may be, and shall render such handler a transcript of his account.

(e) Payments to the producer-settlement fund. On or before the 16th day after the end of each delivery period each handler shall make full payment to the market administrator of any pool debit balance shown on the account rendered, pursuant to (d) of this section, for the preceding delivery period.

(f) Payments out of the producer-settlement fund. On or before the 17th day after the end of each delivery period, the market administrator shall pay to each handler the pool credit balance shown on the account rendered, pursuant to (d) of this section, if any, for the preceding delivery period, less any unpaid obligations of the handler, pursuant to §§ 941.9 and 941.10 and (e) and (g) of this section. If at such time the balance in the producer-settlement fund is insufficient to make all payments pursuant to this paragraph, the market administrator shall reduce uniformly such payments and shall complete such payments as soon as the necessary funds are available.

§ 941.9 Expense of administration—(a) Payments by handlers. As his prorata share of the expense of administration hereof each handler shall pay to the market administrator, on or before the 18th day after the end of each delivery period, a sum not exceeding 2 cents per hundredweight with respect to all milk purchased or received by him during such delivery period from producers, from sources other than producers or other handlers, or from his own farm production the exact sum to be determined by the market administrator, subject to review by the Secretary: Provided, That each handler, which is a cooperative association shall pay such prorata share of expense of administration only on that milk of producers actually received at an approved plant of such cooperative association, or caused to be delivered by such cooperative association to a plant from which no fluid milk or fluid cream is disposed of in the marketing area.

(b) Suits by market administrator. The market administrator may maintain a suit in his own name against any handler for the collection of such handler's pro rata share of expense set forth in this section.

§ 941.10 Marketing services—(a) Marketing service deduction. In making payments to producers pursuant to § 941.8 (a) (2), each handler, with respect to all milk received from each producer during each delivery period, at a plant not operated by a cooperative association of which such producer is a member, shall, except as set forth in (b) of this section, deduct 3 cents per hundredweight, or such lesser amount as the market administrator shall determine to be sufficient, such determination to be subject to review by the Secretary, and shall, on or before the 18th day after the end of such delivery period, pay such deductions to the market administrator. Such monies shall be expended by the market administrator for verification of weights, samples, and tests of milk received from such producers and in providing for market information to such producers. The market administrator may contract with an association or associations of producers for the furnishing of the whole or any part of such services to, or with respect to, the milk received from such producers.

(b) Marketing service deductions with respect to members of a producers' cooperative association. In the case of producers whose milk is received at a plant not operated by a cooperative association of which such producers are members and for whom a cooperative association is actually performing the services set forth in (a) of this section, each handler shall, in lieu of the deductions specified in (a) of this section, make such deductions from payments made pursuant to § 941.8 (a) (2) as may be authorized by such producers, and pay over on or before the 18th day after the end of each delivery period such deductions to the associations rendering such service of which such producers are members.

§ 941.11 Adjustment of accounts—(a) Payments. (1) Whenever audit by the market administrator of any handler's reports, books, records, or accounts discloses adjustments to be made, for any reason, which result in monies due (i) the market administrator from such handler, (ii) such handler from the market administrator, or (iii) any producer or cooperative association from such handler, the market administrator shall promptly notify such handler of any such amount due.

(2) Payments resulting from adjustments under (1) of this paragraph shall be made on or before the next date for making payments to producers following notification by the market administrator or within 5 days following notification by the market administrator if payment is due (i) the market administrator from a handler, (ii) a handler from the market administrator, or (iii) any cooperative association which is a handler from another handler.

§ 941.12 Market advisory committee. (a) Subsequent to the effective date hereof, the market administrator may select a representative committee of the industry for purposes (1) of recommendation of amendments to this order, and (2) for conference, counsel, and advice.

§ 941.13 Effective time, suspension, or termination of order—(a) Effective time. The provisions hereof, or any amendment hereto, shall become effective at such time as the Secretary may declare and shall continue in force until suspended, or terminated, pursuant to paragraph (b) of this section.

(b) Suspension or termination of order. The Secretary may suspend or terminate this order or any provision hereof whenever he finds that this order or any provision hereof obstructs or does not tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act. This order shall, in any event, terminate whenever the provisions of the act authorizing it cease to be in effect.

(c) Continuing power and duty of the market administrator. If upon the suspension or termination of any or all provisions hereof, there are any obligations arising hereunder, the final accrual or ascertainment of which requires further acts by any handler, by the market administrator, or by any other person, the power and duty to perform such further acts shall continue notwithstanding such suspension or termination: Provided, That any such acts required to be performed by the market administrator shall, if the Secretary so directs, be performed by such other person, persons, or agency as the Secretary may designate.

(d) The market administrator, or such other person as the Secretary may designate, shall:

(i) Continue in such capacity until removed by the Secretary;

(ii) From time to time account for all receipts and disbursements, and when so directed by the Secretary deliver all funds on hand, together with the books and records of the market administrator or such person, to such person as the Secretary shall direct; and

(iii) If so directed by the Secretary, execute such assignments or other instruments necessary or appropriate to vest in such person full title to all funds, property, and claims vested in the market administrator or such person pursuant thereto.

(e) Liquidation after suspension or termination. Upon the suspension or termination of any or all provisions hereof the market administrator, or such person as the Secretary may designate, shall, if so directed by the Secretary, liquidate the business of the market administrator's office and dispose of all funds and property then in his possession or under his control, together with claims for any funds which are unpaid or owing at the time of such suspension or termination. Any funds collected pursuant to the provisions hereof, over and above the amounts necessary to meet outstanding obligations and the expenses necessarily incurred by the market administrator or such person in liquidating and distributing such funds, shall be distributed to the contributing handlers and producers in an equitable manner.

§ 941.14 Agents. The Secretary may, by designation in writing, name any officer or employee of the United States, or name any bureau or division of the United States Department of Agriculture, to act as his agent or representative in connection with any of the provisions hereof.

SPECIAL TEMPORARY AUTHORIZATIONS

TIME FOR FILING REQUESTS

MAY 24, 1946.

The Commission has noted the large number of requests for special temporary authorizations filed the same day or the day before the proposed program. In this connection, the attention of station licensees is directed to § 1.365 (a) (1) of the Commission's rules which provides that such requests will not be considered unless: "It is received by the Commission at least 10 days previous to the date of proposed operation: Provided, however, That any such request received within less than 10 days may be accepted upon due showing of sufficient reasons for the delay in submitting such request."

The Commission recognizes the fact that licensees may not have much notice of a special event which they may desire to broadcast, and in its rules has provided for such contingencies. However, unless there is sufficient time for the Commission to act upon the request and for a reply to be received by a licensee, a late filing may make it impossible for the licensee to receive notice of authorization in the event of a grant. It is accordingly urged that in submitting their requests, licensees make due allowances for the time factors involved.

OFFICE OF PRICE ADMINISTRATION.

ESTABLISHMENT OF MAXIMUM PRICES

Order No. 264 under Revised Supplementary Order No. 119. Republic Steel Corporation, Berger Manufacturing Division, Canton, Ohio. Docket No. 6123-SO 119-147.

For the reasons set forth in an opinion issued simultaneously herewith and filed with the Division of the Federal Register and pursuant to section 13 of Revised Supplementary Order No. 119, it is ordered:

(a) Maximum prices for the Republic Steel Corporation, Berger Manufacturing Division of Canton, Ohio. (1) The above manufacturer may determine his maximum prices for his lines of fabricated steel cabinets by increasing by the following percentages his prices on these items in effect on October 1, 1941 to each class of purchaser: fabricated steel kitchen cabinets, 20.7 percent; fabricated steel undersink cabinets, 20.3 percent.

(2) Since the provisions of this order are not intended to reduce properly established maximum prices, the manufacturer may continue to use as his maximum prices to each class of purchaser his properly established prices in effect under Maximum Price Regulation No. 591 in the event that such prices exceed the prices in effect to each class of purchaser on October 1, 1941 plus the increase provided for in (1) above.

(3) The maximum prices set forth above shall be subject to discounts and allowances including transportation allowances and price differentials which are at least as favorable as those the manufacturer extended or rendered or would have extended or rendered to each class of purchaser on commodities in the same general category during March 1942.

(b) Resellers' maximum prices. All resellers of the commodities covered by this order (but not manufacturers who purchase such items for use in the manufacture of other products) may add to their presently established maximum prices the actual dollars-and-cents increase in cost resulting from the adjustment granted the manufacturer by this order.

(c) Notification to all purchasers. The manufacturer shall send the following notice to every purchaser of the commodities covered by this order at or before the time of the first invoice after the adjustment granted by this order is put into effect:

Order No. 264 under Revised Supplementary order No. 119 authorizes the following percentage increase in October 1, 1941 net prices for sales of fabricated steel cabinets manufactured by this company: fabricated steel kitchen cabinets, 20.7 percent; fabricated steel undersink cabinets, 20.3 percent.

Idaho white pine cut stock—add $5.00 to ponderosa pine prices. Sugar pine cut stock—add $5.00 to ponderosa pine prices. Douglas fir, white fir, and larch cut stock—deduct $3.00 from ponderosa pine prices. Additions for Idaho white pine or sugar pine may only be made for straight shipments of these species when ordered. If mixed species shipped, all species take price of lowest priced species in shipment.

Shop, roller squares rough. (Saw mill manufacture) (1" x 1" and larger). Deduct $30.00 from 4/4 No. 1 S2S cut stock price for width and length wanted. Compute footage on net rough width without saw kerf allowance.

Resawed face veneers. Add 10% to base price of 6/4 size wanted to allow for losses due to exposing hidden defects and to irregular resawing developing stock less than required ⅛" minimum thickness at any point. Add $17.50 for resawing 6/4—5 cuts at $3.50 per cut. Compute footage as 6 pieces from 6/4 to three places beyond decimal.

Delivered prices. Compute freight costs on applicable rate from mill to rail destination (to nearest 2¢) on following estimated shipping weights:

HEAVY FORGED TOOLS AND MINING TOOLS

[MPR 188, Order 5041]

ADJUSTMENT OF MAXIMUM PRICES

For the reasons set forth in an opinion issued simultaneously herewith and filed with the Division of the Federal Register, and pursuant to § 1499.159b of Maximum Price Regulation No. 188, it is ordered:

SECTION 1. Purpose of this order. This order, issued under § 1499.159b specifies a price increase factor for heavy forged tools and mining tools and contains the specific pricing provisions which manufacturers and resellers are to follow in calculating their maximum prices for sales of the product.

SEC. 2. What this order covers. This order applies to all sales of "heavy forged tools and mining tools."

As used in this order, the term "heavy forged tools and mining tools" means the following manually operated tools which are covered by Maximum Price Regulation No. 188: Picks, mattocks, hose (heavy-eye type), bars, sledges, wedges, hammers, mauls, railroad track tools, blacksmith anvil tools, tongs, punches, bull points and drift pins. These tools are listed and identified in Simplified Practice Recommendation R-17-35 entitled "Forged Tools", issued by the United States Department of Commerce, May 1, 1935.

SEC. 3. Manufacturers' maximum prices. A manufacturer's adjusted maximum price for sales of heavy forged tools and mining tools in the higher of the following amounts:

(a) His highest price in effect between October 1 and 15, 1941, for sales to each class of purchaser, increased by 10 percent.

(b) His maximum price for sales to each class of purchaser established under §§ 1499.153 through 1499.158 or 1499.159c of Maximum Price Regulation No. 188, (exclusive of any adjustment charge heretofore granted), increased by 10 percent.

SEC. 4. Maximum prices of purchasers for resale at wholesale. Resellers at wholesale of an article which the manufacturer has sold at an adjusted maximum price determined under this order shall determine their maximum prices as follows:

(a) A reseller who had a properly established maximum price in effect before this order was issued for an article covered by this order may add to that maximum price an adjustment charge in the same dollar-and-cents amount as the adjustment charge authorized by this order for, and which he paid to his supplier.

(b) A reseller who did not have a properly established maximum price in effect before this order was issued, shall first determine such a maximum price (exclusive of any adjustment charges), and to that price he may add an adjustment charge in the same dollar-and-cents amount as the adjustment authorized by this order for, and which he has paid to, his supplier. To find his maximum price (exclusive of adjustment charges) for this purpose, the reseller shall add to his invoice cost, less the adjustment charge stated on that invoice, the same percentage markup which he has on the "most comparable article" for which he has a properly established maximum price. For this purpose, the "most comparable article" is one which meets all of the following tests:

(1) It belongs to the narrowest trade category which includes the article being priced.

(2) Both it and the article being priced were purchased from the same class of supplier.

(3) Both it and the article being priced belong to a class of articles to which, according to customary trade practices, an approximately uniform percentage markup is applied.

(4) Its net replacement cost is nearest to the net cost of the article being priced.

The determination of a maximum price in this way need not be reported to the Office of Price Administration; however, each seller must keep complete records showing all the information called for by OPA Form 620-759 with regard to how he determined his maximum price, for so long as the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, remains in effect.

(c) If the maximum resale price cannot be determined under the above methods the reseller shall apply to the Office of Price Administration for the establishment of a maximum price under § 1499.3 (c) of the General Maximum Price Regulation. Maximum prices established under that section will reflect the supplier's prices as adjusted in accordance with this order.

SEC. 5. Maximum prices of purchasers for resale at retail. The provisions of this order do not authorize an increase in retail maximum prices for articles covered by this order.

SEC. 6. Invoices and price lists. Every manufacturer or reseller at wholesale making a sale to a purchaser for resale at wholesale of an article at a maximum price which has been adjusted in accordance with sections 3 (a) or 3 (b) of this order in the case of a manufacturer, or in accordance with sections 4 (a) or 4 (b) in the case of any other seller, shall:

(a) Furnish an invoice for each sale on which the amount of the adjustment charge authorized by those sections is separately stated, or

(b) Furnish a price list which separately states both his unadjusted maximum prices and his adjusted maximum prices as authorized by this order.

SEC. 7. Terms of sale. Maximum prices adjusted by this order are subject to each seller's customary terms, discounts, allowances and other price differentials on sales to each class of purchaser.

SEC. 8. Relationship of this order to Maximum Price Regulation No. 188 and General Maximum Price Regulation. The provisions of this order supersede the provisions of Maximum Price Regulation No. 188 and the General Maximum Price Regulation only to the extent that they are inconsistent with the provisions of those regulations.

SEC. 9. Revocation or amendment. This order may be revoked or amended by the Price Administrator at any time.

Effective date. This order shall become effective on the 26th day of June 1946.

NOTE: All reporting requirements of this order have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

Issued this 21st day of June 1946.

Administrator.

SEC. 5.8 Modification of maximum prices for electric furnace refractories. (a) The manufacturers' f. o. b. plant or delivered prices established pursuant to Maximum Price Regulation No. 592 for electric furnace refractories may be increased by an amount not in exess of 24.2 percent.

(b) For the purposes of this section, the term "electric furnace refractories" means refractory brick and specialties including cements and grain produced from highly refractory raw materials which are prepared by electrical fusion, such as silicon carbide, fused aluminum oxide, and fused magnesium oxide.

(c) Any reseller purchasing electric furnace refractories for resale from any manufacturer who has modified his maximum prices in accordance with paragraph (a) above, may increase his maximum prices by a dollars-and-cents increase in cost resulting from the increase permitted the manufacturer in paragraph (a) above.

(d) The maximum prices granted herein shall be subject to cash, quantity and other discounts, transportation allowances, services, and other terms and conditions of sale at least as favorable as the seller extended or rendered on comparable sales to purchasers of the same class during March 1942.

This amendment shall become effective June 26, 1946.

TORRINGTON CO.

ADJUSTMENT OF CEILING PRICES

For the reasons set forth in an opinion issued simultaneously herewith and filed with the Division of the Federal Register, and pursuant to sections 15 and 16 of Revised Supplementary Order No. 119, it is ordered:

(a) Manufacturer's ceiling prices. The Torrington Company, Torrington, Connecticut, may compute its adjusted ceiling prices for its sales of the bicycle accessories and parts which it manufactures, as follows:

(1) For an article which has a properly established ceiling price in effect before the effective date of this order, the adjusted ceiling price is the article's properly established ceiling price for the particular sale (exclusive of all permitted increases or adjustment charges) increased by 7.3 percent.

(2) For an article which is first offered for sale after the effective date of this order, the adjusted ceiling price is the maximum price hereafter properly determined or established in accordance with Maximum Price Regulation No. 188; and prices so fixed may not be increased under this order.

(3) The manufacturer's adjusted ceiling price fixed in accordance with this order is his new ceiling price if it is higher than his previously established ceiling price including all increases and adjustments otherwise authorized for him individually or for his industry.

(b) Resellers' ceiling prices. Resellers of an article which the manufacturer has sold at an adjusted ceiling price determined under this order shall determine their maximum prices as follows:

A person who resells the bicycle accessories and parts covered by this order as bicycle parts and accessories shall calculate his ceiling prices by adding to his invoice cost the same percentage markup which he has on the "most comparable article" for which he has a properly established ceiling price. For this purpose the "most comparable article" is one which meets all of the following tests:

(1) It belongs to the narrowest trade category which includes the article being priced.

(2) Both it and the article being priced were purchased from the same class of supplier.

(3) Both it and the article being priced belong to a class of articles to which, according to customary trade practice, an approximately uniform percentage markup is applied.

(4) Its net replacement cost is nearest to the net cost of the article being priced.

The determination of a ceiling price in this way need not be reported to the Office of Price Administration; however, each seller must keep complete records showing all the information called for by OPA Form 620–759 with regard to how he determined his ceiling price, for so long as the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, remains in effect.

If the maximum resale price cannot be determined under the above method the reseller shall apply to the Office of Price Administration for the establishment of a ceiling price under § 1499.3 (c) of the General Maximum Price Regulation. Ceiling prices established under that section will reflect the supplier's prices as adjusted in accordance with this order.

(c) Terms of sale. Ceiling prices adjusted by this order are subject to each seller's terms, discounts, and allowances on sales to each class of purchaser in effect during March 1942, or thereafter properly established under OPA regulations.

(d) Notification. At the time of, or prior to the first invoice to a purchaser for resale on and after the effective date of this order, showing prices adjusted in accordance with this order, the seller shall notify the purchaser in writing of the method established in paragraph (b) of this order for determining adjusted maximum prices for resale of the articles. This notice may be given in any convenient form.

(e) The provisions of Supplementary Order No. 153 shall not apply to sales covered by this order.

(f) This order may be revoked or amended by the Price Administrator at any time.

(g) This order shall become effective on the 21st day of June 1946.

Issued this 20th day of June 1946.

[Region V Order G–39 Under RMPR 251]

INSTALLED MINERAL WOOL INSULATION IN LOUISIANA

For the reasons set forth in an opinion issued simultaneously herewith and under the authority vested in the Regional Administrator of the Office of Price Administration by Section 9 of Revised Maximum Price Regulation No. 251, it is ordered:

SECTION 1. What this order does. This order establishes the maximum prices on sales of mineral wool insulation when sold on an installed basis in existing structures in the area comprising the State of Louisiana.

(a) "Mineral wool" means rock wool, slag wool and glass wool blown from molten materials and used to retain or exclude heat.

(b) "Existing structures" means any completed building or structure whether occupied or unoccupied and includes ordinary changes, improvements, remodeling or additions.

(c) "On on installed basis" means a transaction in which the seller furnishes mineral wool insulation together with the labor, services and materials required to incorporate such insulation into an existing structure. Installation may be performed by the pneumatic or blowing method, by the hand-packing method, or by the use of batts and blankets.

(d) "Incidental construction work" means work performed or services rendered with respect to a building or structure apart from the installation of mineral wool insulation. It also includes those materials and operations the cost of which are expressly described as not included in the prices of certain items listed in Table I of section 3 of this order.

SEC. 2. Relation of this order to Revised Maximum Price Regulation No. 251 and to Orders No. 27 and No. 28 issued under section 9 of Revised Maximum Price Regulation No. 251. (a) The provisions of this order supersede sections 6, 7, and 8 of Revised Maximum Price Regulation No. 251, except as otherwise provided in this order, with respect to sales of installed mineral wool insulation and incidental construction work. Except as otherwise provided herein, all transactions subject to this order shall remain subject to all provisions of Revised Maximum Price Regulation No. 251, together with all amendments that have been or hereinafter may be issued.

(b) The provisions of this order revoke and supersede Orders No. 27 and 28 issued under section 9 of Revised Maximum Price Regulation No. 251. All transactions and sales of installed mineral wool covered by those orders shall, after the effective date of this order, be subject to the terms and provisions of this order.

(c) On and after the effective date of this order, regardless of any contract or other obligation, no person shall sell, offer to sell, or deliver mineral wool insulation on an installed basis or incidental construction work as herein defined, in the State of Louisiana, at prices higher than the maximum prices established by this order.

SEC. 3. Maximum prices. (a) The maximum prices for sales of mineral wool insulation on an installed basis shall be those shown in Table I of this section. Prices apply to all types and thicknesses of blown mineral wool and to all types and thicknesses of hand-packed loose mineral wool and to batts and blankets. The prices listed in Table I are based upon an insulation thickness of 4 inches. For each inch or fraction of an inch of insulation over 4 inches, when ordered by the buyer, the seller may make an additional charge of 2¢ per inch per square foot. For each inch of thickness under 4 inches the seller shall deduct 1¢ per inch per square foot. A ¾ inch tolerance may be allowed without change in maximum price.

(b) The drawings referred to in Table I are on file with the Division of the Federal Register, and are hereby made a part of this order. For the convenience of sellers and buyers, and in the interest of simplification and clarity of description, copies of these drawings are attached to this order and distributed by the Office of Price Administration.

(c) Where a machine or a crew of two or more workers is used on mineral wool insulation jobs and the total charge as determined in accordance with the maximum prices listed in Table I is $40 or less, the seller may add $10 to such charge.

(d) In cases where the seller must transport the mineral wool to an installation job site outside the Parish wherein the insulation is kept or stored, the seller may add 1¢ per square foot of insulation for each 25 miles, or fraction thereof, it is transported beyond the Parish line, to the total charge computed under the provisions of Table I of section 3 of this order. This transportation charge within the meaning of this paragraph must be computed by using the distance of the most direct and practical route from the Parish line to the insulation job site.

The charge includes payment for all labor and material including that used for replacement of material where necessary. This charge applies only to work performed by the installer in connection with installation of mineral wool insulation.

The above prices shall be cash prices. If the seller customarily made an extra charge for credit extended for 30 days or longer, during his base period, he may now make this charge so long as such charge is no higher than his base period credit charge.

(f) Measurements. It shall be the seller's responsibility to ascertain that all measurements are accurate. Measurements for exterior walls are to be taken over-all, with no deduction for openings, except for sun porch walls, store fronts or similar areas where windows and door areas must be deducted. In the case of elevator wells, ventilators, skylights, monitors and penthouses on flat roofs the entire such area must be deducted where they are more than 16 square feet in area and extend through the flat ceiling area to be insulated. For attic floors outside gross dimensions may be taken. In measuring the height of knee walls, to the height between floors, joists and rafters add one foot for floor seal piling of granulated insulation. For slope add six inches to length of clean span for capping intersecting surfaces. For flat ceilings which intersect slopes add one foot to length of span taken at right angles to intersecting slopes. For stairwell walls measurement may be taken as a rectangle from floor to ceiling and not as triangles.

In determining the total of the square foot area for each category of insulation installed a tolerance of 5 percent will be recognized.

SEC. 4. Lump sum or guaranteed price. (a) A seller may offer to or make sales covered by this order on the basis of a lump sum or guaranteed price, but such lump sum or guaranteed price must not be higher than the maximum price figured in accordance with the pricing methods and requirements of this order.

(b) Recomputation. Within 30 days from the completion of any service covered by this order for which a price was charged on the basis of a lump sum or guaranteed price, the seller shall check his price by reviewing the categories and other factors used in his estimate on the basis of the actual services rendered and material furnished and shall determine whether the price quoted, charged or collected is higher than the maximum price computed under this order. In the event that the price quoted, charged or collected is higher than the maximum price computed under the terms of this order the seller shall reduce his price to the proper maximum price and shall refund to the buyer within such period of 30 days after the completion of the service any excess which may have been collected, or, if no excess has been collected, then, by written notice to the buyer, shall cancel the indebtedness of the buyer for any such excess, or both, as the case may require. Such a charge or collection in an amount in excess of the maximum price properly computed in accordance with this order shall not be considered to be in violation of this order if the amount thereof is refunded or credited to the buyer in accordance with this paragraph.

SEC. 5. Maximum prices for special insulation and related work and incidental construction. If, in connection with any sale covered by this order, any sales are made of special insulation work or related work or incidental construction work for which no separate dollars-and-cents price has been established in section 3 of this order, such sales shall be separately priced and billed on all invoices and sales slips. The maximum prices for all such other sales shall be computed under Revised Maximum Price Regulation No. 251 or other applicable price regulations or orders.

SEC. 6. Records and invoices. (a) Every seller of mineral wood insulation on an installed basis, whether the sale is made as a part of a general contract calling for installation of other commodities or not, shall:

1. Preserve records showing the information given in compliance with subparagraphs (i) to (vii) of this section.

(iv) The price charged for each separate category exactly as stated in Table I including category number and drawing number.

(vi) If a charge is made for transporting the mineral wool insulation, as provided in paragraph D of section 3 of this order, such delivery charge must be separately itemized reflecting the number of miles for which a delivery charge was made and the total charge therefor.

(vii) A statement to the effect that the "prices charged are at or below ceiling prices set forth by OPA Regional Order No. G–39 under RMPR 251."

(b) Every person making sales subject to this order shall notify the purchaser of the existence of this order, and if requested, show the purchaser a copy of this order and Revised Maximum Price Regulation No. 251.

SEC. 7. Enforcement. (a) Persons violating any provision of this order are subject to the civil and criminal penalties, including suits for triple damages provided for by the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended.

(b) Persons who have any evidence of any violation of this order are urged to communicate with the New Orleans, Louisiana, District Office of Price Administration.

SEC. 8. Amendment or revocation. This order may be amended or revoked at any time by a specific action taken by the Regional Administrator, Region V, or the issuance of any price regulation or amendment by the Price Administrator, the provisions of which are contrary to this order,

[Region VI Order G-1 Under Gen. Order 68]

WINDOWS, SASH, DOORS, FRAMES AND MOULDINGS IN CHICAGO REGION

For the reasons set forth in an opinion issued simultaneously herewith and filed with the Division of the Federal Register, and pursuant to the provisions of General Order No. 68, it is ordered:

SECTION 1. What this order covers. This order covers all "over-the-counter" sales of millwork items in any area specified in any of the appendices attached hereto when such sales are made from retail lumber yards and other retail distributors in Region VI in the area specified in any of the appendices attached hereto. The body of this order contains the general provisions which are applicable to all of the appendices hereto. The special provisions and specific prices applicable in particular areas will be set forth in the respective appendices, each of which will be issued as a part of this order. Insofar as any provision contained in any appendix may be inconsistent with any provision contained in the body of this order, the provision contained in the appendix shall be controlling in the area governed by that appendix.

SEC. 2. Definitions—(a) "Over-the-counter" sales. "Over-the-counter" sales are all sales made to the consumer or contractor other than those sales which are "contract" sales.

(b) "Contract" sale. A "contract" sale is a sale, wherein the seller offers to furnish millwork from plans or specifications or from the customer's list, or quotes a flat price for all or for only a portion of the job, whether or not he supplies the material at a price to be determined at a later date, and whether or not the seller agrees to supply all millwork to complete the job.

(c) Retail lumber yard and other retail distributors. For the purpose of this order a "retail lumber yard or other retail distributor" is an establishment or person, except a manufacturer, who buys millwork from manufacturers or jobbers and sells to the ultimate consumer or contractor. This order applies to, but is not limited to, such establishments as retail distribution yards, as defined in Maximum Price Regulation No. 215, department stores, builders' supply yards, etc.

SEC. 3. Millwork items covered by this order. The tables appended hereto, including maximum prices and the millwork items set forth therein, together with additions and deductions, are hereby made a part of this order.[1]

SEC. 4. Relationship to other regulations. The maximum prices for sales of any items of millwork not specifically covered by this order remain subject to Maximum Price Regulation No. 44, revised Maximum Price Regulation No. 293, Maximum Price Regulation No. 381, General Maximum Price Regulation, or any other applicable regulation. The maximum prices fixed by this order supersede any maximum price or pricing method previously fixed by any other regulation or order. Except to the extent that they are inconsistent with the provisions of this order, all other regulations applicable to the commodities listed in the appendices hereto shall continue to apply to sales covered by this order.

SEC. 5. Grades and specifications. The grades and specifications of the millwork items covered by this order shall be as provided for in Maximum Price Regulation No. 44, Revised Maximum Price Regulation No. 293, Maximum Price Regulation No. 381, Maximum Price Regulation No. 589, and Maximum Price Regulation No. 601.

SEC. 6. Discounts and allowances. All discounts and allowances granted by the seller in March, 1942, such as cash discounts, contractors' discounts, quantity discounts, etc., must be maintained.

SEC. 7. Delivery charges. No delivery charges may be made for sales of millwork items by this Order for delivery within a radius of 25 miles from the sellers' place of business.

When millwork is delivered beyond the 25-mile radius, actual cost may be charged for delivery in the area beyond the 25-mile radius. When the portion of the load is lumber and a charge of 10 cents per MBM per mile is charged for the delivery of lumber by truck, the delivery charge for the lumber must be deducted from the actual cost of delivery before a delivery charge may be assessed to the millwork.

If a buyer picks up the millwork in the yard, no delivery reduction is required; however, this is not to be construed as a waiver of responsibility for making other customary discounts and allowances provided for in section 6 above.

SEC. 8. Prohibited practices. Any practice which is a device to get the effect of a higher-than-ceiling price without actually raising the dollars-and-cents price is as much a violation of this order as an outright over-ceiling price. This applies to devices making use of commissions sale of lower-than-standard materials, services, transportation arrangements, tying-agreements, trade understandings, changes in discount practices, and the like.

SEC. 9. Posting. Every seller making a sale covered by this order shall either post a copy of the list of maximum prices fixed by this order, as set forth in the applicable appendix hereto, in a manner plainly visible to all purchasers, or make available to his purchasers a counter copy of this order. Extra copies of this order are available for this purpose at offices of the Office of Price Administration.

SEC. 10. Invoicing and records. Every person making sales covered by this order must provide the purchaser, whether he request it or not, with an invoice, sales slip, receipt, or other evidence of sale of which an exact and full copy shall be retained by the seller for the duration of the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended. The invoice or other evidence of sale shall contain the following information with respect to items subject to this order:

1. Name and address of seller.
2. Date of sale.
3. Name and address of purchaser (necessary only on sales of items totalling $7.50 or more.)
4. Description of the item sold, including quantity, size, special treatment, workings, and any other matter insofar as any of these matters may affect the price, in full detail necessary to permit the exact calculation of the applicable maximum price.
5. Charge for delivery beyond the free delivery zone.
6. The total price.

[1] Filed as part of the original document.

SEC. 11. Penalties. On and after the effective date of this order any establishment or person covered by this order who sells or offers to sell at a price higher than the selling price permitted by this order, or otherwise violates the provisions of this order, shall be subject to criminal penalties, civil enforcement actions, license suspension proceedings, and suits for treble damages, as provided for by the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended. No person subject to this order may evade any of the provisions of this order by any stratagem, scheme, or device. No person subject to this order may, as a condition of selling any millwork items covered by this order, require a customer to buy anything else. Any such evasion is punishable as a violation of this order.

SEC. 12. Petitions for amendment. Any person seeking an amendment to this order may file a petition for amendment in accordance with the provisions of Procedural Regulation No. 1, except that the petition shall be filed with the Regional Administrator of the Chicago Regional Office of the Office of Price Administration.

SEC. 13. Revocation or amendment. This order may be revised, amended, revoked or modified at any time by the Office of Price Administration.

Issued this 5th day of March 1946.
